MAYOR REPORTS 8.7 PCT. CUT IN CITY EXPENSES

Tells Savings Made in Two Months.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

There were four major developments yesterday in the efforts to solve the revenue problem of the Cook county local governments. They are:

1. More evidence that sentiment is growing for a large cut in local governmental expenses.

2. Mayor Cermak showed a reduction of 8.7 per cent of city monthly expenses between March and May in pay roll and so-called miscellaneous personal services.

3. L. Louis Jacobs, mayor's efficiency expert, urged the Joseph K. Britain revenue committee to decrease real estate taxes, perhaps an estimated $40,000,000 for the entire state.

4. Mr. Jacobs also recommended an income tax to make good the proposed cut in real estate taxes.

Mayor Tells of Cuts.

Mayor Cermak's accomplishments in the direction of economy—which is the first definite information on the subject to be made public—is expected to have some influence on other public officials as well as upon the Brittain committee. His statement, based upon an investigation by Mr. Jacobs, shows the March pay roll for personal and [illegible] services cost the city $5,[illegible]. For the same services in May the city paid $5,070,638—a decrease of $[illegible]. As between March and May, the decrease in the regular salaries and wages was 5.8 per cent or $284,[illegible].

A summary of the decreases by 10 items, as compiled by Mr. Jacobs, is as follows:

Account—	March.	May.	Decrease.
Salaries and wages	$4,842,685	$4,558,191	$284,474
Personal service ...	11,005	1,394	9,610
Auto maintenance ...	40,802	36,772	4,029
Dams and roads	215,764	179,408	36,355
Legal fees...	30,915	3,635	27,280
Miscellaneous supplies ..	12,373	9,914	2,458
Railway and utilities	130,994	65,845	57,978
Special trucks	26,748	15,987	10,761
Construction and repairs,	98,189	90,089	8,100
Totals.....	$5,554,413	$5,070,638	$483,774

All of the above are so-called salary and wage accounts and Mr. Jacobs explains they relate to the corporate, water, vehicle tax, special and bond funds. In the first five months of the year there expended an aggregate of $14,510,412.71 for pay roll and so-called miscellaneous personal services.

The Cermak showing is the first demonstration of a serious effort to reduce governmental expenses of the local governments. Heretofore it has been one announcement after another of what it was proposed to do, and that does not appear to be convincing to the public.

Size of Pay Rolls.

To illustrate, the announcement was broadcast on April 10 that Mayor Cermak had ordered the discharge of 2,000 temporary employés and would let off 800 more on April 10. But Mr. Jacobs' figures show the last half of April with the largest pay roll of any of the ten semi-monthly pay rolls upon which he reported to June 1.

From the last half of January, when the pay rolls totaled $2,527,004, according to Mr. Jacobs, the last city hall administration ran the pay rolls to a peak in the first half of March, when the total was $2,797,366. For the last half of March they dropped down $60,000, and then in the first half of April to $2,672,447. Then after Mayor Cermak gave his order to discharge 2,000 temporary employés, the pressure from political leaders became so strong for jobs that the pay roll in the last half of April jumped up to $2,[illegible],914. In the first half of May it dropped to $2,570,940, and in the last half to $2,499,697.

The average city salary for 1929, the year of the last official tabulation, although there have been some salary increases in both 1930 and 1931, was $2,433.82. On that basis of reckoning, Mayor Cermak—as between March and May—has trimmed 1,403 temporary and regular employés off the pay roll and has made other savings which are the equivalent of 983 added employés.

"That is only a superficial job," said Mayor Cermak yesterday. "It is only a trimming out of the obviously unnecessary jobs. Just wait until I get a fine toothed comb through the city hall with the fine toothed comb. Then there

COP IS EXPERT ON SINGING, SO 3 GO TO JAIL

Three homeless men who had been drinking started to sing last night at Jefferson and Madison streets. They couldn't decide on who should be leader and started to settle the matter with their fists. Policeman Patrick Gaynor arrested them.

"Singing is not so bad," said the policeman, "but fighting is terrible."

He led the prisoners, who gave their names as Charles Evans, Mike Kowolski and Steve Pancy, to the Des Plaines street station and lined them up before Desk Sergeant Joseph Murrin, who used to be a member of the police quartet when there was a police quartet.

The sergeant commanded that the trio sing. At about the fifth bar Sergt. Murrin stopped them.

"Your fighting may not have been bad," said the sergeant, "but your singing is terrible."

So Evans and Kowolski and Pancy were locked up for the night.

Eleven men and a girl were drowned Saturday and yesterday in the vicinity of Chicago. Seven of the victims met their deaths in the stormy waters at the lower end of Lake Michigan, where high winds whipped the waves and created so strong an undertow that some of the beaches, including those off Gary, were closed by the police yesterday.

Drownings led the accident toll over the whole country during the double holiday, exceeding even the number killed by automobiles on the crowded roads. The national total of drowned, as compiled last evening, was 139.

Girl Loses Life in Water.

Miss Evelyn Young, 16 years old, 3133 Fulton street, lost her life while swimming off an unguarded beach east of Gary, to which she and a party of friends had gone after finding the municipal beaches closed. Clinging to an automobile tube, Miss Young and Ralph Fetterly, 19 years old, 3220 Walnut street, were carried out into the lake. Fetterly was unable to hold her when she started to sink.

A man about 55 years old either fell or jumped, fully clothed, into the lagoon at McKinley park, near Western avenue and Pershing road, late last night. A white spaniel which accompanied him attracted the attention of South Park Policeman Michael Wolski, but the dog's master sank before Wolski could aid him.

Dog Leads Way to Home.

The body was recovered a half hour later and efforts were made by Capt. Thomas Noonan and a fire department squad to resuscitate the victim. These efforts failed. The dog was followed from the scene by Wolski to 3603 South Seeley avenue, where it was learned the drowned man was Charles Carlson, 57 years old. His wife later identified the body.

Joseph Brazauskas, 34 years old, 3347 South Union avenue, was drowned in Eagle lake, near Edwardsburg, Mich., yesterday when he stepped from a ledge into deep water. With him at the time was Miss Helen Sataitis, 24 years old, 3147 Emerald avenue, who was rescued.

Four men, all members of one party, were drowned in the undertow at Gary on Saturday. They were Joseph Vondrack, 23 years old, 2341 South Ridgeland avenue; D. A. Curry, 33 years old, Hobart, Ind.; Matthew Heinrich, 19 years old, 4417 Delaware street, Gary, and Samuel Singer, 21 years old, 3732 Elm street, Indiana Harbor.

STALIN SCRAPS COMMUNISM IN RUSSIAN PLANTS

Orders Wages Based on Work Done.

MOSCOW, July 5.—(AP)—A general overhauling of conditions applying to labor and industry, representing significant changes and in some cases wide differences from previous practices of Socialistic development, was proposed by Joseph Stalin in his latest public pronouncement.

In a speech which closed the conference of industrialists June 23, but was made public only today, new Russia's "man of steel" took stock of the country at the end of the first five months of the year.

Stalin's Six Points.

He then declared that several changes were necessary and outlined a future program embracing the following six points:

Readjustment of wages to make the scale commensurate with the type of labor performed, and the halt of workers from shifting from one place to another to improve their living conditions.

Remedy of the growing labor shortage by attracting more peasants to industries as agriculture progresses toward mechanization.

Improvement of the organization of labor in industry, in order to distribute the proper strength among factories and to end "irresponsible" methods.

Development by the working class of its own "intelligentsia" of skilled workers such as engineers and technicians.

Improvement of the policy toward specialists of the old order, to attract more of them to industry.

Increase of the interior sources of industry and development of the piecework system.

New Business Methods.

He also proposed the reversal to individualistic from collective business administration, saying that "new conditions demand new methods of work and leadership."

"Fulfillment of the production plan depends solely on ourselves and on our ability to utilize the existing wealth of opportunities," he said. "This is proved by the fact that the large numbers of factories and industries already have exceeded our plans.

Equal Wages Unfair.

"Even under socialism wages must be paid according to the work done, and not according to the needs of the workers."

"In many of our factories the wage system is such as to leave no difference between the skilled and unskilled worker and between hard and easy labor," Stalin continued. "This causes unskilled workers to lose interest in raising their qualifications in such a manner as to make themselves more valued.

"To give this shifting a free hand would undermine our industry, wreck our plan of production and stop improvement in the quality of manufactured goods. We must destroy such equal wages. It is unbearable to see the locomotive driver receiving the same wages as a bookkeeper."

Is Third Wage Policy.

This position marks the third policy regarding wages. After the revolution the scale was left to the individual industries, based on the approximate needs of the workers. Only recently the piecework system was installed, whereby the workers were paid according to production.

Stalin's recommendation for attracting more peasants and collective farmers to industries already has found expression in the government's decree, which offered special inducement in the form of privileges to the surplus agricultural labor entering industrial work.

To Break Up Corporations.

Stalin asserted it was necessary to break up the cumbersome corporations consisting of one or two hundred factories, so that the heads would really know the possibilities and work of their factories. He advocated individual administration of industries.

He promised better food, housing and cultural conditions for the workers, and added:

"The worker now demands to be satisfied with all cultural and other needs, and we must fulfill this demand."

Suspect Seized in Slaying of Game Warden

John Wersching, 25 years old, a painter of 1837 Burling street, was arrested in his home early this morning for questioning in connection with the murder of Charles Eldredge, McHenry county politician and state game warden, who was shot on his island tract near Richmond on Saturday afternoon.

The arrest was made by Sergt. Edward Hayes and his squad from the detective bureau at the request of Sheriff Lester Edinger of McHenry county. Notified that Wersching had been taken into custody, Sheriff Edinger said he and a squad of deputies would come to Chicago at once to take charge of the prisoner and return him to Woodstock.

Tells of Trip West of City.

Wersching made no resistance when he was awakened by the policeman in his home with his wife and a 3 year old daughter. According to Sergt. Hayes, he said he had been "out in the country west of Chicago" for two days, but did not volunteer a reason for his trip, and the policemen did not question him further, pending the arrival of Sheriff Edinger.

The arrest of Wersching, the sheriff indicated, was based on a supposedly illegal fishing permit issued from Cook county, which was found in the slain Eldredge's pocketbook. This paper was considered important because of the theory that the game warden was slain by a poacher or poachers whom he had arrested on his island game preserve.

Sheriff Edinger said he hoped to provide the Chicago police with information which would result in three or four other arrests in the city.

State Police at Scene.

Another clew in the murder is a fully loaded revolver which was found in Eldredge's pocket. The gun is believed to have been taken from the slayers. Eldredge was killed, however, with his own revolver, the same weapon which was used by the slayer of his brother, Earl, in 1907.

Because of Eldredge's state position, Capt. Hal Carr of Aurora, assistant chief of the state highway police, and Sergt. Herman Nofs yesterday were assigned to the investigation by Chief Walter Moody and Ralph E. Bradford, director of the state department of conservation.

Eldredge was a well known politician. He was a lawyer and practiced in Chicago for several years. He also served two terms in the state legislature. On the murder of his brother he returned to McHenry county.

Plane Strikes a Mountain; Six Are Killed

Lucerne Lake County, Cal., July 5.—[Special.]—Six persons, one a woman, were killed when a Travelair monoplane crashed into a mountain side near here today.

Three of the victims were well known coast golf stars. The victims were:

Hoffman, William, pilot of the plane.

Keller, Leon, a leading amateur golfer of California until he turned professional by working in a sporting goods store.

Kerrigan, Jack, one of the leading pro golfers in California and former professional at Rio Del Mar.

Lax, Mrs. Zigmunda, 35, of Long Beach, who was fiancée of Mr. Becker.

Flight Their "Reward."

The three golfers, with George Horan, another San Francisco links champion, came here over the Fourth to play exhibition matches on the Lucerne links for the entertainment of the holiday crowds. After the match Becker "rewarded" the foursome with an airplane flight.

"I'll take a rain check on my flight," said Horan as they prepared to take off.

The six entered the plane and had been flying about 20 minutes when the motor went dead. Hoffman tried to reach the flying field by gliding down a narrow canyon. The plane crashed into the mountainside and crumpled into splinters.

The five men were killed instantly and Mrs. Lax died a few minutes later. She and Mr. Becker were to have been married within a month She leaves a 7 year old daughter.

MacFadden's Plane Burned.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 5.—[Special.]—A six passenger Bellanca cabin monoplane owned by Bernarr MacFadden which yesterday carried the New York publisher to Dansville, near here, was destroyed by fire this evening at the Dansville air port. No one was in the plane at the time of the fire, the origin of which has not been learned. Unofficial estimates placed the damage at $30,000.

FINDS FRENCH PROPOSAL HAS 'JOKER' CLAUSE

New Orders Rushed to Mellon.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 6.—[Monday, 3 a. m.]—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon late last night received instructions from Washington directing him not to sign the text of the war debts moratorium accord submitted to the United States negotiators by the French ministers Saturday night unless substantial modifications are made.

This throws cold water on the high hopes in official quarters last evening [Sunday] that the receipt of the German note, giving formal assurance that Germany would not take advantage of the one year's debt holiday to increase her armaments, had removed the last obstacle in the path of winding up the negotiations this afternoon.

Action May Prolong Parley.

There is still a chance that the French government will modify its stand in time to reach agreement in this afternoon's conversation, but this seems slim. However, a complete French victory in obtaining political guarantees from Germany should prevent the situation from developing into a real deadlock, and for the moment the only danger seems to be a prolongation of the negotiations.

The unfavorable reply from Washington on the French text of the accord followed an inconclusive conference last night between Mr. Mellon and the French finance minister, Pierre Flandin, on the very thing which provoked some of President Hoover's objections—a continuation of payments in kind.

The French originally insisted on deliveries being continued integrally despite the moratorium. Washington, in Saturday's memorandum, countered with a suggestion that a committee of experts decide to what extent deliveries in kind can be suspended without upsetting private French and German enterprises.

"Joker" Slips by Mellon.

In the accord drawn up in the session Saturday night, it is understood that the French agreed "in principle" to the convocation of such a committee, but this clause contained a joker which passed unnoticed by the American negotiators here. In this clause the French clearly showed that they wanted the committee of experts, in reference to unsettled points, to have a free hand and not bound by instructions to settle the matters within the spirit of the President's proposal—to help Germany. But President Hoover upon scanning the draft evidently found the joker.

In discussing the technicalities of the situation with Flandin last night, Mr. Mellon succeeded in clearing away minor difficulties, but met a flat refusal on President Hoover's main premise—that cash payments to private industries responsible for carrying out the deliveries in kind be suspended, while the actual deliveries could be continued.

At the present the hitch is over how this could be done, and suggestions offered by both sides, such as an elaborate scheme of credits for private industries carrying out deliveries in kind, proved impractical.

"Contrary to Spirit of Proposal."

The French argue that contracts for deliveries in kind come under the head of private obligations and hence cannot be suspended. The American viewpoint is that the German government has to hand out $35,000,000 this year to insure the French share of payments in kind being carried out, and that this is equivalent to subtracting $35,000,000 from the benefit Germany gets out of the moratorium, which is considered contrary to the spirit of the Hoover proposal.

Even more serious than the difficulties arising out of deliveries in kind is the possibility that if France's right to continue to receive deliveries under existing contracts is upheld, other countries, notably Great Britain, will demand continued payments in the form of deliveries, thus cutting deeper into the German budget.

Situation "Not So Serious."

If the Washington reaction had been received in Paris yesterday afternoon, it would have been a bombshell, but dispatches telling of Chancellor Bruening's note, renders the situation less serious. It is felt here that the French will be so busy patting themselves on the back for having slipped one of their major points over on Uncle Sam for persuading Great Britain to obtain the pledge from Berlin that they will be less likely to raise trouble over technicalities.

But it is hard to see how France can be persuaded to yield immediately. What with the Franco-American conversations dragging on farther and the two conferences which must follow them—a conference of Young plan signatories and world bank officials over the guarantee fund and a conference of experts on deliveries in kind—it will be difficult to reach a settlement before July 15, when the next payments fall due.

May Spur Negotiators.

The necessity for reaching agreement for this reason may spur the negotiators to more determined efforts. Of course, if application of the moratorium is formally conditioned on the result of these two conferences, it will be impossible to finish before July 15. It is believed, however, that all the countries concerned will agree on the suspension of German payments if only technicalities remain.

It looks here as though Mr. Mellon and Ambassador Walter E. Edge, despite daily telephone conversations with Washington, succumbed to pressure brought to bear on them to reach a speedy decision and consented too hastily to the French text.

Refusal to accept it even as a basis for discussion would have prolonged the conversations here for a few days more, but it might have saved a greater delay in the end. The American negotiators, however, are still hopeful that the French will modify their stand sufficiently to reach a definitive agreement, if not today, before the middle of the week.

2 HURT ON TRAIN ARE DENIED COTS AT 3 HOSPITALS

Sitting at the door of a moving box car, with their legs dangling over the side, two trespassers suffered severe injuries yesterday when their legs were caught between the side of the car and a trestle.

The men gave the names of John Kelly, 45 years old, of New York City, and Thomas Gray, 35, of Brooklyn. The accident occurred on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy trestle over the Indiana Harbor Belt tracks at Brookfield.

Lieut. Stewart Schults and Policeman August Scieloff took Kelly and Gray to the Berwyn hospital. The injured men were given first aid, but were refused further care. Next they were taken to the county hospital. Again medical aid was given. They were denied admittance there because their cases were not deemed of emergency nature, nor were their injuries considered critical. Police, after trying unsuccessfully to enter the men into another hospital, finally took them to the Salvation Army shelter at 509 North Union avenue where they were accepted.

HOOVER SPEEDS TO WHITE HOUSE TO WATCH PACT

Ends His Holidays to Aid Loans.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—A new hitch in the debt moratorium negotiations in Paris caused President Hoover to leave his Rapidan camp this afternoon and hasten back to the White House.

The French memorandum setting forth the Paris government's understanding of the agreement so far reached at Paris was received this morning and found unsatisfactory by the President and his advisers, particularly as pertains to reparations experts. Instructions are being cabled to Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon tonight so to inform the French government when he meets with Premier Laval tomorrow.

In the memorandum he submitted to the French negotiators yesterday Mr. Mellon, declaring the two governments in accord on all major questions involved, proposed that the negotiations be terminated with an acceptance of the President's proposal by France and a reference of the minor matters still at issue to a committee of experts to adjust within the spirit of the Hoover moratorium plan.

U. S. Wants Instructed Experts.

When the text of the French memorandum was examined this morning Acting Secretary of State William R. Castle Jr. and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills discovered that, while the French assented to the reference of unsettled points to a committee of experts, they wanted the experts to have a free hand in the adjustment. They did not want the committee of experts bound by any instructions to settle the matters at issue within the spirit of the President's proposal, which, Mr. Hoover has explained, is to give the utmost possible relief to Germany.

Upon hearing this Mr. Hoover hastened back to Washington to supervise the preparation of the instructions to Mr. Mellon presenting the reasons for rejecting the French counter proposal.

Concerns Reparations in Kind.

According to the administration a committee of experts with a free hand might depart liberally from the President's plan with the result of reducing to a mere fraction the amount of unconditional reparations reloaned to Germany. In order to get his project accepted by France at all the President made the concessions that the unconditional German reparations, amounting to 130 millions of dollars, instead of being suspended for a year should be deposited in the international bank as usual and then reloaned to Germany. Thus France purposed to hold Germany to uninterrupted compliance with the Young plan.

Approximately 85 millions of these payments will be in kind on current contracts and this amount will go directly into the hands of the French government. But the French government has agreed not to retain any payment by Germany next year and Mr. Hoover is seeking to hold France to this promise. The spirit of his offer would require France to loan that $5 millions back to Germany as well as her share of the unconditional reparations deposited in the world bank. He wants the committee of experts bound to observe that procedure.

How System Works Out.

How the payments in kind are made may be illustrated by the case of a factory erected in France. The steel is manufactured in Germany and the German manufacturer receives his pay from the German government. The steel is shipped to France and the French factory owner pays the French government for the material. In that way the German government pays and the French government receives this class of reparations in money.

The state department declined to make the French memorandum public on the ground that authority to do so had not been given by Paris and that the text was somewhat garbled in transmission.

One difficulty was removed during the day by a statement made by Chancellor Bruening of the German government. The French had been balking at loaning reparations money back to Germany because of the professed fear that Germany would use the funds for armament. A pledge to do nothing of the sort was given by Chancellor Bruening in a statement which he asked Frederic M. Sackett, American ambassador to Germany, to transmit to the American government.

The statement, which was made public by the state department tonight, said:

"In view of the fears which have sprung up in some circles that the amounts released in the German budget by the relief from reparations payments might be used to increase armaments, I declare that an increase in the appropriation for the army and navy during the holiday year has never been contemplated nor will it take place. The aggregate alleviations accruing to Germany from the Hoover plan are required and will be used in their entirety to cover the deficits in revenue which are to be expected, to consolidate financial conditions, and to save German economic life."

PLEDGE 'FORCED' BY FRANCE NOT TO BUY ARMS IRKS GERMANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 5.—The announcement that Chancellor Heinrich Bruening had sent formal assurances to Washington that Germany will not use the money she saves through the Hoover debt moratorium plan for armament purposes spread gloom in political circles tonight, because political leaders see in it "a French attempt to humiliate the Germans anew."

"Anybody who can do addition knows that Germany will need every cent she can collect to continue to pay doles and straighten out her budget," said August Abel, a member of the reichstag, and a score of others assembled in an informal meeting. "To surmise she would spend the money saved on armaments is a deliberate insult after all the sacrifices Germany has made for the sake of the good will of the world."

Contrary to expectations, the Reichsbank tonight did not lower the gold and foreign exchange coverage of Reichsbank notes. It failed to lower the coverage because of an understanding that the Hoover reparations moratorium plan was practically ready for acceptance and would be published at once. The Reichsbank indicated that it considers a crisis averted by even refraining from further boosting the discount rate.

GERMANS UNVEIL SHAFT FOR MAN WHO 'FREED RHINE'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MAINZ, Germany, July 5. — A wreath, decorated with German colors from President von Hindenburg and the German cabinet, and another from Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, adorned with French colors, at the foot of a column surmounted by a bust of the late German foreign minister, Gustav Stresemann, which was unveiled at noon today in a marble memorial on the bank of the Rhine here, were seen by thousands as an omen of good will which may bring the French and German nations together.

"Slowly the tension is beginning to ease and we do not doubt that the debt holiday of a year proposed by President Hoover will soon be enforced and that the economic readjustment it will bring about will result in durable peace," Foreign Minister Julius Curtius declared, standing at the bronze door of the memorial erected to Herr Stresemann, who was praised as "the liberator" of the Rhineland.

Tells of Stresemann's Victory.

"In 1923 when Herr Stresemann took the reins, France was in the Ruhr," Dr. Curtius added. In 1929 when he died the liberation of the Rhineland was assured and this tremendous progress was achieved with only the weapons of mind and spirit."

He exhorted his countrymen not to heed the call to violence of the radicals, but to always remember what Stresemann achieved without violence.

After Dr. Curtius spoke the doors of the memorial were opened. The foreign minister with the wreaths from his government and from the league of nations, which he represented as its chairman, stepped up, while hundreds followed him with large and small floral tributes from Germany and the rest of the world.

Fascist Interrupts Address.

Dr. Curtius was insistent on the power of mind in solving foreign relations and other problems, because a few minutes before he gave his address a Fascist supporter of the theories of violence had tried to break up the ceremony.

After Edward Dingeldey, Reichstag member and chairman of the People's party had paid tribute to Stresemann, the Fascist with a stentorian voice jumped up to the microphone and shouted: "Germany, awake!" recognized as the Fascist slogan for inciting the masses to arise. Police arrested him.

BOY BLEEDS TO DEATH.

Konstanis Baker, 13 years old, 1825 Hastings street, died in the county hospital yesterday from loss of blood. The boy was playing in the alley at the rear of his home, June 30, and fell on the sharp edges of a tin can, severing an artery in his side.

RUSSIA BLAMED FOR COLLAPSE OF WORLD TRADE

Holds Prosperity Key, Says German Potash King.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 5.—"The Hoover plan, if enforced, will provide the world with temporary relief, but the roots of the evil from which the world is suffering are deeper than reparations and deeper than a temporary shortage of capital, and until the doctor has put his finger on the wound, real recovery is impossible. The systematic shrinkage of world markets caused from Moscow is responsible for the world crisis and I will prove it to you."

This bold statement was made today by Arnold Rechberg, potash king of Germany and one of the most interesting captains of industry, in an interview.

"For a clear analysis we must look backward; from 1830 until the day the world war broke out new markets kept opening up all along," he continued. "Factory owners were kept busy to provide industrial goods. In this span of years the United States developed from an agricultural country into the industrial giant of the world. Huge markets were ready in shape: American and European goods in China, India, Japan, Australia, South America, and Africa.

The Growth of Industry.

"With the spread of world markets production grew. In those days the man who increased the size of his plant sometimes, in hard years, could not always immediately find a market, but if he had funds to hold out a year or two, markets opened up and contemporaries spoke of him as a man with foresight and vision.

"Since the end of the war markets have been shrinking. Here we must speak in passing of the Versailles treaty. It put the blinkers of hate on the European nations. It disorganized European industries, crippling and amputating some and fostering artificial growth in others in small, new born nations where they could not develop, making it easy for emissaries from Moscow to get a foothold in Europe.

"But a huge scheme to shrink the world markets and bring misery to the present civilization dwarfs the insane errors of the Versailles treaty.

Bases Russia for Conditions.

"Through the Red rule of Moscow the world is deprived of Russian markets at crucial moments. Russian agents keep revolutions going in China to deprive the world of Chinese markets. Their men are spreading unrest and discord in India and the Far Indies. The power of consumption of these countries is being reduced constantly and I have no doubt that the day is not far off when Russian intrigues will have deprived world industry of about 300,000,000 buyers in the Chinese, Indian and other markets.

"If the far east and other countries can't buy manufactured goods, men in the factories will lose their jobs and millions of jobless will concentrate in jobless centers. Factories, which cannot sell, cannot buy raw materials produced in India, China, Africa, the East Indies and America. Thus the buying power of these countries continues to lessen automatically at the same time reducing the buying power and increasing joblessness in the industrial countries.

"This vicious circle is hard to break, and indeed I cannot see how it can be broken without most drastic measures. President Hoover in his proposal, diagnosed rightly that the business world is suffering from reparations illness. That is only part of the disease.

"A study of present market conditions and police reports on the activities of soviet agents, reveal that they and their aides are undertaking a systematic shrinkage of world markets and ripping down all possibilities of a return to prosperity."

Ready in August

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—For the first time in the forty-five years that the statue of Liberty has held aloft the emblematic torch of freedom in New York harbor the celebrated monument is to be repaired. It will undergo a special electric "beauty treatment."

The work of statuary beauty culture, it was announced today, will begin soon and be completed late in August.

WORLD FLYERS TO BE HOOVER GUESTS TODAY

Post and Gatty Will Fly to Washington.

New York, July 5.—(AP)—Two days of rest and relaxation in the quiet of Long Island sound have fitted the world flyers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, for their next fling with fame, a White House luncheon.

They were headed back for New York early tonight on the yacht Saelmo, whose owner, William H. Todd, shipbuilder, has been their host since Friday.

For more than 48 hours the two men have been able to sleep, to loll in deck chairs, to fish, and to golf to their heart's content.

The only scheduled event of their program today was a stop at Hampton Bays, Long Island, where the entire party, including the flyers' wives and F. C. Hall, backer of the flight, were guests for luncheon at the home of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

The crowds that would have dogged the path of the men who girdled the globe in less than nine days, had they been within reach, went out to Barren Island over the week-end instead. There tens of thousands saw the roped off plane, Winnie Mae.

Tonight the ship was put in shape for its next hop, a trip to Washington tomorrow morning, where the flyers and their backer will be guests of President Hoover. They will return to Barren Island late tomorrow and prepare for the triumphal flight into Oklahoma, the state Hall and Post call home.

Slips on Rainier Glacier; Falls 1,200 Feet to Death

Seattle, Wash., July 5.—[Special.]—Within 300 feet of his goal, the summit of Mount Rainier, Robert K. Zinn, Oregon State college football player, today slipped on the icy peak, slid at dazzling speed 1,500 feet down a glacier while he tried vainly to check his descent, hurtled across a crevasse and dropped to his death over a sheer ice wall 1,200 feet high.

PHYSICIAN BATTLES SUBURBAN CHIEF ON ROAD AND IN STATION

After a lively scene in the Blue Island police station last night Dr. C. E. Steckbauer, 6125 Kenwood avenue, and his wife, who is also a physician, were locked in a cell. Charges of resisting a policeman, assault and battery, disorderly conduct, speeding, reckless driving, and passing a stoplight were placed against Dr. Steckbauer. His wife was charged only with disorderly conduct.

Chief of Police A. A. Terry of Midlothian was the complainant. He asserted that he ordered the Steckbauers to halt their car after they passed a stop sign and they both got out and attacked him. In the battle the chief's uniform and his shirt were torn. With the aid of a young man who accompanied him the chief won and took the couple to the Blue Island lockup.

There the physician, claiming that Chief Terry's assistant had slugged him with a blackjack, demanded that charges be placed against him. The chief stated that he used the blackjack himself. The battle began again then. When a halt was called the additional charges were placed. Unable to furnish at once bonds of $5,000 for the doctor and $1,000 for the wife, the couple were held in jail. Dr. Steckbauer is on the staff of the Illinois Eye and Ear infirmary.

FRED IS IN BAD AND 18 PENNIES ADD TO TROUBLES

Fred Bremer, 37 years old, of 2538 Lincoln avenue, was found in the home of John Winterstein at 1238 Roscoe street last night when the Wintersteins returned home from a holiday absence. Screams of Mrs. Winterstein, who entered the house first, sent Bremer out a rear door, and into the arms of her husband and a son, Eugene. They sat on Bremer until police arrived. An inventory of the loss showed the disappearance of eighteen Indian head pennies. A search of Bremer's pockets revealed eighteen Indian head pennies.

BRADLEYS FIND PYGMY CANNIBAL TRIBE IN AFRICA

Chicagoans Come Out of "Dark Continent."

PARIS, July 5.—(AP)—Suppression of cannibalism among the pygmy tribes in the Belgian Congo "works about like prohibition in the United States," Herbert Bradley, African explorer of the Bradley-Gigelow's expedition, said today upon his arrival here after six months' investigation in the "Dark Continent."

HERBERT BRADLEY

Traveling in the Congo forests with his wife and daughter, Alice, Bradley said he found an extremely small tribe, the tallest man being four feet and two inches in height. Full grown mothers were three feet six inches tall and were addicted to eating human flesh.

Head Long as a Pumpkin.

Belgian authorities said Bradley was doing everything possible to correct this native appetite, but the remoteness of the country and the secretive habits of the tribe made this task very difficult.

Bradley said the so-called long-headed tribes acquired this characteristic by mothers binding the heads of their infants. The explorer reported that he met a most intelligent tribesman "with a head as long as a pumpkin. He was the most interesting man I met in all Africa."

Cross Africa in Trucks.

The explorer also investigated the African territory under French mandate, arriving there last January. The party crossed France's equatorial Africa on trucks and for 2,250 miles saw only six automobiles.

The Bradleys live in Chicago.

School Engineer and Two Janitors Seized.

Three men, one a school engineer who owns a 33 apartment building, and the others janitors, were being held at the detective bureau last night for questioning in connection with a mysterious bombing early yesterday morning in the terminal yards of the Chicago Rapid Transit line at Howard street.

The trio are John Graff, 43 years old, owner of the building at 7750 Haskins avenue, just east of the "L" tracks, and for twenty years an employé of the board of education; John Bauer, his janitor, and Arthur Nelson, janitor of another building.

Deny Knowledge of Bombing.

All denied any knowledge of the bombing. Graff admitted he had made several complaints to the transit company regarding noises made by trains in the yards late at night.

It was about 3:45 a. m. that the blast occurred. The device used was a triple bomb, constructed of pipe, the sections linked by an 18 foot fuse. Only one of the sections of the bomb exploded, the blast jarring loose the connecting fuse. Little damage was done.

Saw Graff on Porch.

Joseph Kellar, 103 North Raymond avenue, Barrington, the yard foreman, and Fred Sirr, night trainmaster, ran to the scene. Kellar told police later he noticed Graff standing on his back porch, fully dressed.

"You'd better not go over; there might be a couple more," Graff said, according to Kellar.

A few minutes later the foreman found the two unexploded sections of the bomb. Sergt. Romaine Goudie entered the Graff apartment and found him in bed fully clothed and under a quilt. He admitted talking to Kellar.

Finds Pipes in Basement.

Further investigation led to the basement of Graff's apartment. Several pipes, similar to those used for the bombing, were found, Sergt. Goudie said. Also a small bag of smokeless powder was discovered lying next to the fence and inside the Graff yard. Graff said the pipes were used by his janitor, Bauer. He knew nothing of the powder.

At the detective bureau Graff was questioned by Chief of Detectives John Norton. He repeated his denials of any knowledge of the bombing. He also repeated his admission of his conversation with Kellar, and acknowledged he had made complaint several times against noises made by trains switching in the yards at night.

Active in Politics.

He told police he was employed as an engineer at the Helen Pierce school at 1423 Bryn Mawr avenue. He also described himself as a precinct captain and active in politics in Rogers Park.

Illinoisan Is Identified as Robber of Iowa Bank

Council Bluffs, Ia., July 5.—(AP)—Walter Pine, 30, Clayton, Ill., today was identified by D. E. Wilkins, cashier of the Moville, Ia., bank, as the bandit who early on the morning of Jan. 9, last, robbed the Moville bank of $6,000. Pine later confessed.

Enrollment for Summer Schools Shows Decrease

Summer school enrollment in the Chicago public school system this year totals 30,015, a decrease of 2,045 from the enrollment of last year. Of the total enrollment 11,298 students are enrolled in the senior high schools, 4,996 in the junior high schools, 602 in Crane college, 1,157 in normal college, and 178 in the Lane prevocational school.

DR. C. J. LUNAK.

With the exception of the junior high schools all branches show a decrease over the enrollment of a year ago. According to school officials the increase in junior high school registration caused by added buildings, compensates the loss in elementary school enrollment by, taking many of the seventh and eighth grade students.

Cites Three Causes.

The decrease in enrollment is laid to three causes by Dr. Charles J. Lunak, assistant superintendent of schools. He explained that two things motivated summer registration: the desire for advance credits and the necessity of making up deficiencies.

The three causes listed by Dr. Lunak are the hot weather of the last week, the depression forcing many of the parents to withhold necessary carfare, and the increasing popularity of junior high schools. This summer, according to Dr. Lunak, only students forced to make up deficiencies are attending summer courses.

The following table shows the comparative registrations in the major branches for the two years:

Senior high schools	11,298	11,862
Junior high schools	4,996	4,692
Elementary schools	11,784	13,597
Normal college	1,157	1,077
Crane college	602	649
Lane prevocational	178	182

Classes will start at 8 a. m. and continue to 1 p. m. with recess at 10 o'clock and luncheon at 11 o'clock. Full courses in cultural subjects, including music, drawing, art work and manual training are given.

Open Centers Today.

This morning six recreational centers will open for the summer. The centers are situated at the Jenner, Kosciuszko, Greene, Willard, Thorp, and Smythe schools. The centers will close Aug. 17.

In the recreational centers courses in art, kindergarten, handicraft, music, games, sewing, cooking, drama and manual training will be conducted.

The governor's commission on unemployment and relief has given $5,000 to the board of education to aid in the provision of food to undernourished children during the summer whether they are in school or not.

SUMMER BUSY TIME FOR RURAL SCHOOL PUPILS

Home Project Contest Is Broadened.

The summer months do not mean vacation days for the 15,000 pupils in the 175 rural schools in Cook county. Not only are most of the boys and girls farm residents where summer means taking care of a garden, plowing corn, raising chickens and milking, but an educational outline is followed just as in the winter months.

J. J. TOBIN.

In the opinion of Edward J. Tobin, superintendent of county schools, pupils must "learn to do by doing." This philosophy he has instilled in the schools under his jurisdiction.

Require Home Project Work.

For five years the county school system has conducted the home project plan. In addition to the academic work required, similar to that required in the Chicago public schools, each student must earn sixteen credits in home project work. The work is as varied as the students. It includes raising of blooded stock, outside reading, farm work, growing of prize fruit and vegetables and physical education.

As an additional incentive during the last two years a summer contest has been conducted by Mr. Tobin in which prizes are awarded. Last summer the program, which consisted of tree planting, was somewhat restricted, in the opinion of the school head.

This year the program is varied. The contest is divided into three major classifications: school home projects, including growing of crops, care of chickens, pigs or cattle and kindred farm work; vacation activities outside of school home projects, including social activities, intellectual activities, outing activities and activities that prepare for the enjoyment of leisure; and financial activities, listing the amount earned and the method of earning it, initiative shown, what has been done with the money.

Directors Inspect Work.

During the summer six country life directors tour throughout the county visiting the students and inspecting the work. Inspection is made of the youth's proficiency in his home project plans and items such as swimming and his choice in literature.

Labor day three pupils will be chosen from each of the six districts. Until the first Saturday in October they will be given time to prepare the results of their summer work and make a written statement. Then they will appear before four judges in the offices of Superintendent Tobin.

The judges are selected from four major fields: Business, education, labor, and health. Each pupil will be aided in his report by the county life director of his district.

Bank Accounts for Prizes.

Awards in the form of bank books with credit will be made to the winners in seven classes: 1st prize, $50; 2d prize, $15; 3d prize, $10; 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th prizes of $5 each.

All students who have completed at least one school-home project during the last school year and all 1931 achievement graduates are eligible. In addition, the pupil must be at least 11 years of age, have the consent and coöperation of his parents, shall pursue at least one home project during the summer months and must read one approved book.

ALL MUST BACK POPE, EUCHARIST CONGRESS TOLD

200,000 Pray for Victory Over Mussolini.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LILLE, France, July 5.—The conflict between Pope Pius XI. and Premier Mussolini had a dramatic repercussion at the International Eucharistic congress here today when a special emissary arrived from the pontiff, asking that mass be said for him and requesting the assembled high clergy and lay faithful to pray for his success in the battle in which it was declared the future of the church is at stake.

Achilles Cardinal Liénart, bishop of Lille and papal legate to the congress, offered pontifical mass in response to the holy father's plea, and later, in simple terms, to the hushed, troubled congregation of three cardinals, 50 archbishops, and 200,000 faithful from all parts of Europe, Montreal, Chicago, Sydney, Jerusalem, and elsewhere, laid the terms of the pontiff's plea for prayers before them.

Asks All Catholics' Support.

It was a tremendous climax to the growing tension over the strife in Rome, a tension which today reached its culmination as the pope's sensational encyclical became generally known.

Following the stirring services, Cardinal Liénart, serving as formal spokesman for himself and other cardinals, as well as for archbishops and bishops attending the congress, declared:

"The holy father has just issued an encyclical of exceptional gravity. The future of the church is at stake in the present conflict; therefore the duty of all the faithful is clear: they must not only give the holy father complete loyalty but also support him with their most fervent prayers.

"The events happening on the other side of the Alps have exceptional seriousness for the future of the church, which requires of all Catholics in all countries complete loyalty to the ideas proclaimed by the pope.

Believe Break Averted.

ROME, July 5.—(AP)—The threatened break between the government of Italy and the Vatican will be averted, it was learned on good authority today, through a decision of Pope Pius XI. and Premier Mussolini to avoid any precipitate action.

Premier Mussolini's position, it is known, might be expressed in the phrase, "the state goes on its way" regardless of criticism made by Pope Pius in his encyclical.

The pope, for his part, is continuing to maintain that the church is "suffering persecution," and it was said that he is refusing to consider, for the moment at least, the withdrawal of the papal nuncio to Rome.

About 150,000 copies of his encyclical were distributed in the churches of Rome today and additional copies are being printed for distribution throughout the provinces.

Michigan Woman Sees Gain in Business on Tour

Richmond, Va., July 5.—(AP)—An optimistic note was sounded tonight by Miss Marion H. McClench of Ann Arbor, Mich., president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, leader of 2,500 delegates to the convention here this week.

She said in an interview that the period of business depression had passed its turning point and now is on the upgrade.

"I have traveled 60,000 miles in the last two years, and my reaction from people throughout the United States with whom I have come in contact is that the situation is clearing up," she said.

Miss McClench, who is to preside over the six day convention, arrived on the president's special from Chicago. The train brought delegates from western and midwestern states.

PROHIBIT WAGE CUT IN WORK ON NEW POSTOFFICE

Official Notice for Bids Is Made Public Here.

Laborers and building trades mechanics on Chicago's new $26,000,000 postoffice, under the law, must be paid the prevailing rate of wages in Chicago, according to the official notice calling for bids which was made public yesterday. The contract maximum is $14,500,000.

ANTHONY CZARNECKI.

Bids for the work, including the furnishing of the materials, were called for by the treasury department on June 29. These bids are to be opened on Aug. 10 and perhaps ten days will be needed for the supervising architect of the department to consider them. Ten days more may be allowed the contractor to file a satisfactory bond; then the work may begin—possibly in early September.

Czarnecki Posts Notice.

A number of safeguards have been placed about the construction work. The notice calling for bids and posted by Collector of Customs Anthony Czarnecki informs prospective bidders that the postoffice, to be built over railroad tracks, will be about 800 feet long by 344 feet wide, with the main building nine stories high and with twelve story pylons at the four corners.

In awarding the contract, no consideration will be given bidders who have not constructed within the last six years at least one building costing as much as $5,000,000 and comparable in design to the new postal building. Consideration may be given, however, to a firm which cannot fulfill this condition but which has in its membership an individual who can so qualify.

Sets of drawings and specifications, when completed, will be furnished prospective bidders only on deposit of $100 per set to guarantee their safe return. In making bids those who want the work are required to give a full description of their financial resources and the extent of the firm's organization.

Law Requires Standard Wages.

The provision that the regular scale of wages must be paid to all laborers and mechanics follows the requirements of an act of congress approved on March 3, 1931.

This act states that in every instance where a contract is made by the government or the District of Columbia for construction or repair of public buildings where the total cost is more than $5,000, the contract itself must specify that the wages paid workmen shall not be lower than those prevailing for similar work in the community where the public building is located.

Although the exact meaning of "prevailing rate of wages" is not refined further in the act, it is provided that in the event of any dispute the evidence shall be placed before the secretary of labor, whose decision shall be final. Both labor organizations and contractors assume that the full union scales will be paid union workers.

The act relating to wage rates became effective on April 2 and may be set aside only by the President in the event of a national emergency.

CERMAK O. K.'S CITY WORKERS' OFFER TO GIVE UP PART OF PAY

Mayor Cermak said yesterday that the plan submitted by city employes as an alternative to the proposal for an enforced two weeks' vacation without pay will be acceptable to him if it is to the department heads. The employes plan is that for fourteen weeks, starting July 12, all city employes be docked one-seventh of their weekly pay, which would effect the same saving as the original plan.

"It doesn't make much difference which plan is adopted," said Mayor Cermak, "providing the saving is made. Col. Sprague [commissioner of public works] is chairman of the committee considering the vacation plan, and if the employes' substitute proposal is acceptable to him and to the department heads it will be acceptable to me. The city must retrench in expenditures."

Col. Sprague has referred the plan to the council finance committee. It will be discussed on Tuesday at a meeting of the committee with representatives of labor as will the original plan for the payless vacation.

MAYOR REPORTS 8.7% REDUCTION IN CITY EXPENSE

Jacobs Demands Decrease in Realty Taxes.

Mr. Jacobs adds more emphasis to this position in his written statement to the Brittain revenue committee, which was appointed as a result of Gov. Emmerson's conference called last week to start action on a legislative tax program. In his statement Mr. Jacobs says:

"The existing inequitable and burdensome property taxes must be reduced while the essential public services vital to public health, safety, and education must be maintained. Recurrent breakdowns of local public credit must be avoided.

"These can be accomplished only through the elimination of waste, real retrenchment, and rigorous economy, and through immediate constructive action in connection with governmental simplification and economy without sacrifice of efficiency in public administration."

No Legislation Required.

No legislation whatsoever is needed, in Mr. Jacobs' opinion, to put certain of his recommendations, as follows, into effect:

"A. Retrenchment and reduction in expenditures and taxes through elimination of unnecessary positions and services, and purchases at lower cost.

"B. Reduction in tax delinquencies through vigorous enforcement of the real and personal property collections by the county treasurer, state's attorney, and the county court.

"C. Reduction in tax levies by local governments upon continued enforcement of the above and increased collections of license and other fees prescribed by existing ordinances.

"D. Equitable and expeditious completion of quadrennial assessment and tax collections."

Among Mr. Jacobs' 15 suggestions for legislation, as "minimum requirements to restore public confidence and governmental credits," are the following:

"Reduction in real estate taxes to the extent of passage of state income tax with complete offset for property taxes and distribution of income in counties where collected.

"Reduction in tax rates to the extent of reduction in interest charges through the issuance of working cash bonds in lieu of tax anticipation warrants.

"Reduction in tax rates to conform to lower price level and increased purchasing power for the dollar.

"Reduction in pay roll expenditures through passage of comprehensive civil service for all county offices.

Unity Taxing System.

"Adoption of unified system of tax assessment and review, with single staff, in Cook county.

"Semi-annual collection of taxes when such system is established.

"Strengthening and improving personal property assessment administration and more equitable distribution of the tax burden through elimination of assessments which result in double taxation."

Added significance is given to these and other suggestions of Mr. Jacobs because he has been the efficiency expert of Mr. Cermak in county affairs for eight years, and is now investigating city affairs for the mayor. Jacobs agrees with the axiom of tax students that cut in government expense is a prerequisite to a tax reduction.

Meet Next Thursday.

The subject of cutting expenses will probably not be taken up by the Brittain committee this week. Its next session, tentatively set for this evening, has been postponed until Thursday, when it will be held at the Union League club. Mr. Brittain said yesterday that the committee will, at that time, listen to the proposals of the real estate boards to issue bonds in lieu of the 1930 taxes.

"We will attempt to ascertain whether the idea is feasible and practicable," said Mr. Brittain, "and then whether the methods for putting it into effect are legal.

"But first thing tomorrow we will start collecting information of local governmental expenses and to what extent and how they can be reduced. That is a highly important subject. It will get our early consideration, but I doubt whether we will have any bearing on the subject this week."

Hunt in Vain for Convict Who Escaped in Golf Suit

Arthur A. Miller, life termer and trusty who escaped from the Joliet penitentiary on Saturday afternoon by donning the golf clothes of Philip Hill, son of Warden Henry C. Hill, was still at liberty last night. Searchers found the golf club he swung as he fled through the prison yard to a field about a quarter of a mile east of the penitentiary. The prison authorities have broadcast a message asking for the arrest of Miller, who was sent to Joliet from Rock Island county in 1919 after being convicted of [illegible]

14 CLOSED BANKS UNDER SCRUTINY OF PROSECUTORS

Bureau Seeks Evidence of Criminality.

Fourteen of the banks closed in Cook county have come under the scrutiny of the special bank bureau established in the state's attorney's office, it was announced yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Henry E. Ayers, who is in charge. Indictments have been returned in seven of the bank failure cases while the other seven cases are still open to investigation for evidences of crookedness.

Inexperience in banking methods caused the downfall of some of the institutions so far investigated, according to Assistant State's Attorney Leonard M. Rice, who is a member of the special bank bureau. The prosecutor pointed out that in one case, particularly, a plumber was allowed by the banking laws to go into the banking business.

Favors Stricter Laws.

The banking laws should be made so strict that only men experienced in banking should be allowed to handle funds of the general public, the prosecutor said. This would cause a minimum of danger to bank depositors, he added.

The banking bureau of the prosecutor's office started off with only Prosecutor Ayers and an auditor. This branch of work, however, has shown such an increase that the bureau has been enlarged to take the constant services of three prosecutors, Ayers, Rice and Vovle Johnson; eight auditors, one clerk and a stenographer.

Prosecutors Ayers and Rice made it plain that their department was only interested in the bank failures which involve criminality, and not in the many institutions which have been closed during the business depression through no criminal fault of the officials.

The bank cases investigated by the prosecutor's office where indictments have been returned are as follows:

Maywood State bank, Elmer Langguth, president, and Lavergne Lindgren, cashier. Both have been convicted and are waiting only action on their appeal for a rehearing from the Supreme court, before starting their 1 to 10 year penitentiary sentences. Langguth was a former town politician before going into the bank business and Miss Lindgren, a telephone operator.

Laramie State bank, Carl A. Mueller, former plumber, president. He and four others are indicted in three pending cases. Mueller was acquitted in one indictment in which he was named alone.

Banker Is Fugitive.

Exchange State bank, Roscoe H. H. Luckenbill, president. He and four others are named in five indictments. Luckenbill, who had previous bank experience in a downstate institution which failed, is still a fugitive from justice.

City State bank, Attorney Seymour Stedman, prominent Socialist lawyer, was vice president. This was his initial banking venture. He and eleven others are named in a series of four indictments.

Citizens' State Bank of Melrose Park, Charles J. Wolfe, president. He is charged with embezzlement. This bank is still under investigation.

Binga State bank, Jesse Binga, president. He formerly was in the real estate business. He and four others are named in five indictments.

Facing New Charges.

Roosevelt Bankers State bank, Alexander Flower, chairman of the board; Sam Flower, president, and Frank Flower, vice president. They formerly were in the wholesale clothing business. They are named in four pending indictments and additional evidence is to be presented to the grand jury later. They were tried and acquitted on one of the charges.

The prosecutors refused at this time to make public the names of the other defunct institutions where criminality is suspected.

SEEK MISSING GIRL.

The police have been asked to search for Miss Helena Geisen, 19 years old, who has been missing from the Chicago sanitarium at 1838 Prairie avenue since Friday. She has blue eyes and red hair.

ACTRESS VANISHES

EVELYN WILSON.

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—Evelyn Wilson, a 24 year old actress, described as "extremely beautiful," has been missing from her home more than 12 hours under circumstances that have caused her family to fear she may have been kidnaped.

Miss Wilson left a birthday party early today, saying she wished to visit a drug store and purchase something to relieve a headache. Some time later a detective squad found the young woman's purse in the street; it contained $5.74 in bills and change.

Mrs. Anna Wilson, mother of the missing girl, said her daughter had expressed fear of kidnapping because she had been followed by two men on several occasions.

KILLED IN AUTO COLLISION.

Bloomington, Ill., July 5.—[Special.]—Edward Ward, 35, of the Commercial Solvents company, Peoria, was killed early today when the automobile in which he was riding collided with another near Bloomington. Chester Beverage, Lexington, driver of the car in which Ward was riding, was arrested.

JUDGE TO RULE ON CANAL LEGAL PAY ROLL CASES

Disciplinary Move Against 55 Attorneys.

Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor, sitting as commissioner of the Illinois Supreme court in the disciplinary proceedings brought by the Chicago Bar association against 55 lawyers who were members of the sanitary district law department during the "whoopee days," will deliver his decision on Wednesday afternoon. The decision is expected definitely to enlish the ethical relationship of lawyers to governmental clients, a phase of law never before passed upon by courts.

JUDGE THOMAS TAYLOR.

The bar association brought the action before the Supreme court after months of investigation following the pay roll scandal in the sanitary district. Hector A. Brouillet and Maclay Hoyne, former chiefs of the law department, were charged with having permitted an excessive number of payrollers, paying grossly excessive salaries, and allowing fraud in paying attorneys for no service in the information filed by the association. The remaining 53 lawyers were charged with having profited on pay roll plunder.

Asks Disciplinary Action.

The bar association asked that the attorneys be disciplined at the discretion of the court, pointing as possibilities disbarment, suspension, and censure. Several of the lawyers have returned money received from the district.

Judge Taylor was appointed as commissioner to hear the case last December. The hearing opened on Jan. 12. The trial continued until early in June, when final arguments were made. At the trial the chiefs of the department were unable to remember many of the attorneys named in the action or their work. Lawyers told of receiving appointments through political pressure and of doing no work for their salaries.

Though the case is considered a unit it in reality consists of 55 cases, as each attorney is considered separately in the information. The bar association was represented by Willard Matheny and the attorneys were represented by a battery of lawyers. More than 70 briefs were submitted to Judge Taylor.

Works on Decision for Month.

Because of the complexity of the case and the fact that ethical relationship of attorneys and clients, particularly when the latter are governmental bodies, has been the subject of legal commentaries rather than court decisions, Judge Taylor has been studying sources since the opening of the case. The judge has been working on his decision for a month and is now completing it.

The decision is to be delivered to the Supreme court after announcement to the attorneys in the county building. The Supreme court is expected to act on the decision at the October term.

MR. SNOWDEN'S "FURTHER SACRIFICES."

Philip Snowden, the chancellor of the British exchequer, informed the house of commons on Friday that Britain will make no further sacrifices to achieve the Hoover moratorium unless the other powers go along. Mr. Snowden was speaking of the guarantee fund which France is required to set up under the Young plan. Great Britain's "further sacrifice" to which Mr. Snowden so feelingly referred, it appears, amounts to some $18,000,000 next year.

Mr. Snowden, of course, may have been intending merely to bring pressure on France to accept the Hoover proposal, but even so the form of expression which he employed is worthy of attention. He spoke of "further sacrifice." This year, if the plan is accepted, Great Britain will sacrifice less than $20,000,000 even if nothing is received from the unconditional reparations. This is in contrast to the $245,000,000 which the United States, which is to say the taxpayers of the United States, will shoulder. Britain's sacrifice and her further sacrifice added to it are relatively negligible.

The French negotiators are taking pains to see that France will not be out of pocket. Whatever she forgoes will be in the form of a loan upon which interest and principal are to be returned. The more the matter of the salvation of Germany is examined, the more obvious it becomes that the United States is cast in the role of savior. The other nations concerned will talk a great deal about sacrifices and at the same time assure themselves that the sacrifices will be inconsiderable. The United States will, as usual, hold the sack.

Having turned the scale of the victory for the allies and having made possible their profitable seizure of German territory and property in Europe and elsewhere, the United States is now to rescue the Germans from the consequences of allied greed and vindictiveness. Mr. Snowden's "further sacrifices" are impossible in this country if only because we have already sacrificed everything that we are entitled to.

WISCONSIN LAWMAKERS.

The biennial session of the Wisconsin legislature closed facing the necessity of a special session to put the La Follette forces in order for the campaign of 1932 when the governor will, almost without question, ask the voters for a second term.

The session ended without final action on the three subjects which Gov. La Follette urged most extensively during his campaign, regulation of chain banking, curbing of chain stores and remolding of the corrupt practices act.

On the subject of taxation, the administration rated its greatest achievement, with a net increase of $6,500,000, a total increase of $11,000,000 minus $4,500,000 consequent to the repeal of the personal property tax and mill taxes. The increase was derived chiefly from doubling the two cent per gallon gasoline tax, which is expected to relieve motorists of $9,000,000 more per year than they have been paying.

The gasoline tax was crowded through almost the first of the session in the holy name of unemployment relief. It was to be spent specifically in hiring men to eliminate grade crossings. Pursuant to a demand of the senate just prior to adjournment, the highway department reported that work was proceeding on 22 grade crossings with an average of 66 men employed on each. A total of 1,452 men at work from the $9,000,000 gasoline tax. The legislature failed to provide any fixed plan for increased road expenditures in keeping with the receipts. The administration offered no program.

Other increased taxes were those of motor trucks expected to raise $625,000; insurance and telephone taxes to raise $525,000, ultimately from the users of telephones and the holders of insurance policies, and an increase of $300,000 in income taxes.

The legislature neglected to provide means of improving the care of the state's dependents, who must continue to huddle in cramped quarters for another two years unless help comes from the special session, which is considered by no means probable. This failure was in spite of an impressive campaign by Col. John J. Hannan, a leader in the La Follette camp since the earlier days of La Follette the elder, for money to put state institutions into shape to care properly for the persons committed to them.

With labor, organized labor, the administration strengthened its position. The new labor code took the teeth from the use of injunctions in labor disputes, struck definitely at the so-called yellow dog contracts and enacted definitions of privileges and procedures in strikes. As a result of the code, organized labor stands in a happier position in Wisconsin than in almost any other state.

The utilities act, if confirmed by state referendum and approved by another legislature, will permit municipalities to go into the power and light business. This was the sum total of a vigorous campaign to direct and control public utilities.

The session was notable for the number of undesirable measures that did not pass.

The dominant impression of the legislature by the citizen at home during the entire session was of an intensive and energetic scramble to find more ways to tax him. No member of either house attracted any public regard through his search for any means of reducing expenses. It seems doubtful if any one thought of that, although the citizen at home was having to do it every day in his private affairs.

Gov. La Follette introduced a novelty in demanding a date certain for final adjournment. A filibuster by a Socialist senator marked the closing hours, cutting off legislation on which there had been much labor and debate. Conservatives, Progressives and Socialists all are blaming each other for this. The public at large is offering a sigh of relief.

All but the holdover members enjoyed for the first time a salary of $2,500, an increase from $500, voted by a preceding legislature on the theory that larger salaries would attract more competent men.

Whatever was promised, whatever was accomplished, there seems a definite feeling of thankfulness that it was no worse.

PATHETIC NEW YORK REPUBLICANISM.

Republican state committeemen meeting for perfunctory duties in New York allowed themselves to run a slight fever when they took account of the rumors that President Hoover was about to declare himself for light wines and beer. This curious bit of wiseacre gossip has had a wide spread and has been greeted with a pathetic credulity. It seems to have had its origin, as nearly as it can be traced, to the board of trade, where some magnificent joking or wishful thinking put Mr. Hoover in a liberal state of mind contemplating a great act of domestic statesmanship.

It becomes more pathetic when the despairing Republicans of New York arise to give it three cheers which must certainly turn out to be Bronx in their nature. This is more wishfulness and wistfulness. It may be taken for granted that Bishop James Cannon Jr., the Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson, the Rev. Ernest H. Cherrington, and leaders in prohibition are losing no sleep at all over the prospect of Mr. Hoover going even slightly wet. Everything political is possible, but this is too astonishing for present day belief. The New York Republican committeemen will wake up. It is a mirage in the desert and they are only dreaming about it.

Nevertheless, they will remain loyal to the head of the party, dry though he may be, and wet though they wish he were. Light wines and beer would put them on their feet with confidence that they could give the Democrats a run in the next election. A dry ticket in New York seems perfectly hopeless. The sad loyalists will wish they had an easier king, but they'll be true to the dynasty, however painful in may be. Rebellion isn't in them.

DISGRACEFUL ACTS IN PARLIAMENT.

Disgraceful proceedings in the house of commons give fresh reproach to the mother of parliaments. It required some eight or ten English sergeants-at-arms to eject, and keep ejected, one Scotch Labor M. P. who stood his ground against the mace and refused to be awed by it or overpowered by the massing of strength against him. He had a little help from several radical associates. The Scotchman, an Irishman named McGovern from Glasgow, wanted to know why two ministers had been arrested on the Glasgow green for preaching without a permit. He did not like the answer he got from the secretary for Scotland and intended to keep the floor until he was satisfied.

The mace, the tall coat, the knee breeches and the sword of the sergeant were powerless to reduce the stubborn man, and the violent scene followed. The indignity was one to the whole system of representative government and will be deplored wherever the propriety of legislative proceedings is regarded as it should be. Even Mr. Tom Heflin will feel a sense of shame.

IN DUE TIME.

If there was any hope that an increase in railroad revenue would have a prompt effect upon unemployment that hope seems to have gone glimmering. The hearings upon the application for a rate raise will not begin until July 15, and when all petitioners and objectors are heard in Washington and elsewhere it is said that "snow will be flying" before a decision is reached. By the time the new rates, if granted, begin to have such influence as we hope for upon railroad revenue as to justify more employment and more purchasing by the roads it is likely the snow will not be flying but flown. As an emergency agency the interstate commerce commission is not in the first order. For the acute anemia from which the railroads are suffering it is preparing perhaps some helpful remedy, but first aid for the jobless will have to come from other doctors.

Editorial of the Day

TAXES IN ILLINOIS.

[Danville Commercial-News.]

The tax problems are always with us. They come and go as regularly as do the seasons, the eclipses and the measles. The Scriptures tell us about the tax-gatherers, and they enjoyed no greater popularity in those ancient days than they now do. Taxes might be called a necessary evil, inasmuch as nobody likes to pay them, and only a very few people believe they get their money's worth in public service. But taxes must be levied and collected in order to maintain government, make public improvements, support schools, pay for police and fire protection and so on through a long list of services that only the public can support and regulate.

However, taxes should be reasonable in the amount levied and within the ability of taxpayers to pay without making an undue draft on income or sacrifice of property. If the Chicago meeting is called merely for the purpose of devising ways and means of increasing taxes—of drawing more blood out of the already exhausted taxpayers of Illinois—it were better not to have been summoned. But this, we are sure, was farthest from the thought that prompted Gov. Emmerson to call the meeting.

It is agreed on all hands that the revenue laws of the state ought to be revised and modernized throughout. There are altogether too many taxing bodies, one overlapping another and adding largely to the expense of administration. If the work of a special session of the legislature could be limited to the revision of revenue laws, Gov. Emmerson could do the taxpayers of the state no greater favor at this time than to summon the lawmakers to convene in the early fall.

DANGERS OF SHOOTING GALLERIES.

It has been found that men who run successful shooting galleries are likely to develop mercury poisoning. Reports to that effect are coming from both America and Europe.

The ammunition used in shooting galleries, particularly the percussion caps, contains a considerable amount of a mercury salt, and it seems that a tendency of the trade is to increase the proportion of this ingredient in explosives. When the cartridge explodes some of this mercury goes into the air as smoke. The dust in a shooting gallery contains considerable mercury. The places are nearly always badly ventilated.

There is usually a long, narrow room, at one end of which are the targets, well illuminated. At the other is the shooting counter. The man who tends the place loads the rifles, handles the ammunition, cares for the targets and the lighting generally, stands to one side and behind the counter. The smoke travels into his breathing zone and there are no air currents or fans to move it away. Furthermore, his hands are generally soiled, some poison is carried to his mouth when he handles his cigar, cigaret, pipe, chewing tobacco, or gum, or when he eats his snack in the gallery without first washing his hands. However, the principal route of absorption is through the lungs.

Prevention presents no great difficulties. An electric fan, so placed that it draws the smoke up toward the ceiling and away from the attendant and the customers, would meet most of the need. There should be some hand washing facilities. The attendant should not handle his lunch, his smokes, or his chews without first washing his hands. In some places a vacuum cleaner, used faithfully, would improve appearances, make the gallery more attractive, and lessen the danger to patrons and attendants.

In the lead industry it has been found advisable to forbid eating in the workshop or elsewhere without first washing the hands. In such places it is sometimes advisable to prohibit chewing and smoking. It may be best for the attendants at shooting galleries to give up the use of tobacco, especially during working hours. However, since inhaling rifle smoke is the principal danger, the most important method of prevention is ventilation.

E. G. writes: What would cause a person's tongue to be covered with a thick, yellow coating all the time? How could this condition be cleaned up?

REPLY.

Among the causes are: Sleeping with the mouth open, constipation, gall stones, infected gall bladder, reverse peristalsis. It is likely to be associated with belching and it contributes to halitosis. The cause should be overcome when that is possible.

The coat can be removed with a soft cloth or a piece of cotton, or with the back of a case knife. Antiseptic mouth washes help. Chewing gum may help.

PAINFUL KNEES.

Mrs. G. E. K. writes: My boy has bunches on both legs. They look like another knee and, at times, are very sensitive. Someone told us that it is "Osgood [Boston] and Schlatter's [German] disease" and invariably cures itself.

REPLY.

This is a low grade inflammation of pouches of the sac of the knee joint with accumulation of fluid. It is a cousin to housemaid's knee.

PRICKLY HEAT.

G. W. K. writes: Is prickly heat a skin or a blood disorder? What can be done to prevent its coming or cause its removal?

REPLY.

It is a skin disease and in no way related to the blood. The principal cause of the difficulty is prolonged soaking of the skin with sweat soaked garments. Prompt removal of sweaty garments as a rule prevents or cures it. Going without clothing is more effective, but impossible for an adult in your city. Dusting with a good drying powder helps.

A PLACE FOR GARBAGE.

Chicago, July 1.—[Friend of the People.]—Can't something be done to prohibit using the alley in the 3000 Lincoln avenue block as a dumping place? Also, is there not some law that enforces property owners to supply garbage cans for themselves and tenants? Under the present conditions it is not safe to permit children to play in their own yards due to insanitary conditions of alleys and yards. A. M. J.

Report is made that a survey has been made and notices served, where necessary, to provide regulation containers for accommodation of refuse output and to stop further dumping. At the present time alley is in good condition and will be kept under observation to see that notices are complied with. JOSEPH J. BUTLER, Superintendent of Streets.

CO-SIGNER'S OBLIGATION.

Chicago, June 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A loan company demands payment from a co-signer of a note, although they know the borrower is in the state, but claims inability to pay. 1. Can they compel co-signer to pay? 2. Can they garnishee wages? 3. If he is compelled to pay can co-signer collect from borrower? 4. Garnishee his pay? 5. Limitation? J. L. O.

1. Yes.
2. Yes, after taking judgment against him.
3. Yes.
4. Yes.
5. The limitation period on written contracts is ten years.

"REASONABLE LAPSE."

Chicago, June 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A cashier's check was mailed to the landlord on Friday morning for the rent. The bank on which the check was drawn closed Monday. The landlord returned the check saying he could not cash it. Is there anything I can do about it? G. M.

Section 185 of the negotiable instruments law is as follows: "A check must be presented for payment within a reasonable time after its issue, and notice of dishonor given to the drawer as provided for in the case of bills of exchange, or the drawer will be discharged from liability thereon to the extent of the loss caused by the delay."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. W. M.

THE DUEL!

As Described by Mr. Vanderbilt.

With my great brown fist and brawny arm
I struck him down to earth;
Then, like an avenging thunder cloud,
On his prostrate form I burst,
I pommeled and pounded and hammered and struck.
With rage my eyes were dim;
I mopped him around the neighborhood,
I tore him limb from limb.
Ah, never shall I forget the cry,
Or the shriek that shrieked he,
As I lightly but firmly picked him up
And spanked him 'cross my knee.
Yes, I lightly but firmly picked him up

As Related by Mr. Arno.

I lightly dodged as he came on,
I scorned his silly fist;
I caught him cleverly by the ear
And slapped him on the wrist.
I cared not at all for his maddened cries,
Nor heeded his frantic blows;
I flicked my handkerchief in his face
And carefully wiped his nose.
I stood him on his haughty head
And spun him three times three;
Then, blowing him over with one breath,
I gayly laughed "tee hee!"
Yes, blowing him over with one breath,
I gayly laughed "tee hee!"

THE FOURTH OF JULY seems to have been a fair day for the debt moratorium. Just how fair it was we do not quite know, as the reports seem somewhat vague and confusing. However, let us admit that the moratorium had a good time on our national birthday. What we are looking forward to with some apprehension is the fourteenth of July, which is the national birthday of the French republic. The French have a way of tearing down things on the fourteenth, such as the Bastille for instance, and we sincerely hope that it does not occur to them that the beautifully designed and carefully built moratorium would be a nice thing to pull down. All that's left of the Bastille, the Tuileries, and many other notable structures in Paris is the place where they once stood. We shudder to think that may be the fate of the beautiful moratorium.

MR. SCHMELING'S great victory over Mr. Stribling (Mr. Schmeling of Germany and Mr. Stribling of these more or less United States) leaves us many lessons to ponder, one of which is that a nation which drinks copiously of beer is not at a physical disadvantage when engaged in combat with a nation that drinks only pure cold water and buttermilk. Oh, there are no doubt other lessons and other morals to be drawn from the fistic argument in Cleveland last Friday night, but you must admit, Laura, that this is one, and that perhaps it would be well slightly to alter the 18th amendment so that our champions who proudly hold aloft the hopes of our country in future pugilistic battles would be permitted to have a glass of beer every day while in training.

AND THE ROUT of young Mr. Stribling will also be used by those who opposed the ladies mixing in politics, business, and other affairs once the exclusive territory of the males, to point another lesson or moral. That is, Mr. Stribling's life and fistic training having been largely dominated by his mother, the w. k. Ma Stribling, it is quite impossible to escape the conclusion that a woman's place is in the home. Seelah!

JUST FOR THAT YOU KEEP OUT OF OUR BUS.

"You are twitting us hitch-hikers," writes Sawdust Sal, "but lemme tell you something! A hitch-hiker has to work harder to pay for a ride than any galley slave that ever rowed in a Roman galley. You've got to say to the philanthropist who gives you a ride, 'Oh, how wonderful you drive!' 'Oh, what a wonderful new car you have!' 'Oh, what a wonderful way you took that curve!' 'Oh, what a wonderful way you shift gears!' 'Oh, what a wonderful, wonderful, wonderful, WONDERFUL car this is—four wheels, and it goes on gas and turns right and left and goes straight ahead, 'n' everything! OH, WONDERFUL!' Yessir, lemme tell you when you get out of the dinky little ten year old flivver that threatened to tear itself wide open when it was pushed up to twenty miles an hour and you thank the dumbbell who has bumped on both sides of the road and darned near landed you in the ditch every half mile or so, and you say 'Wonderful' till you're black and blue in the face, lemme tell you that you've earned your ride ten times over."

SONNETS IN A SEQUENCE.

III.

Dear Earth, dear love, upon whose aging heart
Still musical with April I have lain,
Mother and friend, forgive that I depart,
Who in a little while must come again;
And not as now, to blow an April kiss
And set my foot once more upon the hill
Where many a year, when I am far from this,
Will sway and shine the windy daffodil;
O not as now, but naked, bleeding, lame,
Speechless and blind and robbed of other rest,
Sickened of praise and beaten down with blame,
I shall come groping home to find your breast,
Most patient mother, patience for a day;
Not slow the journey is; not long the way.

DOROTHY KISSLING.

THE U. S. A. may have received the debt moratorium as a Fourth of July present to the nation. But across the package was written, "Do Not Open Until Christmas!" R. H. L.

THE CHARGE WAS TOO HEAVY

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 6, 1915.

CHICAGO.—Ottmar M. Krembs, 1234 Argyle street, Chicago, a brother of the dead wife of Prof. Erich Muenter, convinced himself that "Frank Holt," who shot J. P. Morgan, is identical with the long missing professor. Mr. Krembs, having reached this conclusion and having learned that Mr. Morgan is recovering from his wound, decided to go east as an avenger and push the prosecution of Muenter for wife murder.

NEW YORK.—Miss Jane Addams of Chicago returned from Europe, the capitals of which she had been visiting in the interest of peace. She headed a delegation on this mission, which represented the women of the world. The delegation was appointed at the recent International Congress of Women at The Hague.

LONDON.—British commanders in the field have given up all hope of making their great offensive before next spring, according to apparently authentic information brought by officers from the front. This delay is due to the enormous casualties caused by lack of munitions and by the fact that it will be next Christmas before the new ministry of munitions can produce sufficient qauntities of shells and machine guns to warrant the long expected great move.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—German agents in this country have perfected a gigantic plot to blow up ammunition factories and trains and ships carrying war supplies, according to Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador. The ambassador suspects that Frank Holt, who attempted to kill J. P. Morgan and who caused the explosion in the United States capital last Friday night, was incited to his acts by the directors of this plot.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 6, 1901.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Charles Gates Dawes of Illinois, controller of the currency, sent in his resignation to take effect on Oct. 1 and President McKinley accepted it. Mr. Dawes took the step so he may begin his canvass for the United States senatorship from Illinois, for which he is an open candidate as against William E. Mason or any one else. He did not believe it would be right for him to retain his position at the same time he was conducting a campaign.

NEW YORK.—By the will of the late Jacob S. Rogers, the millionaire locomotive builder of Paterson, N. J., the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York is to receive an enormous endownment fund of anywhere from $5,750,000 to $7,750,000. With the exception of eight bequests, amounting in all to only $250,000, the entire estate of the eccentric old man, who for years had led the life of a semi-recluse, is bequeathed to the museum, which is devoted to matters concerning which Mr. Rogers had little knowledge and in which he was supposed to have even less interest.

CHICAGO.—Revised figures on the fatalities and accidents in Fourth of July celebrations in the United States show 25 dead and 1,813 injured.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 6, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—The attending physicians announce that the symptoms of President Garfield have gradually become more favorable. The President slept a good deal during last night and in the morning expressed himself as comparatively comfortable. The spasmodic pains in the lower extremities have entirely disappeared. There is less tympanites. Since last night Mr. Garfield has taken an ounce and a half of chicken broth every two hours. Vice President Arthur called at 2:45 p. m. All the foreign ministers have called and have sent reassuring dispatches to Europe based upon the favorable bulletins. Members of the foreign legations who are the most constant in attendance and inquiries at the White House are Sir Edward Thornton and the Belgian minister. Gen. Sherman, whose experience in regard to wounded men gives great weight to his opinion, said he has strong faith that the President will pass each point of danger as it is reached as successfully as he did the first grave crisis of last night.

REQUIEM FOR INVERTEBRATES.

Chicago, June 30.—A visit to the Shedd aquarium for the first time last Saturday made the article of James O'Donnell Bennett in Sunday's issue of particular interest to me. Having had the good fortune to see most of the thirty public aquariums of the world mentioned in his article, including those at Honolulu, Manila and Madras, I can appreciate the statement that Chicago has the finest aquarium, at least in physical equipment, in the world.

Nevertheless, I think a very important exhibit is lacking from the point of view of the educational value of the institution. I refer to the salt water invertebrates such as sponges, sea cucumbers, polyps, starfish, jelly fish and the fascinating creatures far down in the scale of evolution which are so prominently and excellently shown in the aquarium at Naples, and which make that aquarium, in some ways, the most useful in the world. No creature of the sea would be more interesting to people living far away from the ocean than, for example, a jelly fish, an unusually fascinating and beautiful sight in an aquarium tank.

ALBERT CHERNEY.

AN OFFENSE TO MODESTY.

Chicago, June 30.—I wish to voice my opinion on the immodest conditions that exist at the Cermak park bath pavilion.

I think it perfectly o. k. to undergo a superficial examination such as is done at this pool, but why not use a little privacy.

The idea of having to strip completely before youngsters as well as adults! Just what do these matrons look for, and would they know a skin infection if they saw one? It happened to be my first visit to this pool and, as I had heard of the strict examination conducted, I felt that this was the place to go, but I had expected the examination would be conducted not before the eyes of the public, but possibly in a private quarter of the pool at least.

MARGUERITE GLENN.

LEGAL AID.

Chicago, June 30.—Your editorial last Sunday, "Legal Aid," is hardly fair to the thousands of lawyers in Chicago, who after years of study in accord with high, exacting requirements of the bar examiner, are industriously, faithfully, and modestly serving the public.

P. M. COCOS.

AN IMPROVISED FAN.

Green Bay, Wis., June 30.—A hint to help the people unable to get fans this weather. It is a stunt that Mrs. Moore thought out, of taking the bag off the vacuum sweeper, removing the belt from the brush, opening the plate in the back, setting the machine on a chair and letting it go.

The results are surprising.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

Chicago, June 30.—On June 21 at 5:0 p. m. I was turning left at Michigan and Monroe for the outer drive when a new Buick sedan, without brakes or any other marks of identification, deliberately and without signaling, ran in ahead of me from the inside line of traffic and turned left, pulling off my front bumper. The driver ignored the incident as well as the traffic officer's whistle and kept on up the hill and another policeman stopped him. He got out and casually inspected the damage to my car and his, but positively refused to give his name, stating that the board of education would take care of it. When I insisted on some proof of the board's responsibility he produced a bill of sale from the James Lory Motor company, 1640 Ogden avenue, showing that this car was purchased on June 16 on the account of the board of education.

It is very obvious that this reckless driver should have no right to purchase a car and tear it up at the expense of the board of education which, up to this time, hasn't the faintest idea as to how it can pay salaries in arrears to its teachers and civil service employes and keep our schools open.

VERNON S. GARNER.

RUSSIANS AS MECHANICS.

Chicago, June 30.—I don't agree with your reporter, Henry Wales, in his contention that Russians are poor mechanics. Many Russian immigrants work for Henry Ford successfully. A Russian by the name of Sikorsky is a well known airplane builder and employs many Russians in his factory. Russians in Paris have the reputation of being the best chauffeurs in that city. Russian workers are tired of bolshevik rule. As they cannot rebel openly, they want to bring about the downfall of the tyrants by sabotage and destroying of machinery. They refuse to work for a government that feeds them on rations while exporting wheat, milk, meat, butter, eggs and selling them at ridiculously low prices to foreigners. R. S.

AT THE OPERA.

Chicago, June 29.—The reading for Edward Moore's music column today read, "How Ravinia Does Its Share Toward Overcoming the Heat." I was one of the hundreds of sweltering, perspiring men who were compelled to wear their coats at Sunday night's performance. The usher told me I had to, and there was an inference that I'd have to get out if I didn't like it, though I had paid good money for my seat. L. G.

A GREAT CARTOON.

BISHOP ASSAILS HAYS IN CHURCH FILM DISPUTE

M'Connell Repudiates Acts of The Rev. G. R. Andrews

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—The federal council of the Churches of Christ in America denies responsibility for any of the acts of the Rev. George Reid Andrews, former director of the disbanded Church and Drama league, according to Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the federal council.

BISHOP McCONNELL.

In a letter to Will Hays, head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors, Inc., who has charged that the Rev. Mr. Andrews in 1919 demanded 10 per cent of the receipts of "The King of Kings," on which he collaborated, Bishop McConnell accuses Mr. Hayes of having introduced the controversy over the Rev. Mr. Andrews to dodge issues raised by the recent adverse report on the motion picture industry by the department research and education of the federal council.

Text of Letter to Hays.

The text of the letter as made public by Bishop McConnell follows:

"Since you appear to attach considerable importance to a letter from Mr. George Reid Andrews to me in 1926 in which he made certain proposals concerning the disposition of ten per cent of the tithome from the film 'The King of Kings,' it becomes necessary for me to remind you of two crucial facts which you have overlooked.

"In the first place, the letter from Mr. Andrews to you was a personal one for which the federal council had no responsibility whatever and about which, so far as I am able to learn, the officers of the council had no knowledge. Mr. Andrews was not then, nor has he ever been, in the employ of the federal council. His letter to you was part of a series of personal negotiations, as you well know, extending over a long period.

Cooperated with Andrews.

"Secondly, I have to remind you that in 1926 you put an entirely different construction upon Mr. Andrew's letter from that which you are putting upon it in 1931. Our investigators went into the whole matter carefully and among the things they discovered was that, although you regarded the letter as indiscreetly worded, you did not then find in it any mercenary intent or improper purpose.

"Furthermore, you proceeded to cooperate with Mr. Andrews in the production of 'The King of Kings' in a way that was entirely inconsistent with the interpretation that you now put upon his letter."?

LABORITE TOSSED OUT OF COMMONS DEFIES PARK LAW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 5.—James McGovern, the two fisted Labor M. P. from Glasgow who was bounced from the house of commons last week by the sergeant-at-arms and his attendants, appeared on the Glasgow green today in defiance of the law he was criticizing at the time of his ejection, and promised legal action against parliamentary authorities as a result of the fray.

A crowd of 5,000 was on the green today to protest both against his own treatment and the imprisonment of the preachers whose arrest he was attacking when ejected.

The police took the names of Mr. McGovern and a dozen other speakers, and it is probable that they will be arrested. A false cry of a police charge was raised as the meeting was dispersing and five children, a man and a woman carrying a baby were trampled in the stampede.

TWO DIE OF RUM, WIDOW ENDS LIFE IN RIVER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New London, Wis., July 5.—[Special.]—On the eve of an inquest to investigate the death of her husband and Henry Kopitzke, a widower, from poison at a barn dance, June 20, Mrs. Catherine Hoffman, 35, committed suicide today by jumping into the Wolf river.

Her body, with the house key pinned to her dress, was found at 5:30 p. m. floating on the water's surface at the big eddy, near this city.

The husband, Louis Hoffman, 35, and Kopitzke, died suddenly after drinking whisky between dances in the barn on the Harold Douglas farm.

Widow, Others Questioned.

The inquest into the poison deaths is set for tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Hoffman, with Edward Riske and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Poppy, were questioned at length in Waupaca yesterday by Sheriff Arthur Steenbock and L. D. Smith, district attorney. Riske was detained by authorities as a material witness, and the others were permitted to return home. District Attorney Smith said Riske had been friendly with Mrs. Hoffman.

Toxicologists found the men died from effects of poison administered in the liquor. Mrs. Hoffman was dancing with Kopitzke when he was stricken.

The district attorney said the men apparently were friends, their finances were in good shape, and he could find no cause for a suicide pact. He believed, he said, the men were slain.

Expressed Suicide Threat.

Mrs. Hoffman has been melancholy since the death of her husband and Kopitzke, friends said. They have remained with her night and day, at her own request, because of her expressed fear that brooding over the affair would cause her to commit suicide. She said she planned to jump into the river, these friends said.

At 2:30 a. m. Mrs. Hoffman left the upper part of the house and went downstairs, the friends said. They believed she was with relatives, who were there. Inquiry an hour later disclosed she had slipped from the house.

The neighboring farmland and woods were searched. When no trace of her was found dragging of the river was started.

ADICALS ORDER PHONE STRIKE TO CRIPPLE SPAIN

ice Guard Cities Where Riots Are Feared.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, July 5.—Just on the chance that it may want to do some fishing some day, Spanish syndicalists will go out this week in the waters with strikes all over the country.

Tomorrow the syndicalists will try to cripple Spain's American installed telephone system, and see what damage they can do with general strikes in Corunna and Cordova, and a strike of longshoremen in Barcelona. Tuesday a strike at power plants and water works is booked.

Denies Political Ambition.

Syndicalism, loosely organized as the big "union," has denied any political ambition, hoping merely for social upheaval sooner or later, and to that end has shaped its tactics to cause trouble in as many places and as often as possible.

With the telephone strike, syndicalism is bidding for a test of strength with its great enemy, the Spanish socialist party, which is now very much in the government. It expects to paralyze the system in Barcelona, in all along the Mediterranean coast, where it is strong, and do a lot of damage in Madrid, where it boasts few members. More than half of the total of 8,000 employes of the phone company in Spain are claimed by the syndicalists.

Make Strong Demands.

The syndicalist telephone employes are striking merely for participation in the improvement of the $75,000,000 enterprise, in which there is at least $50,000,000 openly controlled by American Bell Telephone interests. They want the salaries of the higher ups cut on such a scale that the American general manager, Lewis Proctor, will only enjoy a mere $2,000 yearly. Moreover, they ask the dismissal of the "hello" girl at Ayerbe, who notified the government that the Jans[illegible] had risen and passed through the capital, for which the monarchy paid a millional subscription.

Negotiation broke down when the operators refused to play, after the union organizers, who had been fired for losing their jobs, had been reinstated.

Police Mount Guard.

Armed police mounted guard today at all exchanges and at Madrid headquarters hundreds of girls are working in their offices lest syndicalist agents get nasty in the meantime.

The socialist party has ordered its workers employes in other strikes [illegible] to go to work as usual, and is preparing to defend them. Trouble is expected, as it is on the Barcelona docks, if the socialist longshoremen are encountered by devotees of syndicalism.

PERUVIAN REBELS BATTLE LOYAL TROOPS; 4 SLAIN

LIMA, Chile, July 5.—(AP)—At least four persons were killed in fighting between loyal Peruvian troops and rebels who were said to be making a last stand at Cuzco, according to reports from across the border today. In Lima the central government issued a bulletin saying its forces were preparing to pursue the rebels in the vicinity of Cuzco and that troops already were sent to put down the uprising were making satisfactory progress.

This statement said that the insurgents had issued orders calling the entire population to arms but the people booed and the inhabitants of the city remained loyal.

FRIENDLY DRESS BUYING LEADS TO WOMAN'S ARREST

Miss Ida Berghoff, 28 years old, 2134 Alice place, was looking at a red hat in a store window about two weeks ago, wishing that an adding machine operator's salary was enough to buy hats more frequently. Appeared on the scene Hans Stein, 35 years old, 1266 North Paulina street, a stranger.

One pleasant word led to another and finally to the purchase of a red hat. The purchase of a red hat led to the purchase of a dress for his new friend by Mr. Stein. By and by Mr. Stein and Miss Berghoff parted.

They met again yesterday at Addison and Clark streets, and Mr. Stein called a policeman. Miss Berghoff was taken to the Town Hall station, where she told of the shopping tour.

"I thought Mr. Stein was just a millionaire playboy," she said. "So I let him buy me a dress and charge it to his wife's account."

"I bought her one hat and one dress," said Mr. Stein. "But she went back to the same store after that and bought $50 worth of clothes and charged them without my consent. Charge her with obtaining merchandise under false pre[illegible]."

It was so done and Miss Berghoff will have an opportunity to explain today in the Felony court.

ARSON SUSPECT TRAPPED IN FIRE DIES OF BURNS

Anthony D. Biozis, 50 years old, janitor of a building at 4361 South Wood street which was destroyed by a fire of incendiary origin early yesterday, died a few hours later of burns, at the county hospital.

Biozis, whom police suspected of setting the fire, was trapped in the basement of the frame house by falling timbers. Firemen, answering the alarm, found a bathtub in the place containing thirty gallons of gasoline, and discovered bedding and rugs soaked in the fluid.

Baby Dies in 8 Foot Fall Off Rear Porch

Edward Zaruba, 1 year old, was killed yesterday when he fell from a rear porch at 1863 North Richmond street and landed on the ground eight feet below. The child was in the care of Mrs. Victor Zaruba, an aunt, at the Richmond street address, while his parents, whose home is at 929 65th street, Milwaukee, were out motoring.

ARMY AND NAVY COSTS REDUCED, REED EXPLAINS

Slashes Made in Money and Men, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—Measured both in money and in men, United States has reduced its military and naval establishments, Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] declared today in dispelling what he called a "mistaken impression" created by a recent statement by Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain.

DAVID A. REED.

"A recent statement by Prime Minister MacDonald regarding the army and navy expenditures of the United States has created the mistaken impression that the United States is increasing the strength as well as the cost of its army and navy," said Senator Reed, who is chairman of the senate committee on military affairs and was one of the American delegates to the 1930 London naval conference. "This is not correct, although I am certain that Mr. MacDonald would not consciously give out a misleading statement.

Gradual for Decade.

"The facts are that a very severe reduction both in strength and money expenditures has been made in both the army and navy of the United States throughout the last decade.

"In 1921 our army appropriation was 494 million dollars and our army consisted of 225,745 officers and men. This was the size of our regular army after demobilization of our emergency war time forces. In the same year our navy appropriation was 443 million and the navy's strength in officers and men 136,950. In 1930 our army appropriation was 331 million and the total strength of our regular army had been reduced to 130,750. Today our naval appropriation has come down to 390 million and the strength in officers and men has come down to 88,785."

"Several factors tend to confuse a comparison between British and American expenditures for national defense," said Senator Reed.

Covers All U. S. Forces.

"The American appropriations," he continued, "covered the cost of all our regular military forces, while in Great Britain neither army nor navy appropriations include the cost of the Royal air force, on which Great Britain is spending 102 million this year.

These comparisons further ignore the fact that the cost of naval construction in the United States is far higher than in Great Britain because of the differences in the wage scale of the crafts engaged in ship building. Thus it costs 50 per cent more to build a cruiser in the United States than it would cost to build one of the same size in Great Britain, while the cost of destroyers and submarines is almost three times as much here as in Great Britain for vessels in the same tonnage. These comparisons further ignore the fact that the rate of pay in the American army and navy is approximately 60 per cent greater than in the British army and navy."

Alschuler, Aurora attorney, brother of Federal Judge Samuel Alschuler, was informed last night by police at St. Louis that they have recovered $10,000 worth of jewelry taken from his home at 206 Le Grand boulevard, Aurora, in a burglary on May 31. GIRL PRETENDS ILLNESS AS AID IN ROBBING SHOP

Accompanied by a youth attired in white flannel trousers and a blue shirt, a red-haired girl about 17 years old entered the Randolph confectionery at 1603 East 55th street last evening.

She remarked that she felt ill and the youth said he'd go for a taxicab. When he had gone the girl asked Miss Jeanette Pacitti, the clerk, to show her to a washroom. Miss Pacitti led the way up a flight of stairs. At the door of the washroom the girl drew a small pistol from her handbag and forced the clerk inside.

After securely locking the door the girl robber went downstairs and helped herself to the $34 in the cash register. Miss Pacitti broke a window and attracted rescuers by her screams.

TALL TREE FALLS AND BLOCKS CAR TRAFFIC 4 HOURS

Its trunk rotted away at the bottom, a maple tree one hundred feet tall, crashed to the street at Archer avenue and Nineteenth street, Willow Springs, yesterday afternoon, entangling and tearing out trolley and telephone wires in its fall, and impeding incoming holiday motor traffic.

The torn trolley wires stopped the movements of Chicago and Joliet railway street cars for more than four hours.

Lieut. William Weber and deputies from the Willow Springs county highway police chopped away entangling branches and the bulk of the tree to enable motor traffic to proceed.

KEEP PRESSURE ON FARM BOARD TO HOLD WHEAT

Demand Minimum Price Agreement.

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—Spokesmen for midwestern farmers, including Vice President Curtis, Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.], and perhaps Senator James E. Watson, [Rep., Ind], are scheduled to descend on the farm board tomorrow in a renewed attempt to persuade the board to hold its wheat entirely off the market until prices have recovered.

SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER.

According to its last week's announcement, which had President Hoover's approval, the board plans to dispose of its wheat at not to exceed five million bushels a month, on a cumulative basis and does not intend to dispose of any at the present low prices.

Vice President Curtis and Senator Capper intend to confer with Chairman James C. Stone of the farm board tomorrow and will also visit the White House to consult with President Hoover. Both contend that the farm board should withhold its wheat until the Chicago price reaches 85 cents.

Asks Minimum Price Agreement.

Senator Watson has argued for 92 cents, which is said to be the average price paid by the stabilization corporation for its wheat, as the figure below which the board should not sell. Senator William E. Borah, insurgent Republican of Idaho and chairman of the agricultural committee named at the "progressive conference" last March, has insisted that the board defer all sales until wheat goes to $1.25.

In a statement issued through the Democratic national committee Representative John M. Evans [Dem., Mont.] declared:

"Apparently the only people in accord with the federal farm board's handling of its wheat holdings are the members of the farm board itself. They acquired 200 millions or 300 millions bushels of wheat—the actual amount is apparently a state secret, for they decline to reveal it. This was done after President Hoover had given a solemn assurance that the board would not engage in buying and selling and price fixing of products.

Criticizes Administration.

"When it became evident that the board was in a jam through violation of this pledge the President solemnly disclaimed all responsibility for the farm board, stating that it was a creation of congress and therefore beyond his influence. It wasn't many days after this that the farm board indicated its purpose of selling its wheat, which aroused a deafening clamor from the western farmers, who visualized a smashing of the market for the 1931 crop if this course was followed. Thereupon President Hoover told the board, over which he had disclaimed any authority, that he wanted a different program. The board obliged with the announcement that instead of selling it all it would probably limit its dumping to five million bushels a month.

"It has been the administration contention that criticism of the beneficent body under whose manipulation wheat has reached the lowest level in modern history was limited to domestic partisanship by discrediting the board and seeking to smear President Hoover. Now the spearhead of farm board criticism is composed of Vice President Curtis, Senator Capper of Kansas, and Senator Watson of Indiana. Mr. Hoover's understudy announced that the farm board ought to issue a statement that its wheat holdings would not be sold under 85 cents a bushel."

Suspects Feel Too Rich to Talk to Cops; Jailed

When Bruce Streich, 50 years old, went to his room at 8412 Buffalo avenue, yesterday, he discovered his trunk had been broken open and his $1,000 savings had been stolen. He reported to police. Last night Policemen John Cullen and Walter Linden met Walter Powers, 35 years old, who lives at the Buffalo avenue address, and an unidentified friend. Both were somewhat intoxicated, police said. Powers' friend looked over Linden and Cullen, and as he turned away, remarked: "We haven't time to talk to ordinary policemen." Cullen and Linden took Powers to the station. In his pockets they found $924.

ONE LEGGED BOY ON STOLEN YACHT JAILED AS THIEF

Says He Was Shanghaied Then Deserted.

Gloucester, Mass., July 5.—[Special.]—Shanghaied aboard the stolen yacht Jaloma and abandoned sixty miles from shore, Eugene Emerson, a one legged Minneapolis newsboy who had never seen salt water before, was found tossing, half dead, in a bunk in the cabin Friday by three of the crew of the Gloucester fishing trawler, Raymonde. The Jaloma was brought into Gloucester today, where Emerson was arrested on a charge of grand larceny.

The yacht, property of Dr. Peter F. Johnson, Beverly physician, was drifting in crazy circles 70 miles southsoutheast of Highland light when the Raymonde, in charge of Capt. John Hall, nearly ran her down in a thick fog.

All of the yacht's sails were set and her wheel had been lashed fast by Emerson's abductor before he set off in the tender, deserting his seasick companion.

Lured Aboard, He Says.

Emerson denied knowing the yacht was stolen. He said that the genial boat thief lured him aboard for a trip to Newport "to watch the races." The man is believed to have mistaken his position in the fog when he deserted the ship Friday at dawn.

It was believed he had rowed out to sea, or was drifting away from land, hungry, thirsty and exhausted. Outbound vessels were asked to keep a sharp watch for a lone man in a small boat.

Emerson said he had hitch-hiked to New York, Providence, and Boston looking for a job, but the fact that he was crippled proved a handicap.

Sticks to His Story.

A blue eyed, good looking youth, the prisoner told a straightforward story of his adventures and stubbornly refused to alter a detail of it during two hours of questioning by detectives at the Gloucester marshal's office. He exhibited a "courtesy" medal presented to him by the Minnesota Daily Star and gave the name of a man in the circulation department of the Boston Herald whom he was on his way to see.

Despite his story, the boy was arrested by Lieut. William J. Tobin of Beverly and Lieut. John Curtis of Gloucester. He was locked up at Beverly headquarters tonight after a long examination and will be arraigned in Beverly court tomorrow on a charge of grand larceny.

DEBATE CALUMET HARBOR PLANS AT HEARING, JULY 21

Public to Consider 3 Proposals.

In preparation for the development of an industrial harbor in Lake Calumet three major proposals related to the harbor plan will be discussed on July 21 at a public hearing. The hearing will be held at 10 a. m. in the office of the resident war department engineer at 333 North Michigan avenue.

WM. A. ROWAN.

Shippers, public officials, and representatives of railroads and civic organizations have been invited to attend the hearing. They will be asked to submit their recommendations on the three proposals outlined by Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], chairman of the city council committee on harbors, wharves and bridges.

The Three Proposals.

The proposals are as follows:

1. Shall the federal government construct a harbor refuge in Lake Michigan consisting of a breakwater extending from the mouth of the Calumet river to the Indiana industrial district, behind which ships could find a refuge from storms?

2. Shall the Calumet river be dredged to a depth of 25 feet? The river now has a 21 foot channel, which is said to be ample for modern lake vessels. The 25 foot channel, according to Ald. Rowan, would make the river navigable for ocean going shipping which would be expected in the harbor if the St. Lawrence seaway is completed.

3. Shall the Calumet river be straightened by the elimination of some of its curves?

Plan Calls for Channel.

In connection with the third proposal a plan has been suggested calling for a channel from the north end of the harbor eastward to the Grand Calumet, giving easy access to the harbor, and another southwestward to the Little Calumet, which would simplify the entrance of barges from the inland waterway. This plan is being considered by the council committee.

Two surveys of the Calumet district are being made now by the government, Ald. Rowan revealed. One is a physical survey under the direction of war department engineers, and the other an economic survey, which is being made by the federal department of commerce. Reports will be submitted to congress in December, he said.

THE VIBRATIONLESS CAR FOR MILLIONS IN THE LOWEST-PRICE FIELD

TO produce in 1931 an achievement in motor car design, engineering and pricing so revolutionary that it transcends every previous standard of quality, performance and value in the field of lowest price is to challenge the world.

It challenges the previous finest in design among lowest-priced cars.

It challenges the former best in smoothness and performance.

It challenges the world's greatest in motor car manufacture.

It challenges every known standard of automobile value.

Plymouth challenges with the greatest contribution Chrysler Motors engineers have made to modern motoring—"Floating Power."

For years, while designing fine Sixes and Eights for Chrysler, Dodge and De Soto, Chrysler Motors engineers have worked unceasingly for the perfected Four.

Now they give you the results of their labors and discoveries—

The New Plymouth, a quality car of lowest price with the Smoothness of an Eight and the Economy of a Four — due to Plymouth's exclusive Floating Power.

In more than a quarter century of automobile experience, Chrysler Motors engineers have never wavered in their steadfast faith that the best car of lowest price is the Four.

They knew the Four was the best car for millions; they knew they could build a better quality car of four cylinders at a given cost.

Chrysler Motors engineers proved time and time again that a Four is more rugged and longer-lived; that a Four is more economical to operate, easier and cheaper to maintain; that a Four of equal horsepower has as great, or greater, speed—as much, or more, lugging power—as fast, or faster, pick-up than any car of more than four cylinders.

And anyone who counts the number of parts in a Four as contrasted with a Six or an Eight knows that the Four is simpler.

There has been just one thing fundamentally wrong with Fours—with earlier Chrysler-built Fours as well as others. That was vibration.

It was characteristic of the old-time Four that its power impulses were distinct—plainly marked by what engineers call "interrupted torque" that sent vibrations through the frame and body to driver and passengers.

Now exclusive Floating Power makes the New Plymouth smooth as an Eight.

Here is power unshackled, yet power as smooth as satin, as soft as velvet. Here is power without vibration—literally floating; power so silken that even experts could not name the number of cylinders under the Plymouth hood, and many guessed the New Plymouth to be an Eight.

Plymouth challenges with Free Wheeling in all forward speeds.

In the lowest-priced field Plymouth gives you this epochal development in smooth, easy driving and economy. With Plymouth Free Wheeling you can shift gears between all forward speeds without declutching. Here's a feature that adds zest and ease to driving in heavy traffic.

Plymouth challenges with a new, easy-shift transmission.

Besides Free Wheeling, Plymouth offers a new Easy-Shift transmission which makes it possible to shift not only from second to high at speeds of 35 or 45 miles an hour but back into second at these speeds, when you need sudden acceleration, without clashing or grinding. Here's a feature that adds safety to driving where grades are stiff and steep.

Plymouth challenges with 56 brake-test horsepower.

Here is more power than you ever need—with actual stop-watch speed of 65 to 70 miles per hour; pick-up from a standing start to 40 miles in 9.7 seconds.

Plymouth challenges with self-equalizing internal hydraulic brakes.

Among all cars in the lowest-price field, only Plymouth has weatherproof hydraulic brakes — simplest and unexcelled for safety and smoothness.

Plymouth challenges with double-drop frame.

Chrysler Motors engineers have given this high-priced car feature to the Plymouth. Plymouth has a still lower center of gravity, still greater safety, still greater riding ease, still finer style.

Plymouth challenges with entirely new styling, with new eye-compelling beauty of line and color.

We believe the New Plymouth establishes in the field of lowest price a new degree of artistic advancement. By the principles of Dynamic Symmetry, Chrysler Motors designers have created outstanding and inescapable beauty.

Plymouth challenges with full-size Safety-Steel body, with wire wheels standard, with hydraulic shock absorbers. No feature of luxurious comfort, of long-lived reliability, of economy, has been left out of the New Plymouth.

I am happy to extend to the entire motoring world a cordial welcome to see, to drive and to ride in the New Plymouth, and to invite comparison between this exceptional product of Chrysler Motors engineering and any car in the world at or near its price.

This vibrationless Four that wipes out all earlier conceptions of fine motoring in the lowest-priced field challenges your attention; take a demonstration and let the New Plymouth prove its superiority.

NEW U. S. HEALTH CENTER TO WORK AGAINST DISEASE

Chicago Man Member of Directing Board.

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—The work of building up the National Institute of Health in Washington as a part of government supported research center is to be under way, it was announced following last week's meeting of the conference board in New York.

JOSEPH RANSDELL
[Bachrach Photo.]

The National Institute of Health was created under an act of congress sponsored by former Senator Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana, who is now the conference board's executive director. As the research center of the United States public health service, its announced aim is "to study the cause, prevention, and cure of every disease of man, and to bring together in its battle against disease, in close cooperation under one directing head, representatives of every branch of science connected with plant and animal life."

May Take Private Subscriptions.

By the Ransdell bill the former hygienic laboratory of the health service was changed to the National Institute of Health, its scope widened, and $750,000 was appropriated for the construction of additional buildings.

The institute, by congressional act, also became the third government controlled institution authorized to accept donations of private funds. The first was the Smithsonian institution, and recently the library of congress was given permission to receive private gifts.

The members of the conference board, a voluntary organization, are in addition to former Senator Ransdell: Dr. Frank Billings of Chicago, Frederic A. Delano of Washington, Francis P. Garvan and Dr. Charles Berry of New York, and Drs. William H. Welch and Hugh H. Young of Baltimore.

Can Donate to Special Purposes.

"The conference board does not solicit or accept subscriptions," said a recent announcement of the board. "The expense of its operations has been provided by generous philanthropies. Its sole purpose is to make known the aims and aspirations of the National Institute of Health, which is attempting to conquer disease and give longer life and more happiness to all men.

"Sums given to the institute—little or big, from the widow's mite to the large gifts of the rich—must be sent direct to the treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C., and marked 'Gift to National Institute of Health.' Funds so contributed will then be expended by the government as desired by the donors. The legal restrictions thrown around such expenditures assure donors that their contributions will be devoted to the purpose intended without the deduction of one cent for commissions or overhead."

3,873,457 MALES AND 3,757,197 FEMALES LIVE IN ILLINOIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5. — [Special.] — Illinois' total population of 7,630,654, as found by the 1930 census, comprised 3,873,457 males and 3,757,197 females or 103.1 males to every 100 females, according to figures given out today by the census bureau.

Divided according to race, Illinois' population included 7,266,361 white persons, 328,972 Negroes, and 35,321 persons of other races, the statistics showed. By comparison with 1920, the white population of Illinois increased 15.4 per cent during the decade, while the number of Negroes in the state increased 30.5 per cent.

ORDERS STRICT ENFORCEMENT OF NEW BOND LAWS

Prosecutor Tells Benefits Under System.

Assistant State's Attorney A. C. De Witt, who is in charge of the state's attorney's bond department, issued orders yesterday to his subordinates that the provisions of the new bail laws passed at the last session of the legislature must be rigidly enforced. The prosecutor said that if no favoritism is shown by the judges the county treasury should be substantially rewarded every year by payments on bond forfeitures or else bond jumping will stop.

A. C. DEWITT.

The new laws are patterned after the laws of New York, but go one step further, the prosecutor said, in allowing the county practically to take over real estate and act as landlord until the amount of the bond forfeiture is satisfied. This is accomplished under the new law by filing of a suit in a chancery court and the appointment of a receiver to collect the rents and manage the property.

Tells Benefits of Laws.

The legislature passed two bills at the last session, which contain the following benefits, according to the analysis made by the prosecutor.

1. Every professional bondsman must first get a certificate of good moral character and reputation from a judge of the Criminal court. The state's attorney can produce evidence to the contrary if it is available.

2. The bondsman must deposit $5,000 worth of securities with the department of trade and commerce. This is to act as a reserve fund to satisfy any bond judgment if the property scheduled is not sufficient to cover the bond.

Fix Price for Bonds.

3. The prices which can be charged by professional bondsmen are fixed at 10 per cent for the first $100 and 5 per cent for every $100 thereafter. This will do away with exorbitant fees.

4. The law prohibits bond running and this will keep an undesirable class of men and women from around the courts and jail. It will also prevent this type of pest, the prosecutor said, from preying upon relatives of the criminal with the pretext that a case can be "fixed."

5. Every bondsman, whether it be an individual or surety company, must make affidavit if they are being indemnified against loss by friends or relatives of the criminal. This the prosecutor said will prevent influential men from coming to the rescue of hoodlums. It has been known, he said, that in some cases businessmen have put up security with the surety companies to guarantee them against loss for going on hoodlum bonds, because they knew their names could not be dragged out in public.

Court Can't Interfere.

6. The new law also provides in additional to the appointment of a receiver for property involved in bond litigation, the provision that after fifteen months a judge cannot interfere with a judgment. The defendant must be surrendered within fifteen months or the bondsman looses all rights. Under the old law a judgment could be set aside any time. Under the new provision a judge can tax a bondsman any part of the bond, even though the defendant is surrendered, and the bondsman must pay the expenses of all proceedings.

"In the old days the bond business was used as a jail delivery method," said Prosecutor De Witt. "An average of at least one criminal per day was allowed to escape punishment by forfeiting bonds, which were not collectable.

"Since Mr. Swanson took office, however, we have put a stop to that practice as is shown by the record of only 7 or 8 bond forfeitures in the last six months. Under the new laws we should be able to practically stop bond jumping entirely or else fill up the county treasury with money obtained from the bondsmen."

100 Drown in Floods of Two Chinese Rivers

CANTON, China, July 5.—(AP)—More than 100 persons have drowned in extensive floods of the North and East rivers during the last few days. The low lying streets of Canton were covered with water, and boats have taken the place of rickshaws and other vehicles.

Peter Arno, satiric artist, and Mrs. Florence Rice Smith, daughter of Grantland Rice, sports writer, stepped off the Overland limited of the North Western railroad in Wheaton yesterday and were whisked away in a private car. From that point on mystery cloaked their movements.

A short time later a man who refused to give his name called the Wheaton residence of Clarence Wagerman, county clerk of Du Page county, and asked if it were possible to obtain a marriage license at once. He was informed that Mr. Wagerman was out of town on a fishing trip. Arno got no license at any other of the county seat towns near Wheaton.

On his trip east from Reno, where he was divorced by Lois Long, the writer, and was involved in an interchange of public statements with Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., growing out of Vanderbilt's rift with his wife, the former Mary Weir Logan of Chicago, Arno kept his stateroom door locked. Railroad officials pointed out that he and Mrs. Smith may have dodged interviewers by motoring around Chicago and taking a New York train at some Indiana city.

VETERAN CITY EMPLOYE DIES.

John H. Meyer, 62 years old, an employe of the city clerk's office for 25 years, died yesterday in the Edgewater hospital. He was injured June 26 in a fall in the rear of his home at 5443 Glenwood avenue when stricken with apoplexy.

DRUGGIST FOILS ROBBERY; ONE BANDIT IS SHOT

The suspicions and quick trigger finger of Louis Walta, owner of a drug store at 1501 West Roosevelt road, foiled a robbery last night and routed two bandits, one of whom was shot.

The robbers, both young, entered the store and one lingered casually at the door. The other walked to the counter, laid a dollar bill down and asked for a telephone slug.

Walta, suspecting the ruse, turned around and reached into a drawer for the slug. At the same time he drew a revolver. He concealed the weapon as he faced the bandit. Shouting a bogus customer whipped out a gun and ordered the druggist to raise his hands. Walta quickly brought his revolver into action and fired two shots. The bandit fell, and was dragged to a waiting car by his complice. A trail of blood led to the car.

NAB AUTO THIEF AS HE CUTS HOLE IN TOP OF SEDAN

Policemen Maurice McDonald and Arthur Ackerman of the Sheffield avenue station received a radio alarm early yesterday that a thief was trying to steal an automobile from the garage in the rear of 415 Wellington avenue.

They sped to the scene, but were halted when a front tire of their flivver blew out. They changed tires in five minutes flat, and arrived at the garage two minutes later. They saw a flickering flashlight inside and entered the door.

They saw Donald Skene, 28 years old, sitting inside a car. They also saw a jagged hole in the roof of the machine. Skene, it developed later, unable to unlock the car doors, sawed a hole in the top, reached in and unlocked a side door. The machine, a new sedan, is owned by Charles L. Agnew, orchestra conductor. Detective bureau records show that Skene served 15 months in McNeill's Island at Washington for auto theft in 1926-27.

POLICE HUNT MISSING GIRL.

Shakespeare avenue police are conducting a search for Marie Lapka, 18 years old, 2114 North Lincoln street, who failed to return home after leaving on June 28.

Bandit Learns Sweetheart Died in Fight; Gives Up

South Bend, Ind., July 5.—[Special.]—George Daoust, 19, fugitive gunman, sought after three gun battles with South Bend police, was held in the city jail tonight for questioning after he surrendered to Elkhart, Ind., police. He surrendered when he learned of the death of Gerda Strobel, his 15 year old sweetheart, who was fatally shot in his first clash with police while fleeing with a stolen automobile, June 27.

28 CHINESE SLAIN AND 300 INJURED BY COREAN MOBS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, July 6 (Monday).—Twenty-nine Chinese were killed yesterday and 300 injured when a mob of 5,000 Coreans rushed through the streets of Mayo burning houses and hurling their victims into the streets. One of those killed was a woman. More than 100 homes were destroyed. The mobbing of the Chinese was in retaliation for recent attacks on Corean farmers who were building an irrigation ditch at Wampao-shan, near Changchun, Manchuria.

Japanese police arrested more than 100 Coreans and sent more than 1,000 Chinese to Seoul for safety.

Other disturbances were reported in suburbs of Seoul and in a half dozen country villages.

Some Marks of Vandalism.

Most of the city dwellers who spent the holidays on pavements enjoyed the countryside and left the trees and shrubs as they had found them for others to enjoy. But there were reports of vandals picking flowers and tearing shrubs from roadways where these things of beauty are all too rare.

On Milwaukee avenue, just south of Touhy avenue, a string of cherry trees on the abutting forest preserve property, were mutilated. Branches were broken off for the fruit, which is just beginning to turn red. A fat man was seen climbing into one of the small trees while his wife spread her kimono to catch the fruits of this vandalism. Three small children watched.

PLEA REVIVED TO SWAP CARIBBEAN ISLES FOR DEBTS

Europe's Possessions Are Menace to Canal.

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—With the European war debts under discussion, one of the plans, recently more or less submerged, having to do with the settlement of the question has again come to the surface.

This is a suggestion that Great Britain and France, in return for the complete or partial cancellation of the debts owing by them to this country, cede to the United States the islands they now own off the Atlantic coast and in the Caribbean.

In the opinion of many naval strategists, the passing of these island possessions from foreign to American hands would be, not an essential, but a valuable step in the direction of national security.

British Caribbean Islands.

Great Britain owns the following islands or island groups:

The Bahamas, off the southeast coast of Florida, with an area of 4,400 square miles and a population of about 65,000; Trinidad, and Tobago, lying off the mouth of the Orinoco river, with an area of 1,862 and 114 square miles respectively, and a population of approximately 400,000; the Windward islands, forming the eastern barrier to the Caribbean north of Trinidad, consisting of Grenada, St. Vincent, The Grenadines, and St. Lucia, with an area of 516 square miles and a population of 182,000; the Leeward islands, north of the Windward group and southeast of Porto Rico, with a total area of 715 square miles and a population of some 130,000; Barbados, to the east of the Windward islands, with 18 square miles and 170,000 population; Jamaica, south of the eastern portion of Cuba, with an area of 4,480 square miles and a population of approximately 1,000,000, and Bermuda, 580 miles east of North Carolina and 677 miles from New York, with an area of 20 square miles and a population of about 32,000.

French Possessions.

France's insular possessions in the Caribbean are two: Gaudaloupe, area 688 square miles and a population, 230,000; and Martinique, 385 square miles, population 250,000; both lying between the Leeward and the Windward British groups.

Great Britain's insular possessions contain three naval bases: Bermuda and Kingston, Jamaica, where there are dry docks and a fuel station; and Port Castries, St. Lucia, where there is an anchorage. France has a anchorage at Fort de France, Martinique. None of these bases is protected with modern fortifications.

It is not that these islands in themselves constitute a menace to the safety of the United States, but their presence in the defensive [illegible] of the Panama canal, it has been pointed out, turns a position assailable only with the greatest difficulty by a European navy into one more readily attacked.

Provide Offensive Bases.

Even with the improved steaming radii of modern war vessels, the vessels of a European fleet attempting to force the Panama canal would spend a major portion of the time away from their stations in order to refuel—provided there were no Caribbean island bases from which to obtain new supplies.

The first objective of at least a portion of the American fleet, therefore, might be these islands, which would mean that some time must elapse before the whole fleet could be ready for a united offensive action.

In 1928 Senator James A. Reed of Missouri introduced resolutions in the senate requesting the President to learn whether the British and French would consider ceding these islands to the United States, but neither resolution ever reached the senate floor.

Purely Defensive Bargain.

Those who have wished to see the islands ceded in return for a cancellation of the debts have never suggested that it would be a good bargain on a straight dollars and cents basis. President Hoover declared that when the United States paid $25,000,000 for the Virgin islands it bought an "effective poor house." Some of the British and French islands would probably come under the same category. But as an expenditure for national defense, it is urged, the islands might be worth the price.

Those opposed to or doubtful about the value of the United States taking over British and French islands point to two stumbling blocks—in addition to a very probable reluctance on the part of their present owners to let them go.

The first stumbling block is prohibition. One British statesman said that his country would never consent to selling any of its subjects into the slavery of prohibition.

The other stumbling block cited by the skeptical is the seeming inability of the United States to govern alien peoples.

CRASH VICTIM KEPT ALIVE BY ARTIFICIAL LUNG

Louis Hesser, 43 years old, 4122 Arthington street, whose chest was crushed late Saturday night when he was struck by a truck at Central avenue and Flournoy street, was being kept alive yesterday in an artificial respiration machine at the Frances Willard hospital.

Hesser, an iceman, had stopped from his wagon to make a delivery when he was knocked down by the truck, driven by Tony Donato, 1519 Flournoy street.

Two deaths yesterday in Cook county raised the 1931 toll to 575. The victims:

Charles J. Laakso, 61 years old, 1125 Belden avenue. Struck early yesterday by an automobile at Seminary and Fullerton avenues and died several hours later at the Alexian Brothers hospital. The driver did not stop.

James Fardun, 18 years old, 1007 Madison street, Oak Park. Fatally injured when he fell off his motorcycle and was run over by an automobile driven by Albert Corner, 1915 South 11th street, Maywood, in Madison street near Thatcher avenue, River Forest.

FOWLER AND FIFI FLY TO CHICAGO; END HONEYMOON

Their honeymoon over, Fowler McCormick and his bride, formerly Mrs. Anne [Fifi] Stillman, who were married in the east recently, came to Chicago yesterday.

They arrived by plane, landing at the Chicago airport, and were greeted by Fowler's father, Harold F. McCormick, head of the International Harvester company. They were driven in his car to the Drake Towers, 179 Lake Shore drive, near the residence of Fowler's mother, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick. They declined to see newspaper men.

The McCormicks were married on June 4 at Pontico Hills, home of John D. Rockefeller, Fowler's grandfather, a few hours after Mrs. Stillman had secretly divorced James A. Stillman, New York banker. Fowler's age was given as 32 years, his bride's as 33.

INQUEST IN AIR ACCIDENT WILL BE HELD TODAY

An inquest will be held in a mortuary at 1032 Davis street, Evanston, today, to determine the cause of the airplane crash at Palwaukee airport on Saturday in which Milo R. Lovgren, Wilmette contractor, was killed, and Lathrop Moss, vice president of the airport, was critically injured.

Moss, who is 32 years old and resided at 320 North Mayflower avenue, Lake Forest, remained unconscious yesterday at the Evanston hospital, but has a fighting chance for recovery, according to his physician, Dr. Carl B. Davis. He suffered a fractured right arm and a possible skull fracture.

Funeral services for Mr. Lovgren will be held from the chapel at 1118 Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette, at 3:30 this afternoon. Burial at Altona, Ill.

JUDGE TO DECIDE ON FRIENDSHIP PACT WILL TODAY

A friendship of more than forty years and a dying wish are to be weighed today in the Probate court against legal red tape in the case of a strange will. The case is to be decided by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner.

The friendship began in Bad Essen, Germany, when Heinrich Steinkuhler, then a young man, saved Fritz Neumann, a boy of 5 years, from a thrashing at the hands of several playmates. From that time on Fritz was always in the wake of his hero, Heinrich. The young man took a paternal interest in his young friend.

At the outbreak of the war both enlisted in the same unit in the German army. They served through the war side by side. Their trials together strengthened their friendship.

At the close of the war they came to America. Neither married. They worked together, the younger Fritz always taking the harder tasks to repay his older friend, upon whom the hardships he had undergone in the war were beginning to tell.

When the two had amassed sufficient joint savings they entered the Illinois College of Chiropody. As the savings ran low at the end of their schooling Fritz enabled both to complete their course by working to pay both for his support and that of his friend.

On their graduation in 1928, the two friends drew up an agreement setting forth their friendship and the fact they were without other friends or relatives. The agreement provided that the first to die should receive the estate of the other. Heinrich Steinkuhler opened an office at 800 South Oak Park avenue and Fritz Neumann at 3206 Commercial avenue.

Steinkuhler died on July 1, a victim of the heat wave. His friend, represented by Attorney Carl J. Hutton, took the agreement into court to probate a $1,000 estate. The lawyer explained that Neumann was seeking the money only in accordance with the dying wish of his friend and that he hoped to use it in some way to perpetuate his memory. Judge Caplan took the case under advisement until today.

TOO MUCH WINE; FRANCE SEEKING MORE DRINKERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 5.—Will the pleasant act of drinking wine become a compulsory duty for all French citizens? Although such a measure may sound too drastic, French government officials believe it would be the only way to solve the problem of overproduction of wine which is seriously affecting the wine growing industry.

Despite the many measures taken during the last few months by the minister of agriculture, such as increasing the duties on Algerian wine and the limitations of plantation, the ruby juice of the vine continues to overflow.

In order to increase the consumption of wine, France plans to take drastic methods to teach her foreign visitors the goodness that flows in the Bacchic liquids for which she is famed, as new temples of Dionysus will be metaphorically erected in the famous vineyard towns.

"Uval Stations" is the new word chosen by the under-Secretary for Tourism Gaston Gerard, under whose auspices an international wine congress will be called together.

George E. Cole, Citizen Fighter, Hero of Book

Boyd King Tells of Battle Against Boodle Here.

"The typical bad citizen of Chicago is a good man who is a good husband, a good neighbor, a charitable man who gives to churches and charity, who is usually honest in his everyday dealings, who will form one of a pool to put up the money to purchase the vote of an alderman or legislator," said George E. Cole, in 1899, after the election of the Yerkes boodle city council.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

"CITIZEN COLE OF CHICAGO" is a biography of the late George E. Cole, fighting political reformer who got results. It was written by Hoyt King, his former secretary, and unfolds a thrilling story of the battles against political corruption in the decade after the World's Fair of 1893.

Mr. Cole had been born in Jackson, Mich., in 1857, had enlisted at 16 in the civil war and had marched to the sea with Sherman, and in 1868 had come to Chicago and established a stationery and printing business. He retired at the age of 50 "a moderately rich man."

The book starts with a chapter, "The Little Stationer Becomes the Honest Boss," a role Mr. Cole was to fill for nearly 35 years. During the World's Fair the book of William T. Stead, editor of the Review of Reviews in London, "If Christ Came to Chicago," caused a furore, and out of Stead's visit, the civic reform was born.

In Central Music hall in 1896, at a meeting, the venerable Judge Joseph E. Tuley denounced the city council as "unparalleled in the annals of infamy." Cole, who had been cleaning up his ward, was given the job of cleaning out the boodlers. He organized the Municipal Voters league and opened up with the motto: "Only those who fight like the devil help those who fight like the devil."

"Only found the local government worth while to the boys," writes Mr. King, "the city council was owned by one Napoleon of fraud and chicanery, Charles T. Yerkes. The people elected an honest alderman for the Yerkes district as Democrats and Republicans, laying down party ties was the task set on the league.

The investigation disclosed that the city council was a market for the sale of franchises or corporations of rights in the streets, over them and under them, without adequate compensation to the city. Yerkes had built up a complete machine at the council, fixing a cash price for votes. Other corporations were also the aldermen secured rights to mushroom concerns, paying to secure rights to sell out to rivals."

Cole organized the Municipal league on nonpartisan lines, and in the first election in 1896 Yerkes suffered his first Waterloo in the council when he failed to get the legislature.

"In the campaign of 1896 Yerkes' control of the council was broken up," writes the biographer. "This was shown by his failure to put through the union settlement in the customary form without adequate compensation. He now turned to the legislature. It was the same body that had been picked by Lorimer, Henry Hertz, Madden, and Tanner.

"In the winter of 1897 Yerkes introduced in the legislature a bill to be introduced in the city council, striking a clause to take away from the council the franchise making power and give it to the legislature. This bill was defeated. But there was another measure, the notorious Allen law, under which the council could grant fifty year franchises, and Yerkes and Cole were again for the aldermanic election.

"The election would settle the question whether the council was to be controlled by private or public interest. Yerkes directed his fight that every ward was hotly contested. The reform ticket was made up of Republicans, Democrats, and independents. The 'gray wolves' were shown on the billboards galore and it was used on the other hand, Cole played on the politics he knew. The people, over the brazen acts of Yerkes in corrupting the legislature, accepted the recommendations of the reformers, the result on election day was a complete victory for honest government."

Yerkes himself met. It is said some men came with ropes that they trailed over the balcony rail. Mayor Harrison had announced that under no circumstances would he allow the franchise to go through while the Allen law was on the statutes.

"Yerkes gave up the fight and a few weeks later the legislature obliterated the Allen law. By 1900 Yerkes had disposed of his interests in Chicago. Later he turned up in London."

Mr. Cole kept advising young men of ambition to go into the council. "One day a young man called on him. 'I have just graduated from Yale,' he said, 'and can afford to do my bit politically. What can I do?' Cole blurted out, 'Run for alderman.'

"The young man did, was elected, and at the age of 29 was elected president of the sanitary district of Chicago. He gave his whole time to mastering the great construction jobs in progress, including completion of the power plant at Lockport, the distribution and sale of its power, the building of the Evanston channel, and planning for the Calumet-Sag channel. This caller on Mr. Cole who was induced to begin as alderman was Col. Robert R. McCormick, grandson of Joseph Medill, founder of THE TRIBUNE."

Mr. Cole became president of the Citizens' association and tackled county and township corruption. Through his efforts township governments in Chicago were wiped out. He secured the conviction of the county civil service board. Then came another battle over ring rule in the legislature, and Mr. Cole was picked to lead the new Legislative Voters' league.

"The result of Cole's first campaign was to send new and excellent blood to Springfield from Cook county for 1903. John McManaman came down, an independent from Graham Taylor's territory. Clarence S. Darrow, lawyer of exceptional ability, was elected as an independent, and Oliver W. Stewart as a prohibitionist. There was also in this legislature Joseph Medill Patterson of THE TRIBUNE family, cousin of Medill and R. F. McCormick. All three of the grandsons of Joseph Medill, one time mayor of Chicago were to serve in legislative bodies. Also a notable member was Abel Davis, now Brig. Gen. Abel Davis of the Chicago Title and Trust company. He distinguished himself by making Gus Nohe sit down by a threat of personal violence. Nohe was objecting to Cole being on the floor. Edward J. Brundage, later attorney general, and Michael L. McKinley, who became a militant judge on the Cook county bench, were members. Richard Burke, also later to ascend to the bench; Henry W. Austin, Oak Park banker; Robert E. Pendarvis, lawyer, and M. B. McNulty, lumberman, were among those sent down in the first reform fight."

The machine beat L. Y. Sherman in the house caucus and elected John H. Miller for speaker. Chicago had opened a fight to pass a transit bill, to enable cities to own and operate their street railways. It was the Mueller bill. The machine planned to beat it, and Mr. Cole, in a back room at the Leland hotel, organized a revolt. When Speaker Miller used the gavel to put over a substitute for the Mueller bill, bedlam tore loose. There was riot on the floor.

The speaker took refuge in his room, the rump legislature was reorganized, and in an orderly way the work of the machine was undone and the Mueller bill again placed on the calendar.

Such are some of the high lights as set out by Mr. King. Later Mr. Cole was the chief spirit in the calling of the constitutional convention of 1920, which submitted the proposed constitution which was rejected in 1922. Seven years later, at the age of 85, he was again agitating the basic needs of the state: home rule; the short ballot; unification of local governments; reform of the tax system; and consolidation of the Cook county courts.

"Suddenly on a day in July of the year in which he renewed his fight, the warrior was stricken. On Aug. 18, in his 85th year, the unseen hand beckoned, and his spirit followed it out of the world in which he found so much to do—so much yet to be done."

In a foreword to the biography, Graham Taylor sums it up: "Citizenship is not only seen but felt to be alive and at work in these pages."

Good morning!

"There is an old saying, 'Death is a black camel that kneels unbidden at every door.'"

So speaks Charlie Chann, Chinese police inspector.

This trip the black camel kneels at the door of Shelah Fane, motion picture actress on location in Honolulu with her company and director.

Shelah summons from Hollywood for consultation, Tarneverro, a clairvoyant in whom she places implicit faith. She wishes him to tell her whether she shall marry Alan Jaynes, a wealthy man with whom she has had a whirlwind romance on shipboard.

Swift on the heels of her discussion with the seer comes murder. The entire company—Jaynes and others—are under suspicion. Charlie Chan appears to read clear the riddle, "Who Killed Shelah Fane?"

You will find "The Black Camel" one of the most fascinating of mystery pictures. It keeps you guessing every minute of the way. Until Charlie produces the killer you'll never suspect who he, or she, is.

The cast, headed by the superb character actor, Warner Oland, who gives a perfect performance as Chan, is a splendid one. Note especially the beautiful work of Sally Eilers. The Honolulu background is effective and there is some charming music and photography. Also there's a young romance to relieve the general grisliness, and incidental business and characters are cunningly introduced to act as fillips to your curiosity and suspense.

See you tomorrow!

Rev. Stanislaus Bona Is Given Papal Honors at Sunday's Ceremony

Solemn ceremonies at St. Casimir's church, 22nd and Whipple streets, marked the investiture yesterday of the pastor, Stanislaus Bona, as a papal chamberlain with the title of right reverend monsignor. A crowd estimated at 3,000 attended. The papal bull announcing the honor conferred on Msgr. Bona, issued following the recent visit of Cardinal Mundelein to Romé, was read by the Very Rev. John Kozlowski.

After a solemn high mass at 11 o'clock, the brother of the new papal chamberlain, the Rt. Rev. Thomas P. Bona, officiated at the investiture as the deputy of Cardinal Mundelein. The sermon was preached by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John Mielcarek, pastor of St. Mary Magdalen's church in South Chicago.

In the congregation were 600 nuns of various orders, delegates representing all the convents of the archdiocese of which Msgr. Stanislaus Bona is supervisor. Eight monsignori, 65 Polish priests and ten English speaking priests also were present.

ARTIST GIVES WORK "TO LITTLE CHURCH AT END OF ROAD"

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

St. Stephen's Episcopal church—"the little church at the end of the road"—3533 N. Albany avenue, has just received from Emile Zoir a gift of a series of seven paintings entitled "The Creation," by that artist, valued at $75,000. This latest gift adds to the story of the little north side church which has become a shrine of poetry, music, and art during the last five years under the leadership of the Rev. Irvin St. John Tucker.

Last week a new climax of the church's story was reached, when Zoir, holder of 4 foreign medals and European titles, on the eve of his departure for Europe presented St. Stephen's with the series of his works for which art museums have been bidding. The paintings will be on exhibition beginning Wednesday night at the Midland club prior to being hung in St. Stephen's church.

The little wooden structure far out on the northwest side of the city, in a section unknown to society or wealth, stands in a little garden known as "the garden of memory." The church is just a plain meeting house of Christian folk. But within is a flood of color and personality.

The chancel is lighted by a mosaic glass window executed in a single night at a dinner of the artists' guild by the craftsman O'Shaughnessy and presented to St. Stephen's in memory of American artists. On one side of the chancel is the famous Lotta Crabtree window—long refused by effete New York churches. Along the walls of the church are hung paintings by widely known artists. Etchings, old prints, statuary, and poems in the handwriting of their authors and given by them to "the little church."

Emile Zoir visited St. Stephen's while visiting Chicago. His decision to give his famous group to the church came partly because of his affiliation with the "suprematist" school. That school is one that recognizes the supremacy of the spiritual over the material.

In the letter to the Rev. Mr. Tucker which conveyed the gift, Mr. Zoir explained his action:

"There have been many bids on this series by churches, colleges, and syndicates, some of them very liberal in price, but I give it to the poorest of them all, the 'little church at the end of the road,' because I am highly in sympathy with your work. You are the most sympathetic teacher of the gospel I have ever met."

Field Museum to Offer Byrd Movie, Others

Free Summer Displays for Children Listed.

An unusual free entertainment is scheduled for the Simpson theater at the Field museum next Thursday morning. The James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond foundation will present "With Byrd at the South Pole" as the initial attraction in a series. The film was a moving picture achievement of last year and enjoyed long runs in the larger centers.

School children are invited to see this and five other films on succeeding Thursday mornings in July and August, beginning at 10 o'clock this Thursday morning. Story hours and lecture tours of the museum are also included on the summer program, for the especial benefit of the younger generation. While the south pole picture is the chief feature of the schedule, another called "The Silent Enemy," an Indian epic, was pronounced one of the best films of 1930 and is expected to draw a record crowd.

As announced yesterday, the events of the next two months will be:

July 16, 10 a. m.—Story hour, "Giants of Long Ago."
July 16, 11 a. m.—Tour, "Prehistoric Animals and Peoples."
July 23, 10 a. m.—Tour, "Chinese Exhibits."
July 23, 11 a. m.—Motion pictures, "Glimpses of China."
July 30, 10 a. m.—Motion picture, "The Silent Enemy."
Aug. 6, 10 a. m.—Story hour, "Children of Many Lands."
Aug. 6, 11 a. m.—Tour, "Exhibits Showing Child Life."
Aug. 13, 10 a. m.—Tour, "Animals of Land and Water."
Aug. 13, 11 a. m.—Motion pictures, "Alligators," "Alaskan Sheep," "Bears," "Animals of the Galapagos," "Lions at Home."

Boys and girls from the Chicago area will be admitted to these events, either alone, attended by their parents, or coming in groups from clubs, schools, community centers, or other organizations. No tickets are necessary for admission.

The film productions will be in the James Simpson theater of the museum. Parties for the lecture tours are asked by Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum, to assemble at the institution as directed by attendants.

Children on Way to Hoover Test of Educational Films

Minor whirlwinds of youthful energy and exhilaration swirled yesterday through the corridors of the Stevens hotel, as Chicago was turned into one enormous textbook for a group of thirty-six youngsters from western states. This delegation, heading for Washington to participate in a four day test of the efficacy of motion picture instruction in the public school curricula, made the city the subject of its initial experiment in visual education.

HARLEY L. CLARKE.

Such civic attractions as the Shedd aquarium, the planetarium, the Field museum and Soldiers' Field, the boulevard system, the beaches, parks and playgrounds, were brought to the attention of the boys and girls before they departed at 3 o'clock for the national capital. One boy and one girl selected from the eighth grade graduates of each state, accompanied by a teacher, will comprise the test assembly. The invitation was extended by President Hoover.

In Washington the theory that "one picture is worth a thousand words" will be tried out in actual practice. The first step will be the examination of the students on various topics, as soon as they arrive in Washington. Then for the next few days they will be shown educational talking pictures on the same topics. Finally they will be given a second examination, to ascertain what they have learned from the pictures.

It will not be an "all work and no play" program for the students. Trips to the White House, the Capitol and other points of interest, including Arlington, resting place of the nation's dead, and Mount Vernon, the home of Gen. Washington, have been planned to vary the routine. There will also be a boat trip to Annapolis.

If a survey of the work done by the visitors discloses that the talking motion picture is superior as an educational method to those now in use, Harley L. Clarke of Chicago, president of the Fox Films corporation, has agreed to coöperate with the advocates of visual education in producing films which will be introduced into the public schools. Heretofore, it is explained, those who knew what such films should contain were not qualified to produce a picture, while the producers, having that knowledge, did not appreciate what such films should include.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 5.—[Special.]—If the plan of Frank Woods, pioneer movie writer and first secretary of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Science, works out we shortly shall have a new kind of news reel films.

Woods' idea, advanced also by Edwin Schallert, Los Angeles drama and film writer, suggests something akin to the newspaper "feature story" or "interpretative story" (or, perhaps, still a better likeness would be to the newspaper "composite photograph illustration"), enacted before talkie cameras by a cast of actors, who would present an interpretation of important news events which the newsreel cameras would not be forewarned sufficiently to get first hand.

Woods says, "Why shouldn't the news reel have more human interest? Why should it be limited to a mere flat representation of events that happen, without the sidelights of human reactions?"

Schallert's idea is "the development of a story, perhaps with actors, based on some outstanding event, in a short form, and as supplementary entertainment on a program. The achievement of world flyers, the capture of some ruthless criminal, the breaking up of some plot of malcontents, might thus be reënacted in some vivid form. The stories would be founded on fact."

If Woods and Schallert succeed in interesting movie magnates in carrying out their scheme it would widen the news reels' scope ten or a hundred fold.

At the present news reel camera men are limited to recording such events as are so well planned and advertised in advance that the time and distance element permits a camera man to anticipate them, by getting on the spot and installing his equipment in readiness to shoot what he knows is going to happen.

Hollywood hospitals began disgorging noted patients today, Constance Bennett being permitted to leave Santa Monica hospital on a stretcher, to start later this week for New York, en route to Europe to spend two months recuperating. She underwent a major operation for abdominal adhesions.

Marilyn Miller leaves Hollywood hospital Tuesday or Wednesday for her Beverly Hills home. She was operated on for appendicitis. Evalyn Knapp, who broke a vertebra in a fall off a mountain cliff, is to leave Hollywood hospital late this week.

At Santa Barbara, Katherine MacDonald chose to remain in Santa Barbara hospital while preliminaries in her separation action against her millionaire husband, Chris Holmes, are being pressed. More than that, Katherine secured police guards to keep her in the hospital, on the representation that two efforts were made last week, to remove her forcibly.

Even though offered "nearly $10,000 a week," Clara Bow says she definitely refused Earl Carroll's offer to go into his New York "Vanities." "I'd like to do it," Clara said, "but wouldn't be well enough to begin the part on schedule." Ralph Farnum, representing Carroll, flew from New York to see Clara at her ranch, and then followed her here to Hollywood where she is now under a dentist's attention.

It's not generally known, but those dense tropical jungle shots that you see in so many recent African, Siamese, and Burmese pictures are made on the flat, dry bed of the Los Angeles river. This strange river, which flows above ground only a few days during rainstorms in the wet winter months, has two levels, one above ground and one below. The latter level, flowing along a layer of rock generally twenty and thirty feet below the arid upper bed, comes close to the surface at some spots, and at these spots thickets of brush, tall bamboos, and heavy undergrowth shoot up, to provide an ideal background for films like "Ingagi," "Trader Horn," and foreign legion pictures. Two hundred extras hunt through this oddly situated jungle to make scenes for Universal's "East of Borneo" with Rose Hobart and Charles Bickford this week.

Leatrice Joy is a former big star who is finding the revived rage for cowboy pictures a stepping stone to a comeback. She and Jack Perrin head the cast raking "Ride 'Em, Tenderfoot," a full length, all color film by Westone productions, a new outfit. Albert Grasso is directing it, and Howard Hughes, the young producer who has a financial finger in so many pies, is interested in it because it is employing the multi-color process which he is seeking to popularize.

Ruth St. Denis, who is filling dancing engagements here, has been sued by Robertson's Hollywood department store, which alleges the dancer bought $2,000 in goods in January, 1919, paid $939, returned $700 in goods, and still owes $350.

Welford Beaton, veteran Hollywood newspaper writer, and brother of "K. C. B." Beaton, has turned producer, backed by finances of Howard Hughes.

Yearly Camp Meeting Opened by Methodists

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Traditions of seventy-two years were being renewed yesterday as the camp colony of Methodists from the Chicagoland area opened the seventy-second annual Des Plaines camp meeting on the banks of the river outside that suburb. Indications were that it would be one of the outstanding gatherings of the entire record, with Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and five bishops scheduled for addresses and sermons during the two weeks of religious concentration there.

All ages and all sizes are represented in the inhabitants of the hundred cottages scattered among the venerable trees of the camp meeting grounds. In a gathering where three generations of one family are frequently found in attendance, the mantle of the oldest person present appeared yesterday to have been inherited by Archibald Gilruth, 83, of 7206 Euclid avenue. Gilruth is a retired missionary who has been a regular visitor at the event for the last quarter of a century.

Two veterans whose records completely eclipsed that of Gilruth, but whose deaths occurred during 1930, were William S. Veritt, 97, who was present when the first camp meeting was held on these grounds in 1859; and Christian C. Ebinger Jr., 96, son of the founder of Edison Park, who had not missed a meeting in 50 years.

Veritt was represented at the opening service of the meeting, inaugurated last night by Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of the Chicago area, by seven children, eleven grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Gov. Emmerson has accepted an invitation to speak to the Methodists on July 11. His appearance will be the feature of a good citizenship rally to be held during that afternoon. His subject for the occasion will be "Effective Citizenship." A prohibition rally will be held the same evening, led by Dr. A. M. Pennewell, pastor of the Ravenswood Methodist church.

Four other Methodist bishops will be heard during the two weeks the camp meeting continues. They are Bishop F. J. McConnell of New York, Bishop F. W. Warne of Brooklyn, Bishop C. W. Burns of San Francisco, and Bishop E. H. Waldorf of Kansas City, Mo.

The modern sins of youth he gave as three:

"First, a false sense of temporariness by which young people are inclined to think that if they can get away with something today, it will be forgotten tomorrow. Things change fast in our world, but the principles of Christian conduct remain the same."

Next he pointed out was a false sense of independence in which youth's newly won freedom in many cases has outrun a sense of responsibility. Defiance of outworn conventions, he said, should not be the cloak for acts which cannot be excused on a moral basis.

"Last, but not least, is a sense of obligation to self. This is the familiar plea—I want to live while I live.

"It is founded on the theory that we can use the last half of life to correct the first half.

"It has been the subject of great books in every language—'The Scarlet Letter' in American, 'Les Miserables' in French, 'Romola' in English—and the theory is now outmoded. A balanced and uniform life is the most satisfactory."

MAREK WINDHEIM, NEW AT RAVINIA, SHARES IN PRAISE

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Week-end holiday music at Ravinia had plenty of features. Among the high spots distinctly came "La Rondine" of Saturday night, almost on the edge of operetta, but with a second act which is simply a perfect thing, sparkling, lively, melodious, and with unceasing gayety. Its special charm came from its cast quite as much as itself, the lovely Lucrezia Bori and that highly expert singing comedienne, Florence Macbeth, among the women, Edward Johnson and Marek Windheim among the men, the last named making his first appearance as the poet on any stage and, incidentally, doing a good job of it.

Sunday's music started with an afternoon concert of American music by the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Eric De Lamarter. Circumstances over which none of the participants had any control caused a general shift in the order and occasionally in the contents, to the extent that an overture supposedly by Leo Sowerby took on a strange appearance to another overture by Weber. But there was plenty more music over which there was no doubt as to its origin or its excellence. Some of it was quite new. A miniature march and waltz by Van Vactor, who is the second flutist in the orchestra, some orchestral arrangements of folk tunes by Mr. DeLamarter, a violin solo, "Whymsy," also from the DeLamarter pen and played by John Weicher, took high ratings along with Deems Taylor's "Through the Looking Glass" and Frederick Stock's Symphonic Waltz.

In the evening there was a repetition of "Mme. Butterfly," but with two new artists in its leading rôles. Elisabeth Rethberg filled her delayed appearance in the name part and Frederick Jagel made his Ravinia debut as Pinkerton.

It is a pleasure to testify to the success of both. Mme. Rethberg's rare beautiful voice fits this music as though the music were written for it and Mr. Jagel introduced himself on practically even terms with her. He has a fine voice and he knows how to use it. Consequently the great love duet of the first act was one of the great Ravinia events of the season.

Unwise to Allow the Children to Make All Their Own Decisions

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We do want to help our children to physical independence and the exercise of judgment. But these things have to be gradual. I have seen children bewildered by being forced to make decisions when they were not old enough to have a background of experience that fitted them to do so.

You can't expect maturity of immaturity—and if you do the results will not be good. Or, to phrase it in folksy language, you can't put an old head on young shoulders. Often when people are having trouble with their boys and girls of 15 and 16 write me, I wonder if they could trace the difficulties back to a situation similar to the one described in this letter?

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I am inclosing a stamped envelope for your booklet, 'How to Gain Obedience.' I have in mind a child who is so active that she wears herself out. She is impatient, nervous, and cannot reason. She has the best of food, but does not seem to eat enough for a growing child.

"A selfish father treats the child like a plaything, but takes no responsibility. Her mother is true to her duty, but does not understand her and allows the child to make too many of her own decisions, as the father's mother did for him. To me it is pathetic.

"I feel so anxious for the child's future. The little one stands bewildered so many times and no one is allowed to try to set her right."

I was much interested in this letter, but feel improvement of the situation is problematical. The child can be helped little while the parents are as they are. She is the reflector and the victim of the father and mother. She has not the things in her home background which make a child happy and calm.

She needs, of course, to have many of her decisions made for her. She needs serenity, evenness of treatment, and parents who are concerned with her good, not with pleasure in her as a toy.

Properly managed, she would quiet down, eat well and be happy. Her parents are making a great mistake, for not only her present but her future good is at stake—her mental and physical health. Such a childhood forebodes a troubling adolescence and maturity.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

One of you has to be generous and make the move, so why not you?

Current Cosmetic Interest Directed to Eyes and Brows

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Just suddenly we begin to hear on all sides of us eye talk and eyebrow talk. And how to make them both talk louder in a beauty way. Not that they haven't always figured fairly prominently. And not that quite a number of women haven't been overlooking this most excellent beauty bet. But more women are turning their eyes upon their eyes and seeing what is there that could be brightened, shadowed, enlarged, etc. They're even tacking on lashes if they haven't a decent supply of their own.

Possibly the real reason for the current eye and eyebrow interest is the fact that powder and rouge are being worn in delicate shades, outside of those who love their tans, natural or artificial. Cheek rouge is traveling this season as a most demure maid, scarcely daring more than a faint artificial blush.

So the eyes—and the mouth—become the focal points in a face beautifying procedure. The French women have been working away at these two beautifiers for a long time. American women, the large body of them, have been concentrating mostly on red for the cheeks, and lips and the rest of the face can take care of itself.

I expect shortly that there will be eye specialists [not the eyeglass variety] whose business it will be to study the shade, size, and color of a woman's eye and dictate to her the perfect eyelid tinting, the correct lash length and coloring and eyebrow length, breadth and thickness. Of course, even now you can get some good professional service along this line in certain beauty salons. But there is a big field for expert technique in making eyes appear larger, softer, and in giving eyebrows just that needed character touch to beautify an eye.

In the meantime, I'd suggest that you go over your eyebrows with a pruning machine, meaning tweezers, and get the vagrant hairs out of sight before another person sees them. Because they're just as acceptable in polite beauty circles as hangnails or stray hair wisps.

Doris Says Wife with Job Should Pay Part of Household Upkeep

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Before the end of a year, if not already, there will come up in the lives of certain of the June brides and grooms the question of money disposition. I refer to instances in which the working wife is involved.

Though young couples have been warned countless numbers of times to have this subject of money disposal thrashed out before the day of taking on the actual housekeeping expenses, probably not 5 per cent do so. They trust to luck to iron out all the knotty problems involved in income and outgo.

Young wives will go on earning and spending their weekly income for personal upkeep; a goodly share of it, anyway, expecting the young husband to shoulder the running expenses of the home single handed.

It is ridiculous to bring into marriage, where the wife feels it incumbent upon her to continue her working career, any argument about it being man's prerogative to do all the home financing. Theoretically, it is a lovely idea. But it is applicable only where the wife stays at home and does her full time job there.

The liberty that allows a woman to go on with her work outside the home is extended to husbands of these "part time" wives. A consideration is due them likewise.

In other words, the girl who earns as much or nearly as much as the husband and who does not feel it her duty to keep up the home cannot claim her money as all her own. It is not all hers to spend, to save, to do with what she likes. She is in a little business partnership now. If she has changed her rôle in the partnership from home to office worker, she is not relieved of all responsibility at the home end. I stress this because my experience is that a number of girls marry with the intention of keeping on with their work, their pay to be theirs and sweet amiability to be expected of the other half, no matter though his salary prove inadequate.

It isn't fair. It isn't right. It is not the way to happiness either. Some arrangement has to be made so that part of the wife's salary goes into the home to substitute for her lack of presence-management there.

Food Talk.

Mrs. L. O. writes: "How can I make a fresh cherry pie and keep all the juice inside the pie? This is our favorite pie, but when I make it, no matter what suggestions I follow—macaroni flues, wetting the wedges of the lower and upper crusts before pressing together, or the use of flour and tapioca to thicken the juice—I have juice all over the bottom of my oven and a stifling odor all through the house."

Here is a trick which, if carefully performed, will prevent any loss of juice in cherry, berry, or any other juicy pie.

Line the pan with pastry and trim off around the edge in the usual way. Put a layer of raw pitted cherries in the pan, then a layer of sugar. Repeat until the pan is rounding full—a half gallon of unpitted, unstemmed cherries is necessary for one nine inch pie and, if the cherries are the red sour kind, at least one cup of sugar will be needed. Sprinkle about 2 tablespoons of granulated tapioca over the top of the cherries.

Roll the pastry out for the top crust and cut the design in the center to provide vents for the escape of juice and steam. Before putting on the top pastry, brush the edge of lower pastry just around the rim with beaten whole egg, being sure that there is a thin film of egg over the entire edge. Put the pastry on the top and press the edges together firmly.

It is important that pastry vents be cut open. Juice is bound to come up through the vents, but this gives the pie an appetizing appearance. Also when the outer edge of the pie stands up the juice cannot run over the edge. As the pie cools and contracts the excess juice that runs over top crust will go back into the pie.

Bake the pie in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] for the first 15 minutes, then reduce the heat to moderate [350 degrees F.] to finish cooking—about 45 minutes is required for cooking.

The proper use of the beaten egg completely seals the crusts together and is the best scheme I have ever found for saving juice, except the use of a special juice saving pie pan. This pan has a detachable perforated rim which holds in the juices.

BAKED HAM BUTT.

Simmer a ham butt in water to cover, allowing 20 minutes to a pound. Let cool in water. Make a quart of apple sauce; add 1 cup brown sugar and ½ teaspoon ground cloves. Remove rind from butt and place in baking dish. Cover fat side of face of butt with the thick apple sauce. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for 45 minutes. Serve hot or cold.

Yield: Six servings.

DATE DREAMS.

½ cup fat (half butter).
1 cup brown sugar.
1 egg.
¼ cup oatmeal.
1¼ cups flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.

TODAY!

Lowndes Jennings refused to acknowledge her as his fiancee! The knowledge burned deep into Sally's brain and heart. Little did Sally, proud daughter of an old Southern family, dream that it would be Sam Winstead—of the contemptible "carpet bagging" Winsteads—who would rescue her and save her pride.

FAMILY TREES.

The captious Cardinal de Retz once said of Anne of Austria that she showed that sort of genius which prevented people who knew her from knowing how great a fool she was. If a biography of Col. Rupert Ashley Rutherford of Oakleigh plantation, South Carolina, should ever be written, an honest biographer could very well begin it with the cardinal's remark.

To begin with, the stars in their courses had fought for Rupert Ashley Rutherford. He was very handsome, in the stately and romantic style of the south, and he had the grand manner which silences and obviates the unpleasant word "pompous." If he had nothing to say he said it so charmingly that hearers thought it meant a good deal; he dressed platitudes pithily and trivialities weightily; every now and then he threw in a sonorous Latin quotation by way of ballast.

The Rutherford family had always been wealthy enough for members of it to be called "distinguished" on the least provocation—and this one was distinguished. He came by his title of "colonel" honestly in the Confederate army, paying for it with three hundred slaves, his town house in Charleston, a couple of fine plantations, and the greater part of the family plate, not to mention a Yankee bullet through the right shoulder, which gave him unpleasant twinges in rainy weather.

The colonel was a stately, handsome, courteous southern gentleman of the old school, an ornament to the South Carolina bar before which he had practiced successfully.

His wife, a pretty and pleasant woman, adored him without jealousy, admired his simplicity, and thought him perfection. His daughter, Kate, an only and passionate person, encased in family pride, considered papa the finest of all Prince Charmings, the handsomest and most perfect gentleman in the universe. People said the reason Kate Rutherford couldn't get on with her husband was because the man wouldn't stand for her efforts to make him over in her father's image and likeness, and finally he eloped with another woman, who was totally different in every respect from all the Rutherfords, and left poor Kate to go back to her dear papa.

The colonel's grandchild, Sally, carried on the family religion of worshipping papa, wholeheartedly, with the zeal of a true believer. Like grandmother and Aunt Kate, Sally thought him perfection.

The Rutherfords had an immense family pride. Since the civil war they had lived their home at Oakleigh plantation, some miles outside Charleston. Much of the land had long since been sold, it was still a spacious and really magnificent avenue of live oaks leading from the highway gates to the house, a mile away, had been planted three quarters of a century prior to the revolution. The big brick pillared wrought iron gates opened directly upon what had been the King's highway and was now the public highway, whereon motors whizzed, hooted, honked and screeched all night and all day, thus giving the Rutherfords cause to rejoice that their avenue was shut away by a full mile of trees from sight and sound of passing tourists. They rejoiced to be on the right end of that great avenue.

The colonel's daughter, Kate, a childless and deserted wife, and mortally wounded by the fact, had resumed her maiden name when she returned to spend a few embittered years and die under the home roof. Then the Rutherford son and his young wife were killed together in an automobile smash, leaving small Sally, a baby of two, to his parents. Too young to miss her parents' loss—for what does a baby's spirit know of death—the little girl grew up at Oakleigh so happily that she did not understand the meaning of the words trouble or sorrow.

The household management lay in the trail but competent hands of Aunt Kate. There were many colored servants to meet and obey one's every command, and to add to willing service a wholehearted affection and devotion. The day brought nothing but health and happiness, the nights but sound, sweet sleep. The growing child was free and joyous as a bird. She rode, swam, handled firearms like a cadet, danced, sang charmingly; knew all the fashionable games, drove her own small car like a veteran, painted in water colors, read everything—good, bad, indifferent—she could get her hands on, and was athletic enough to be very modern and make grandmother stretch her eyes. Altogether a most fortunate, healthy, happy little person, Sally Rutherford; slim, brown eyed, tanned, gay and courageous; generous, proud, wilful and quick tempered doubtless, but generous, loyal, true.

Poor Rutherford! But there was not as much money as the last Rutherford should have had, and this greatly troubled the colonel, a trouble that increased with her growth. He hoped to increase his granddaughter's fortune—he was sanguine that he could manage this, that when Sally came into her rightful place, there would be plenty to background her beauty. Just a few fortunate speculations—stocks, oil, coal, gold—and there would be as it should be. Yes: the last Rutherford should have—would have, a golden frame.

Alas, Oakleigh—indeed some of it had once been Rutherford land—was no longer larger, handsomer, better worked and more valuable estate of its kindred. The Rutherford ladies "didn't know" the Winsteads. When those who did not know things Carolinian happened to mention the Winsteads, the Rutherford ladies said in a South Carolina tone of voice: "We don't know them." Which of course disposed of the Winsteads.

Josh Winstead, first of the tribe, had descended upon South Carolina in the wake of the Freedman's bureau and suchlike activities of reconstruction times, and by means of his trusty carpetbag in his strong right hand. Into the maw of that capacious carpetbag of his went houses, plantations, woodlands, uncleared acres, all sorts of real estate, most of which he disposed of as quickly as he could clear a good profit.

What remained and added to the old estate he had acquired next to Oakleigh, he stocked with such of the Rutherford land as was then for sale, for which he paid a fair price in cold cash. He recognized the value of the right sort of neighbors.

Josh had been able to buy the place for something like a dollar or so an acre. Presently he set a gang of husky freedmen to work, at fifty cents a day, to remove all traces of war, fire and disorder; a little later he built a comfortable new house on the site of the burned old one, furnished it, and left it for Mrs. Caleb. He had chosen Mrs. Caleb with care and discretion. She was a strong, calm, silent woman of sound Pennsylvania Dutch extraction and training, a woman warranted never to impoverish her husband by any extravagance. In the early seventies, after nearly ten years of marriage, she presented her husband with their only child, their son, Henry. This son was the source of comfort and pride to his parents, inheriting as he did his mother's strength of character, calm quietness, and enough of his father's acquisitiveness to make him a shrewd old buccaneer easy in mind as to the boy's future. Henry admired his mother's virtues so much that, when he in turn was minded to look around for a wife, he thought he couldn't do better than revisit his father's native heath and bring home another Pennsylvania Dutch girl.

To the day of their death the girl of Henry's choice bewildered his father and mystified his mother. Henry himself never quite understood her, but was willing and able to do anything but love her to distraction; discovering in himself the capacity for a depth of pure passion and tenderness as no one would dream the cold fact man was capable of.

Henry had fallen madly in love with her at first sight, swept off his feet by her flaming red hair, her singing voice, her strange smile, her slender body.

Henry could never accept as a matter of fact and everyday occurrence, the simple fact that Katje the glamorous, the lovely, the gifted, loved him. It was a beautiful miracle, which shed its lovely light over his commonplace life. Henry was perfectly aware that he was a commonplace mortal. He was more than aware that Katje wasn't.

Neither Katje was not the sort of wife Henry had meant to marry—the sort of wife his mother was to his father. Nor was she so strong as he would have been, for Katje had to move out of the world so well looking at when her second baby was stillborn, in the fifth year of her marriage. She left Henry their first child, Samuel Forman Winstead, named for her father, and called Sam from the hour of his birth.

Two years after Katje's passing Caleb was called to his reward. He left Henry more than independent. Half his estate went to her with no strings to the other half, with the exception of a small legacy to his grandson, Sam Henry. It was a good heritage.

Little Sam, now in his grandmother's care, wasn't in the least like Katje, but toe to scalp was Katje's son. Now that Caleb was gone, Henry filled the woman's empty days. Her way of acknowledging her debt to Caleb's young Sam was to leave him everything she died possessed of. His grandfathers will made young Sam Winstead independently wealthy.

During the boy's minority Henry invested his son's fortune so soundly that money came home with compound interest. The making of money became a fixed habit with Henry by this time, and it pleased him to think of his son's inheritance—almost as if he were doing something that would please his mother and Katje. Henry was called a financier now, and people were very respectful to him. He was such a sound, safe man! But one person saved the man from desolation—he had Katje's son, a living link between him and the beloved who had left him. This kept him human.

Bretton Woods Get Place in Society's Sun

LETTERS from eastern correspondents make up for the dearth of local news after the strenuous sociabilities of the Fourth. Our society scout from the Bretton Woods in far off New Hampshire informs us that our townsfolk in the summer colony there are deep in plans for the next two months.

Mrs. John G. M. Glessner was hostess last week at the first meeting and luncheon of the White Mountain Garden club at her summer residence, The Ledges, at Littleton, N. H. The club members visited her gardens, also the gardens of The Rocks, the John J. Glessner estate. The white iris garden surrounding a pool at the turn of the Glessner roads, with an occasional deep purple iris giving contrast, "came in for a large share of appreciation."

Plans for the summer may not include a garden show as heretofore, as the club proposes to sponsor instead lectures by prominent women garden experts, and to invite to hear them the members of several other White Mountain garden clubs, including those of Lancaster, Littleton, Whitefield, and other mountain towns.

Mrs. Frances Glessner Lee will spend the summer at her cottage on the Glessner estate, and Mrs. John G. M. Glessner's mother, Mrs. Hannibal Hamlin, will probably be with her for most of the warm weather months.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Poole are at their summer place on Sugar Hill, and are active in the affairs of the Profile Golf club, a popular gathering place for the communities at Franconia and Sugar Hill. Mrs. Poole supervised the recent redecorating of the club lounge.

Miss Helen Wadsworth of Chicago is at Mountain View House at Whitefield, and Mrs. Chester M. Dawes arrived there recently to spend the summer with Miss Emma Harvey of New York. The Mark Skinner Willings are not to go to Jefferson this summer and have leased Wyndybrae, their summer residence there, to Mrs. Arnold Dimond of New York, whose mother-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Dimond, has a cottage near by.

Dr. Frank Billings to Visit Daughter at Eastford, Conn.

Watch Hill news—George Nichols III., the youngest son of Mrs. George R. Nichols, left last week to spend the summer at Camp Eastford, Conn. . . . Dr. Frank Billings will visit his daughter, Mrs. Nichols, this week . . . Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Hall of 11 Scott street are to be at Midway cottage for the summer . . . Sally's Baseball Party July 16 to Thrill Children

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Wasn't that a bomb of excitement we threw into your midst yesterday, boys and girls, with the announcement of our next party? I know that with all the baseball fans—and CUBS fans in particular—situated in and about the city there will be many of you looking forward to Thursday, July 16, when we assemble in Wrigley Field for this party to which Mr. Veeck has invited one hundred of us.

The game is sure to be a closely fought battle since it's a contest between our own Cubs and Mugsy McGraw's Giants. At this writing our boys are just four and a half games distant from first place and if they haven't hit their way a stride or two closer to their goal it's quite likely they'll make a move in that direction on July 16.

Can you think of anything more exciting than watching our old favorite, Hack Wilson, the home run king, strutting his stuff in the outfield or slugging away to another homer? Or seeing Charley Grimm, Cubs' first baseman, give one of his best performances for our benefit? Or Pat Malone tossing one of his fancy balls over the plate? All this will we see on that glorious Thursday and we won't miss a play for we'll be located in some of Mr. Wrigley's best box seats.

Now, if you want to be invited to this exciting party you'd better get to work at composing a winning letter—one that will make me sure you're a real baseball fan who would like nothing more than seeing a major league ball game played between two crack teams. Every letter must reach my office no later than Thursday morning so that I may read them and select the winners in time to make THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, where the winning list will be printed.

Please write your own letter, do not ask for an invitation for any one else, have it include your name, address, and age, and then address it to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Paris Show of Matisse Art Draws Society

BY EGBERT SWENSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 5.—Since his consecration by American millionaires as the greatest modern painter of France, Henri Matisse's fame and affluence have been steadily growing until they have reached record proportions. The exhibition of his works at the Galleries Georges Petit is no longer merely an artistic event. It is a social function, at which evening dress is compulsory, and where there is a buffet. On the opening there was "ancient music," which, curiously enough, harmonized very well with the paintings. A large and fashionable attendance, including many social celebrites, noted art collectors, big dealers, etc.

The show affords a survey of Henri Matisse's life work in all its phases, from his earliest canvasses, date 1892, down to the present time, and it will be long before such a complete and representative collection is brought together again. American, English, French and German collectors have lent their most precious pieces for this exhibition, which has been organized for the benefit of L'Orphelinat des Arts. In all, there are on view 241 paintings, one large bronze and over a hundred drawings and lithographs.

The paintings include many of Matisse's most famous works, such as the celebrated "Nu Bleu" painted in 1907, from the collection of Miss Etta Cone of Baltimore, the "Femme Moresque," of 1922, the "Poissons Rouges," and the "Odalisque aux Bras Leves" of 1923, which belongs to Chester Dale of New York. There also is Matisse's "Histoires Juives," from the collection of Samuel S. White, and the Luxumbourg museum has loaned "Le Buffet," likewise a most typical work. The series of Etretat canvases, which Matisse painted in 1921, is also represented.

Altogether this exhibition covers Matisse's work during the last thirty years. It is interesting to see that, while it has naturally undergone certain changes during that period, it has not really changed very much. With the exception of quite early works, painted while he was still a Parisian student, such as some little views of the Seine with its bridges which remind one of his old association with Marquet, all these pictures are but variations on the master's favorite themes. Everywhere appear the odalisques and Maureques, reclining on couches of many colors, against a background of bright scarfs. Only the color of the pantaloons worn by these seductive ladies change.

CHILD'S DRESS.

Here is an unusually pretty dress for a small girl. It would be a good idea to make more than one, as the yoke and cuffs of a contrasting color or material provide a basis for many variations. Red and white printed batiste, with plain white yoke and cuffs with red button trim, is one suggestion. White linen, with yoke and cuffs in yacht blue linen, with tiny gold buttons accenting the blue yoke, is another.

The pattern, 3191, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1¾ yards of 35 inch material with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred; wrap it carefully], for each number, and address your order to Clotilde Patterns, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 220 East 42d street, New York City.

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

Jumper Frocks Prime Favorites for Fall

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Contrasting costumes continue to be the outstanding note in smart Paris fashions. Contrasting jackets are shown by everybody. Light bodices and jackets worn with dark skirts are one of the most attractive features of Lelong's fall collection. Jeanne Lanvin is making contrasting jumper dresses for morning, afternoon, and evening, and often she accentuates the contrast by giving the jumpers sleeves to match the skirt.

And, in spite of the fact that vivid color combinations like brown and coral, corinthe red, and pale blue, sapphire blue, and bright red, are sponsored by the Paris couturiers and worn by smart women, I notice that black and white is the favorite of those great elegantes who really set the styles.

One of the best dressed women I saw in Biarritz, recently, was wearing the Jeanne Lanvin jumper dress, sketched today. The skirt is in black crêpe de chine. It's flared by an accordion plaited fan of the crêpe set in at the left side. The jumper is in white crêpe de chine with Greek draped décolleté front and back. Three wide folds of the white crêpe form the tunic, which fits the hips snugly without a flare, and three narrower folds make the belt fastened by a white crêpe covered buckle.

The sleeves of black crêpe de chine are mounted on the white bodice in raglan line and they're split to the elbow on the outside of the arm, a note that is the last word in Paris sleeve fashions for fall.

The gloves are black crêpe de chine and so is the turban.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

An Early Morning Contretemps.

Early one morning as I was getting off an eastbound car, on my way to work, I noticed a street car going south, which I wanted desperately to catch. Running as fast as I could I collided with a lady, her arms full of bundles, who evidently had the same idea in her mind. The result was a complete downfall for both of us, with bundles scattered all over the street, and eyes peering out of the street car windows twinkling merrily. The conductor smiled broadly as I very, very rosily entered the car. E. McA.

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

By Alice Campbell

INSTALLMENT LXVII.
A TRAIN OF MEMORIES.

They were alone now.

Clare was in bed asleep, the little dinner à deux a thing of the past, and before the salon fire the coffee machine flickered and purred as it had done on the fateful Tuesday three weeks ago. Once again there were pale pink roses in the copper bowl, their fragrance scenting the warm room; once again the likeness of Clare looked down serenely from the mantel. When Iris stooped to pick up a spoon from the tray, Charnwood gave a superstitious shiver and stayed her arm.

"Did any of this really happen?" he muttered, half seriously. "Did we dream it? I swear I can't be sure. Unless something breaks the spell you'll go to the window and look out, then the bell will ring, and—"

"Don't!" she begged, pressing her hand over his lips.

However, the train of memory was started, and one by one the painful incidents followed each other through their minds—the box of flowers, the telephone call the comtesse's visit . . .

"She sat just over there, Alan," whispered Iris almost fearfully, pointing to the big chair. "I was absolutely terrorized, she was so suspicious, so inflexible . . . I can see her now—" she covered her eyes.

For a moment both felt the chill of an unseen presence. To shake off the fancy, Charnwood spoke of practical matters—of Clare, and the legacy left her by the comtesse.

"She knows, I suppose?"

"I told her while you were out this afternoon. Darling thing, I had quite a lot of bother making her see that it is really hers and that she can't give it to me."

Clare was, in fact, an heiress. The great bulk of the Castelmaurou fortune had been bestowed upon charities, but an income of five thousand a year had been left provisionally to Iris, two-thirds of it passing to her daughter in the event of a second marriage. This, in short, represented the will which had turned De Bertincourt to criminal courses and incidentally cost him his life.

The clock struck. Charnwood compared the time with his watch and gave a sigh.

"One hour more," he remarked ruefully, "then good-by. But it's not for so long this time, is it, Iris? You are coming out to me surely? No disappointments, mind!"

He searched her upturned face, and gently fingered the shining waves of her hair. She smiled up into his eyes.

"Do you imagine I can stay away from you now?" she reproached him. "Of course I'll come, as soon as Clare is strong enough for the journey. The change will do her good, and in case that beastly woman is captured it will be wiser to have her out of the country."

He drew her down on the chaise longue beside him, his arm about her waist.

"Do you think she will grieve much for him?" he asked thoughtfully.

Iris shook her head.

"He's a hero to her, of course. We can't help that; he had to be either the one thing or the other; but something she said to me tonight makes me wonder if already, before this happened, she hadn't begun to have doubts."

"You think she realized—"

"Nothing definite, naturally, but it seems one day she ran across him in the Bois, with Suzanne, whom she recognized. She's very reticent. She wouldn't say what she saw, but I could see she was shocked. Poor, little generous soul! She blames herself now for having judged him harshly. If only she knew!"

"I'm glad," replied Charnwood, thinking this over. "In a way it will keep her from resenting me."

"How could she resent you?" cried Iris indignantly. "When she knows you half as well as I do—"

"O, come! She's young, remember. To a child her age I'm nothing but a rather tiresome old dodderer."

"'Tiresome?' 'Old'?" she blazed at him. "As if you could be anything but marvelous, the most—the most perfect lover a woman ever had! Why, if all the men in the world were mine to choose from—"

The sentence poised, unfinished.

Meanwhile the logs crackled, sending up bright sparks, the coffee waited undrunk, the clock hands crept relentlessly forward, but for the two restored once more to each other's arms time ceased to exist.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Toledo, O., July 5.—The playoff for the United States open golf championship became a tournament in itself at the Inverness club here today, when George Von Elm, Detroit business man golfer, and Billy Burke, Greenwich, Conn., professional, finished their 36 holes of extra play in a tie, each having a card of 149. Today's playoff was made necessary when they completed the regulation 72 holes yesterday with scores of 292. Tomorrow they will play another 36 holes in an effort to decide the championship.

It will be the second extra playoff in the history of the open, the first having occurred when Willie MacFarlane defeated Bobby Jones, in 36 holes, at Worcester, Mass., in 1925. The length of the playoff round at that time was 18 holes, but has since been raised to 36, so that tomorrow's winner, if any, will be the first to have played 144 holes for the championship.

Von Elm Shoots Birdie to Tie.

The drama which had its setting on the 18th green yesterday, when Von Elm sank a ten foot putt for a birdie three and a tie with Burke, was repeated on the same stage today, for George duplicated that feat under a pressure twice as terrific as that which faced him yesterday. Burke was one stroke up on Von Elm as they turned toward the home green with its hundreds of spectators massed around the clubhouse slope and George needed another birdie four, his fourth consecutive one of the tournament on the 18th hole.

His drive landed 50 yards from the green. Burke's effort from the tee had lain in a cuppy lie. He chipped weakly, about 15 feet from the pin. Von Elm's pitch landed almost in the same spot it had found yesterday, but short from the flag. Burke then rolled his ball three feet from the pin for a certain 4, leaving Von Elm in the position of a baseball player with two strikes on him.

Von Elm sighted the hole and the green at length, and then putted the ball into the cup. The crowd surged on the green, forgetting that Burke might holed out. The constabulary quickly thrust them back, and Billy, who was now in the same situation that George had been in a stroke earlier, rose from his place on the lower shores of the green, stepped up and putted for his 4 with the calm blandness he has displayed throughout the last four days.

Burke's Game Reckless.

Von Elm today was still the business man, playing a straight, conservative game most of the way, but Burke was the surprise of the playoff. The broad shouldered Polish boy, whose original family name was Burkowski, has been a poker player who has been playing a consistent game, and then suddenly has decided to abandon caution for recklessness.

He dropped a 35 foot uphill putt on the 7th this morning and added a similar one at 30 feet at the 9th, but it was at the 13th that he elicited the greatest applause that any player in

SCHMELING FINDS HIMSELF HERO TO NEW YORK CROWD

Sails Today for Home; Ready to Fight Again.

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—The first flush of happiness in the recognition now universally accorded him as world's heavyweight champion has not yet ended for Max Schmeling, the German who proved his worth Friday night in Cleveland with a 15 round technical knockout of Young Stribling.

Arriving here this morning from the scene of his triumph, Schmeling was greeted by a crowd on the platform of the Pennsylvania railroad terminal. When Schmeling appeared on the streets late in the afternoon he was the center of admiring glances and hero worshiping crowds.

Sails for Home Tonight.

The German responded good naturedly to this manifestation of popularity, a strange sensation for him. He finds himself today unconditionally the heavyweight champion of the world, whereas a year ago his title was under a cloud because of the foul punch with which Jack Sharkey ended their struggle for the title Gene Tunney discarded.

Schmeling is to sail tomorrow night at midnight on the liner Europa for Germany, where a reception worthy of a sport king awaits him. Schmeling looks forward to this reception with mingled feelings. He cannot forget that his own countrymen ridiculed him when he returned a year ago.

Ready to Meet Anybody.

He will remain in Germany for an indefinite period. He may be recalled by Manager Joe Jacobs within a fortnight, or he may not be summoned to this country for a month, if at all.

The champion's return depends on developments, as does his next ring engagement and the selection of his next challenger. Schmeling is ready to meet any of eight heavyweights. He rated these men in order today as follows:

Jack Sharkey, Primo Carnera, Young Stribling, Tommy Loughran, Mickey Walker, Victorio Campolo, Paulino Uzcudun, or Charley Retzlaff, Duluth youngster who made a distinct impression in Cleveland with his knockout of Marty Gallagher.

The selection of an opponent, however, rests with the Madison Square Garden corporation, which has the champion under contract for the fall. The contract specifically provides that Schmeling defend his title against Carnera, and the champion is willing to the point of eagerness. But whether or not the Garden desires this match, is one of the developments which the future is expected to solve.

Spends Day Posing.

Schmeling spent most of today in his suite at the Commodore. He posed for operators of motion picture and still cameras, and acknowledged the congratulations and good wishes of friends and admirers. The champion will be accompanied by Trainer Machon. Manager Jacobs will be prevented from making the trip because of business demands.

Jacobs is to confer tomorrow with President Carey of the Garden on the subject of Schmeling's next match.

MIDGET WOLGAST HELD IN JAIL ON GIRL'S CHARGES

Philadelphia, Pa., July 5.—(AP)—It appeared today that Midget Wolgast, recognized flyweight champion in New York and Pennsylvania, would be unable to defend his title in a 15 round fight Friday night in the Coney Island stadium.

Wolgast and two companions are in jail facing charges by Rose Manara, 19, Atlantic City, that they held her prisoner in the boxer's apartment for two weeks. They were arrested yesterday after a raid by police.

Wolgast, court officials intimated, will not be placed on trial until next week and would thus be unable to keep his engagement to meet Ruby Bradley, Holyoke, Mass., Negro Friday. The charge he is facing offers no freedom on bail.

WHEN BRITONS WERE GETTING A GOLF LESSON

Abe Mitchell, veteran British golfer and winner of many tournaments, is putting on the seventh green at the Bryn Mawr Country club course, scene of international matches between British Ryder cup team and Chicago pros. Mitchell, partnered by Fred Robson, won from Eddie Loos and Harry Hampton, 2 1-2 to 1-2, but the invading team lost the series, 9 1-2 to 5 1-2.

Great Britain's Ryder cup team received another setback in its American invasion yesterday, losing to a team of Chicago professionals at the Bryn Mawr Country club, 9½ to 5½.

The British golfers, who found the heat too much of a handicap in the cup matches at Scioto a week ago, succumbed yesterday to a strong southwest wind that blew in treacherous gusts across the fairways.

Despite the high wind the players turned in fine cards for the 18 holes. Al Espinosa, Chicago's ranking professional, led with a 35—34—69, three under par. Al had six birdies, three on the out nine and three on the way in. He was over par on only three holes.

Brother Abe Has 70.

Abe Espinosa, pro at Medinah and a brother of Al, had a card of 36—34—70. This was equaled by George Smith of Onwentsia, who toured the 18 holes in 37—33—70. Harry Cooper of Glen Oaks came home with a 37—34—71, one under par.

The Britons played consistent golf, their scores ranging from 73 to 75. Several Chicagoans, on the other hand, found the going a bit difficult. Among these were Bob McDonald with a 41—39—80 and Jock Hutchison of Glen View, who collected a 37—41—78.

The scoring for the matches was by the Nassau system, in which one point is counted for the winner of each nine and a point for the winner of the match. The Chicago team won three of the five matches by scores of 2 to 0 and the British captured one match by a similar count. The fifth match went to the visitors by a count of 2½ to ½.

Cooper and Smith Win.

In the first foursome Harry Cooper and George Smith of Chicago defeated Archie Compston and George Duncan, 4 and 2, for three points. Both Cooper and Smith shot sub par golf on the last nine, the former getting a 34, two under par, and Smith breezing

Saved by Bell, German Rallies to Whip Italian

HAMBURG, Germany, July 5.—(AP)—Saved by the gong when he was knocked down in the fourth round, Ernst Pistulla, German claimant of the European heavyweight championship, rallied to outpoint the Italian, Michele Bonaglia, in ten rounds here tonight. A crowd of 30,000 saw the bout.

Britons in North Shore Open Today

Two hundred golfers, including members of the British Ryder cup team and many of the leading pros and amateurs of this country, will tee off in the fourth annual North Shore open at Sunset Valley in Highland Park today. The first foursome will start at 7:30 a. m.

Al Espinosa won the championship last year in a playoff with Jock Hutchison. Espinosa also won in 1928. In 1929 Sunny Rouse won a playoff with Hutchison. This quartet will compete again today. The presence of the English stars add considerable foreign flavor to the event this year.

First of the British players to tee off today will be Charles Whitcomb, captain of the cup team. He is paired with Jim Carberry of Shore Acres; Harry Hampton of Beverly, and Mortie Dutra of Long Beach, Cal. They start at 10:20 a. m. At 10:30 a. m. Horton Smith, New York; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Archie Compston, England, and Eddie Loos, Lake Shore Country club, start out.

Syd Esterbrook, another visiting Ryder cup player, will play in a foursome with Chick Evans, Edgewater; Abe Espinosa, Medinah, and Harry Cooper of Glen Oaks at 11 a. m.

9:45—Jim Foulis, Harry Adams, Joe Smith, Gus Fetz.

Friend Rushes by Plane to Lend His Aid to Von Elm

Toledo, O., July 5.—(AP)—George Von Elm felt the need of an old friend's encouragement today, for his playoff with Billie Burke for the United States open golf title, and wired Silas Newton, millionaire oil man of New York, as follows:

"Could win if you were here."

Newton left his Long Island home last night, took a train to Cleveland, finished the trip by airplane to Toledo and arrived at the course during the third hole of the afternoon round. Shortly after his friend's arrival, Von Elm put on the spurt that moved him in front for the time being. Newton will be on hand to lend encouragement throughout the additional 36 holes tomorrow.

SOX BEATEN, 3-1; THEN FABER SETS BACK BROWNS, 6-5

Fothergill's Homer Ties Up Second Game.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., July 5.—Old Red Faber showed those upstart St. Louis Browns a thing or two in the second game this afternoon, after watching his White Sox mates lose a tough one, 3 to 1, earlier in the day. It is true that Red wasn't in there at the finish, but just the same a 6 to 5 victory in the sundown number was chalked up to his credit in a contest that was in a terrible mess when he took it over with none out in the first inning.

The Browns have been feeling entirely too frisky. What with 16 victories in 21 games, all exhilarated and everything, they started right out in that second game this afternoon to slay Jim Moore when old Red stepped in and stopped them cold for a long, long time.

Sox Tie Score.

The Browns were leading 3 to 0 at the end of the second inning. The Sox made it 3 to 1 in the third and in the fifth, Bob Fothergill drove in Reynolds with a homer to tie the score at three all. In the seventh, the Sox grabbed a 6 to 3 lead, but with two out in the eighth, the issue became tense when Relief Pitcher Kimsey knocked a homer with one on. This made it 6 to 5 in favor of the Sox.

Melillo led off the ninth with a single. Out went Red. Pat Caraway pitched one ball to the terrible Goose Goslin and made him pop to Appling. Out came Pat and in came Tommy Thomas. Kress lined to Watwood. Thomas walked Ferrell. Jenkins batted for Bettencourt and waited long enough before ending the game to get Manager Bush tossed out of the ball park for protesting a called ball. Umpire Moriarity chased him. Then Jenkins sent a weak foul to give the Sox victory.

Umpire Misses a Couple.

Since the Sox won the second game it may not be amiss for a Chicagoan to comment upon the umpiring of a Mr. Campbell, who worked at first base. While inefficient umpiring appears to be the mode in both leagues this season, Campbell's work was especially sad in that he completely missed the tail end of an obvious triple play, executed by the Sox in the third inning. He also awarded the Browns a double play in the eighth on the grounds of interference, although the "interference" consisted of a slide by Blue into second directly on the base line.

Inasmuch as the Sox triple play turned out to be a double play in the records, however, it gave them a showing of four for the game.

The first game was made interesting by fine defensive play on the part of Kerr, Sullivan and Appling. Despite the fact the Browns outhit the Sox, 12 hits to 4, the score was tied at one all in the first half of the seventh. The Browns had made one on Kress' homer in the fourth and the Sox had matched it with a run in the seventh on doubles by Fonseca and Simons and a fly by Appling.

In the last of the seventh, however, the Browns got to McKain for two runs, after two were out to give the score its final status. Only 15 batsmen faced Gray in the first five innings and only 31 faced him in the entire nine innings.

The Sox and Browns will play the fifth of their six game series tomorrow. Thomas will oppose Stewart.

Sox Go Hitless.

At the end of the first three innings in the opener not a Chicagoan had reached first base, while the Browns had made a triple and three singles. But even so, the score was nothing all.

The scoreless tie was broken in

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Old Hack Wilson, the erstwhile playboy is back on the job in a big way. Defeat was hanging over the Cubs yesterday when Hack, assisted by Gabby Hartnett, put on an act that tied the score. Then in the tenth with the bases full, with Paul Derringer seething because a beautifully pitched battle was getting away from him, and with 38,000 fans nervously gnawing on their straw hats, Hack singled again to send the pace-making Cardinals into a 2 to 1 defeat.

Until the ninth there was nothing to indicate that the Cubs were thinking of victory. They had been so feeble against Derringer's skill that it seemed only a matter of minutes. Through eight innings they had nicked the Cardinal youngster for only three hits. He had tempted them a few times with passes, but he never wavered. Neither did his defense. And meanwhile the league leaders were moving along confidently under the protection of one run scored off Pat Malone in the opening inning.

Hack Scores Tying Run.

Hack's contribution to the tying episode in the ninth was a leadoff single which whizzed between Frisch and second base. Then Derringer committed the blunder that probably unnerved him. He let go with a wild pitch and Wilson sprinted to second. For a moment it looked as if the Cardinal six footer was going to elude capture once more. He retired Hornsby on a popup and D. Taylor on an infield grounder. But Hartnett singled to center and Wilson ran home. The folks who had been moving toward the exits went back to their seats.

Malone did his bit by setting down three Cards in the tenth and then did his bit once more by opening the final home stand with a double to left center. Jurges bunted perfectly to Adams and was called out, but appeared to have beaten the throw. Coach O'Leary thought so and spoke so boisterously about it that Umpire McGrew chased him. Boss Hornsby promptly went over there for the double purpose of coaching and giving McGrew his version of the incident.

Walk English, Cuyler.

With Malone on third and only one out, the Cardinals recognized the situation as dangerous. There was a prolonged conference and extreme measures were decided upon. Both English and Cuyler were intentionally passed, filling the bases and thus making a force play possible at any base. Hack lost no time ruining the strategy. He fouled the first pitch into the stand. He went after the next pitch and this one shot low over second for a hit, Malone going home with the run that ended the show and put the Cubs four and one-half laps behind the leaders.

Bob Smith, the hard luck hurler who last Thursday had to carry on for ten innings to gain a 2 to 1 verdict over the Phillies, will face the Cards this afternoon. Gabby Street, the St. Louis manager, is hard pressed for pitchers after his Pittsburgh experiences, and with a double header coming tomorrow, so probably will try to get by with Allen Stout, a youthful right hander.

Adams Doubles, Scores.

Sparky Adams delivered a greeting to his old mates in the first inning and because of it the Cards were able to get a one run lead. He opened the festivities by lining a two bagger between Wilson and Taylor. Jimmy Wilson singled to center, but it was one of those hits that looked as if it might be caught, so Adams stopped at third. Hornsby, who was in action after tendering his charley horse a day of rest, picked up Watkins' grounder and instituted a double play. Sparky ran home on the play. Collins' pop to English finished the inning.

A collision between Taylor and Cuyler stirred up some excitement in an otherwise uneventful Cardinal second inning. Malone fanned Roettger and a grounder to English disposed of Frisch. Then Martin hit a high fly to center and the wind carried the ball toward right. Seeing that it was eluding Taylor, Cuyler made a dash to get under the ball. Taylor made a half dive that carried him into the path of the charging Cuyler. Knocked a bit dizzy by the jolt, Danny laid down on the grass for a much needed

Entries for Meet Close on July 20.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Any swimmer in the central states, unless he is a champion of the A. A. U. or A. A. F., is eligible to earn a TRIBUNE merit badge for swimming. All that is necessary is to report at the Lincoln Park lagoon Sunday afternoon, July 26, and swim 100 yards.

The second annual swimming carnival of THE TRIBUNE is open to all boys and girls 11 years of age and over. There are five age divisions and the boy and girl champions of these classifications will be determined July 26.

Badges for All Swimmers.

All contestants will receive merit badges. The winners and those finishing second and third will receive championship trophies. Ten gold medals—five for boys and five for girls—are championship prizes. Silver medals are second place trophies, while bronze medals are the third place prizes.

The age classifications have been drawn up so all contestants will have an equal opportunity. The divisions follow:

Class A, 11 and 12 years of age.
Class B, 13 and 14 years of age.
Class C, 15 and 16 years of age.
Class D, 17 and 18 years of age.
Class E, 19 years of age and over.

There is no entry fee. However, swimmers 16 years of age and over must be registered with the central association of the Amateur Athletic union. Registration fee, which is membership for one year, is 25 cents. Registration certificates may be obtained from Roy Davis, 538 South Clark street. If the registration is not made before July 26, the fee may be paid to A. A. U. clerks on the day of the meet.

Entries Close July 20.

Individual entry for THE TRIBUNE'S swimming tests may be made directly to the sports department. Clip the blank which appears daily in these columns and mail it immediately. Entries will be accepted until July 20.

The entry blank is not necessary for team entries. The instructor, coach or captain may make all the entries for his squad on a single sheet or sheets of paper. Age classifications must be carefully noted, however, for the convenience of the clerks who compile the lists of contestants. All names of competitors will be printed in THE TRIBUNE.

A team trophy will be awarded to the squad which scores the most points in the ten races. The trophy is a figure of a swimmer mounted on an ebony base. All races, boys and girls, will count in the team score. Five points will be scored for each first place, three points for second, and one point for third.

Life Guards Patrol Course.

The 100 yard course, which will be laid out in the Lincoln park lagoon, will be patrolled by life guards in boats and along the shore. Last year more than 900 boys and girls earned TRIBUNE merit badges, and while many of the youngsters were taken from the water before they finished the 100 yards, all were safeguarded perfectly.

Four hours were required last year for the races. Preliminaries, with ten in a heat were held, then the semi-finals and championships. If the number of entries warrants the change, the meet this year will be held on Saturday afternoon and Sunday afternoon. This was the procedure in the Silver Skates races last January. Nearly 5,000 entered the 15th Silver Skates derbies and the youngsters competed in preliminaries on Saturday with the finals on Sunday.

While the 100 yard races are primarily for the boys and girls of Chicago and Chicagoland, there is no geographic limit. Last year two swimmers from Florida competed and one of them finished fourth in one of the races.

SETS OUTBOARD RECORD OF 51.11 MILES AN HOUR

Albany, N. Y., July 5.—[Special.]—Averaging 51.11 miles per hour, Marshall H. Eldridge established a new outboard motorboat record on the Hudson river this afternoon.

Eldridge drove a Century flyer, a ten foot shell, both ways over the mile course to establish the mark. The record time was made going up river with the wind at his back.

The former world's record, 50.93½ miles per hour, was made on Fox Lake, Wis., last summer by Ray Preganzer, who drove the same type craft Eldridge used today. Both used the E class motor and raced as professionals.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

SPORTS REPORTING.

READERS sometimes may wonder whether sports reporters personally enjoy their assignments to cover prize fights, Derbies, football games, golf matches, boat races and other big events. They always face congestion, frequently lack of proper working facilities and other inconveniences.

The Wake does enjoy such assignments, but not entirely for the reason which outsiders might think. Of course, covering the event is part of the work, but the pleasure, if any, comes from the advance work. We frequently have remarked to friends that except for seeing the race itself, we'd like to leave Louisville the night before the Derby to escape the strain and crowds of Derby day.

At a big prize fight like last Friday's battle at Cleveland, a large part of one's enjoyment comes from meeting the newspaper writers assembled from all parts of the country. You meet chaps you have not seen for six months, perhaps a year, or even more. They are, in the main, a different coterie from those at the Derby or football games, although a few cover all types of big features.

This gathering of the clan, so to speak, results in a session of fanning bees, reminiscences of former bouts, and an exchange of stories about prominent figures in the sport world. These visits really are far more interesting to the writers than the advance preparations of the pugilists.

Football Yarn.

Bill Cunningham, all-American center at Dartmouth and now sport and feature writer for the Boston Post, always is an entertainer on such occasions. Besides being able to furnish piano accompaniment when "Sweet Adeline" becomes inevitable, he has a fund of stories from his gridiron experience. Here is one of them:

After graduation from Dartmouth, Bill accepted a position as assistant coach at a then obscure western college, now nationally famous for its football team. It was a denominational institution and the president and coach differed on a question of ethics, so the coach resigned. Since Cunningham was a lineman, he welcomed an offer from "Choctaw" Kelly to assist with the backfield. Kelly had played at Carlisle and elsewhere, as long as any college would accept his registration papers, for pure love of the game, as he was independently wealthy from Indian oil land income.

Bill's team played its principal rival and lost, 20 to 0, which was regarded a great moral victory, as the count usually was about 40 or 50 to 0. Then the team went away for a game. Students did not then follow their elevens as now. Perhaps foreseeing an emergency, a couple of student managers were introduced to the rivals as coach and assistant coach.

Cunningham's center was a little chap of about 155 and soon was hors de combat. There was no substitute, so Bill donned a suit and reported in the name of one of the registered players. Imagine his surprise when a couple of plays later "Choctaw" Kelly also reported to the referee as a substitute. On the first play thereafter Kelly, a great open field runner, received a flat pass and scampered for a touchdown. On the next kickoff Kelly again broke free for a touchdown.

Dear Old Siwash scored an unexpected and brilliant victory.

Upon return home the team was met by a victory mad undergraduate mob. The players whose names Cunningham and Kelly had used were hoisted on student shoulders and the mob paraded through town and ended at the president's home, where Prexy made a speech. The true story of the affair never leaked out.

WORLD MARKS BROKEN IN TWO OUTBOARD RACES

Beaumont, Tex., July 5.—(AP)—Two world's records were bettered here today in the final events of the annual regatta of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association.

In a one mile time trial, Gee Whiz, class F outboard of F. J. Lobrano, Point Lahache, La., averaged 46.475 miles an hour. The record was 45.475 miles, set by Ray Pantages at Balton Sea, Cal., in 1930.

R. O. Smith, Shreveport, La., professional in the class C outboard division, broke the record of 47.558, which he set yesterday. Today he took his little boat, The Sap, out and averaged 48.272 miles per hour.

Bayhead II., belonging to Chris Ripp of Jamaica, N. Y., made an average of 57.915 miles per hour in the trials of the limited hydroplane class. The record was not listed officially, but Secretary A. T. Griffith of the association said he believed it was a little better than 54 miles per hour and set by Dick Loynes at Long Beach, Cal., in 1929. Bayhead defeated Meadowmere, also owned by Ripp, in the second heat race of the 510 hydroplane class, averaging 47.480 miles an hour.

Miss Texas, owned by J. E. Sellman of Houston, won the 15 mile Webb trophy free for all, the big race of the regatta. Miss Texas' average speed was 49.114 miles per hour.

HELD FOR KILLING FRIEND IN ROW OVER TITLE BOUT

Girard, Kas., July 5.—(AP)—The radio told the story of the Schmeling-Stribling heavyweight championship battle, and Frank Misnik joined Proffit Ramey in eager interest.

Then they quarreled over the decision. Friends separated the pair, but later they met again and attempted to settle their differences with fists and beer bottles.

Today Ramey, a Schmeling partisan, was held in the county jail, charged with the murder of Misnik, who died from a fractured skull.

STORM TEACHES SCOUTS LESSON IN CAMPCRAFT

Lightning Shatters Tree on Proposed Site.

BY BOB BECKER.

Why it is safer for campers to pitch their tents in small second growth timber, rather than in the more beautiful virgin woods, where the tall hemlocks and pines reach high into the sky, was one of the most important lessons in campcraft given to the Boy Scouts who paddled down the Flambeau on THE TRIBUNE'S annual canoe cruise. The demonstration involved one bolt of lightning, which was furnished by a thunderstorm, and a box containing two watermelons furnished by the Scout party.

Last Wednesday the Scouts shot the rapids of the Flambeau just above the junction of the south fork, and finally pitched camp at the junction. The regular camp site pointed out to the leaders of the party was some distance above the junction of the two rivers and in beautiful virgin timber. A spring trickled down the hillside just a few rods from this site, which was in deep shade, with a number of magnificent hemlock trees throwing their big heads above the hardwoods.

Vote Against It.

We looked at this stopping place and voted against it. First, because lightning has a way of striking these tall hemlocks and pines, and, secondly, because it was too shady and too protected. That meant lots of mosquitoes. So camp finally was pitched some distance from this spot, [illegible] stream, in thin, burned over [illegible] It wasn't good looking and the [illegible] wasn't very level, but it looked [illegible] and breezier.

Later the boys paddled over to the spring which flowed between [illegible] hemlocks. In the cool water [illegible] placed a box containing two [illegible] melons, which had to be cooled for supper. They were mighty [illegible] because they had been carried [illegible] miles downstream from the last [illegible] tact with a store.

The Storm Comes.

About 3 o'clock that afternoon [illegible] series of thunderstorms swept over our camping site. Rain fell in [illegible] rents. With the rain came plenty of sharp lightning. Some of the [illegible] seemed awfully close. When the [illegible] was over, around supper time, [illegible] the boys paddled upstream to get [illegible] ter from the spring and the two [illegible] ons. What they saw drove home the oft repeated lesson about not [illegible] beneath big pines or other tall [illegible] ber. A bolt of lightning had [illegible] the tall hemlock standing above the spring, shattering the [illegible] into a dozen pieces, and [illegible] part of the trunk right on the [illegible] containing the watermelons. [illegible] chips from this tree were strewn [illegible] a wide area.

There were several anxious moments until the Scouts dug out the watermelon box and found the [illegible] were all right.

SENATORS SLICE BACK LEAD BY 4 TO 2 TRIUMPH

Stamps' Four Errors Help Washington.

Washington, D. C., July 5.—(AP)—Washington climbed back into the American league pennant race today with a 4 to 2 victory over Philadelphia in the first of their three game series with the leaders.

MEL HARBERRY.

Earnshaw helped to boot away the game with a costly error. He held Washington to six hits, but the winners coupled their blows with three of the four Philadelphia hobbles. Fred Marberry allowed the eight Philadelphia hits, Goslin's tenth homer coming at the start of the sixth, over the right field wall.

The champions got away to a lead in the first. Haas singled to left and Moberly put him on second with a sacrifice after Cochrane flied out. Goslin poked a single to right to score Haas across.

Philadelphia threatened in both the fifth and ninth. After Haas hit safely opening the eighth, Harry Rice hit a leaping one hand catch of Goslin's blow to deep right center and Marberry forced Simmons and Goslin at first. Miller started the ninth with a double but three pinch hitters failed to produce and he was left on second. Score:

Robins Win Six in Week; Climb Up 2 Notches

New York, July 6.—(AP)—Rising from fifth to third place in the National league, Brooklyn dominated last week's major league campaign by winning six out of seven games. Only the two teams which shared the American league lead for the week, Philadelphia and St. Louis, came close to the Robins' record.

Brooklyn's nearest National league rival was the hitherto humble Pittsburgh club, which achieved four victories and two defeats. St. Louis and New York trailed in the next two positions, the Cards with five victories and four defeats and the Giants with four won and four lost.

The Yankees stood out in the closely bunched American league list, trailing the leaders with five victories and three defeats. Washington's downfall furnished the big surprise. The Senators had the worst record in the league, two victories and six defeats.

Defense brought best results in the National league and attack in the American. The Robins had the best defensive record in either circuit, allowing only 16 runs in seven games. Pittsburgh and the Braves were scored upon only 20 times, while the Boston Red Sox, who had the best defensive record in the American league, allowed rivals 23 tallies.

Malone, Cubs Win 2-1 Duel from Cards

rest. Cuyler picked up the ball and whipped it to Jurges in time to catch Martin at third. Aid then was rushed to Taylor, but he didn't need it.

Derringer Sails Along.

In the home portion of the same inning the Cubs began to show their contempt for scoring chances. After Wilson had flied out, Hornsby and Taylor walked. Hartnett was an easy victim on a tap to Derringer. As a mark of respect to Grimm's revived hitting strength, he was purposely passed, loading the bases. Malone then was retired.

The next time Derringer displayed his knack for getting out of a tight spot was in the fourth. With one out, Hornsby slashed a double down the left field line for the Cubs' first hit. Derringer then disposed of both Taylor and Hartnett on strikes. The futility of the attack was even more painful in the fifth. Grimm opened the inning with a triple into the right field corner. But Der Kaptink never went beyond third. Malone bounced gently to Derringer. Jurges tapped in front of the plate and J. Wilson tossed him out. The next and last hope was English. He popped to Gelbert.

Cards Make Malone Work.

Mr. Malone had his troubles in limited quantities in the few sessions following the Cuyler-Taylor collision, but none was quite as stimulating for the patrons as the eighth. Gelbert opened with a single to deep short and was moved along to second on Derringer's sacrifice. Adams' grounder to English missed being a hit by so small a margin that only Ump. McGrew could see it. Then J. Wilson bounced somewhat sharply to Grimm's right, but the ball caromed off his glove and rolled toward Hornsby. Malone tore over to cover the bag and arrived in time to grab Hornsby's throw for a putout.

A faint peep came from English's bat after two were out in the home eighth. He looped a single into left for the north siders' third hit, but Cuyler flied to right. You know the rest.

HENDRICK, WEBB BOOST AVERAGES IN BIG 6 BATTING

Harvey Hendrick and Earl Webb did the heavy hitting for the six ranking players of the major league batting lists yesterday. Hendrick made two hits in two times at bat and again exchanged places with Virgil Davis in the big six standing. He gained six points while Davis' mark was unchanged. Webb hit three times in four attempts, gaining four points. Babe Ruth failed to hit and lost seven points more, making it 15 in two days. The standing:

VON ELM, BURKE TIE IN OPEN GOLF PLAY-OFF AT 149

Play Another 36 Holes at Inverness Today.

the tournament has drawn. His second shot landed in the rough of the ravine, which lies below the 12th green, and his approach shot brought the ball into more tall grass on the bank to the left of the green. No one bothered to remove the flag from its place in the cup, never thinking that the reckless Burke had decided to try to hole out for a birdie 4. But that was just what he did, his niblick boosting the ball onto the green and downhill until it finally dropped half way in, lodged between the flag and the side of the cup. And this was on the same hole in which Von Elm reached the green in two and two putted for another birdie.

Von Elm Sets Birdie Record.

But Burke's daring in the morning was more than matched by Von Elm in the afternoon, when he made four successive birdies on the 6th, 7th, 8th, and 9th holes, the greatest collection of consecutive under par holes ever achieved in a national open. He had come out for the afternoon round two strokes back of Burke, the latter finishing the morning round with a card of 73, against George's 75. Von Elm regained a stroke on the first afternoon hole, but was three down when he took a disastrous 6 on the 3d.

He took another stroke at the 4th, but lagged by four strokes after the difficult 5th. After his birdie on the 9th he was two strokes in front of Burke, but the Connecticut Pole evened the score at the 14th with a birdie of his own. George had another one of those 4s which have hounded him during the four days' play at the 15th and so was one down coming to that last stand on the 18th, for they shot the 16th and 17th in par 4s.

First Hole Is Halved.

Von Elm was on the first green of the morning round in two, his iron shot landing 40 feet from the pin, and his attempt for a birdie three nearly succeeded, grazing the cup by inches. Budke's approach shot was 15 feet short of the cup, but he stepped up and holed out for a par 4 and a halved hole.

George got his first birdie on the 2d hole, his drive and a superb iron shot from a trap bringing him eight feet from the cup for an easy 3. Billy's second shot found a trap at the left just short of the green. He chipped to within 20 feet of the flag and two putted for a one over par 5. Both were over par on the short 3d, Burke overdriving the green and winding up in the rough, while George landed in a trap at the left.

Von Elm encountered the first of his two 6s on the 4th. He hooked his drive into the tall grass on the left and his second shot was played safely on to the fairway. His third sailed over to the left of the green, and he chipped on, taking two putts. The difficult 5th told him off with another 6, his first two shots finding the rough and his third bounding over the much wrinkled green. Burke had better luck with his drives on both of these holes and got out with par 4s to take a two stroke lead going to the 6th.

Both Get Birdies on 7th.

Both played the 6th in orthodox fashion, getting on in two and taking two putts. It was at the dogleg 7th that Von Elm succeeded with the shot that won old Ted Ray of England the open title in 1920. His short cut drive fell in the neighborhood of the green and he chipped on for an easy birdie 3. Burke played the safer route on his drive and his second shot brought his ball to the foot of the slanting green. Billy drew his first big hand from the gallery when he duplicated George's birdie with a fine uphill, 35 foot putt.

The short 8th found both players on with their drives, and Burke missed a two by inches. As they came to the 9th Burke responded with one of the finest shots of the tournament. He drove the fairway on his first two shots, but his third was short of the green and nearly in the rough. He chipped again, and the ball climbed up the tilted table of the green 30 feet, 40 feet, 50 feet and into the cup. Von Elm had trouble with the rough on his first two shots, but he got on and two putted for a par 5, leaving him three strokes down to the Connecticut pro at the turn.

Von Elm Picks Up Stroke.

Von Elm regained a stroke at the 10th when he was on in three and holed out an eight footer for a par 4. Burke drove the fairway, but his iron shot sent the ball over the gully and on to the steep slope back of the green. He couldn't make the green on his third shot, either, the ball rolling off into the rough, and he was forced to take a 5.

The 11th was a matter of a drive, a pitch and two putts for both. The story of that reckless 12th and its two birdies has been told. Burke nearly had a deuce on the abbreviated 13th, his 15 foot putt halting on the lip of the cup. He gained a stroke, however, for Von Elm two putted the hole.

The 14th and 15th were played in regulation style for par 4s, but Von Elm took a 5 on the 16th, when his drive found the rough, and was four down. Burke lost two strokes on the 17th and 18th, his drive landing in the rough on the former and being trapped on the latter, while George was taking par 4s. It left Burke two up as they started the afternoon round.

Von Elm played the first afternoon hole in regulation style for a par 4, but Burke's second was short of the green, and after chipping out, he required two putts, taking a 5. Burke got down in 4 on the second, but George's second shot rolled over the green and into the heavy rough back of it. He took two chips to get on and two-putted for a 6. They were both one over par on the short 3d, Billy three putting and George finding a trap with his drive. Burke's second shot was short at the 4th, while Von Elm got on in two for a par 4. Von Elm was in the rough on his tee and iron shots at the 5th, and had three putts for another 6.

Four Birdies For Von Elm.

Then came Von Elm's four birdies. His second shot to the 6th was three feet from the pin for a 3, and he repeated this feat on the 7th. On the 8th, he dropped in a 30 foot putt, in which the ball had to climb uphill before falling for a two. Burke couldn't do a thing until the 9th, where they each had a birdie, both chip shots landing within easy reach of the cup.

Burke rallied on the 10th and was only one down when Von Elm landed in the rough back of the green and saw his attempt for a par 4 go in the cup and out. At the 11th they had par 4s and at the 12th both played for 5s. Burke was still gambling, for he attempted to hole a 25 footer from off the edge of the green. They played the short 13th in 3s, but Burke evened the score at the 14th with a fine iron shot and a six foot putt for a birdie 3 and won the 15th to go one up. They stuck to pars on the next two holes and then George went hunting for that birdie 3 and got it.

ARGENTINE POLO TEAM HERE FOR OLD AIKEN MATCH

Team to Work Out Today at Onwentsia.

The Santa Paula polo team arrived yesterday after a trip of 25 days by ship and rail from Argentina for the international matches starting Saturday with the Old Aiken four of Long Island. The eastern team is due Wednesday with 26 ponies and a dozen grooms.

The Argentine party was headed by Manuel Andrada, famous internationalist, who for the last 25 years has played polo in almost every country where the game is played. He is rated by the United States Polo association as an eight goal man.

Three Other Players in Party.

The rest of the party include José Reynal, Alfredo Harrington, and Andres Gazzotti and Mrs. Reynal, Mrs. Harrington, and a 16 year old son of Capt. Andrada.

Juan Reynal, the other regular member of the team, will arrive from California with his wife today. Andres Gazzotti is the only player who will be new to the United States.

When the Old Aikens arrive at Lake Forest on Wednesday the Onwentsia club will have in its stables the costliest string of polo ponies ever assembled. The Argentine ponies have been quartered at Onwentsia several days. The two strings are valued at more than $500,000.

The second and third games of the series will be played on July 15 and 18.

Play Together 5 Years.

Each team has been playing together for five years. If there is an edge, it should favor the Old Aiken quartet, particularly in Saturday's contest, as they have not had to undergo the rigors of long distance travel.

The invaders are holders of the Argentine and the United States Pacific coast open championships. The Old Aikens are the United States junior champions. They probably have played more consistently as a team than any other polo aggregation in this country.

SIXTH CORPS WINS, 5-3.

With Maj. C. C. Smith scoring three goals, the Sixth Corps Area Polo team triumphed over Fort Sheridan, 5 to 3, yesterday at Fort Sheridan. Maj. Gen. Parker and Lieut. Bethel also scored for the victors. The lineup:

BOSTWICK'S GOAL TOPS SANDSPOINT POLO FOUR, 15-14

Port Washington, L. I., July 5.—[Special.]—G. H. [Pete] Bostwick, best known as America's leading amateur steeplechase rider, crashed home a goal in the last half minute of play to give his Roslyn quartet a 15 to 14 triumph over Sandspoint in the weekly high goal polo match here today.

Bostwick's goal, the result of a sparkling bit of mallet work, came after the Sandspointers, trailing by six goals in the sixth period, had unleashed a closing drive that netted them eight goals through the last three chukkers and brought them on even terms midway in the eighth.

MOTHER OF NOTED M'KINLAY FAMILY TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. James D. McKinlay, 80 years old, who immigrated to Chicago from Scotland and reared a family which has gained distinction in the political and business affairs of the city, died yesterday at her home, 7305 Paxton avenue. She had been ill for several months.

Helped Build Chicago.

The story of the McKinlay family from the time the elder McKinlays left Scotland to come to this country typified and coincided with that of many others which contributed to the growth and prosperity of Chicago during the last fifty years.

Born in 1850 at Greenock, Scotland, Mrs. McKinlay was married at an early age and four of her children were born in her native Scottish village.

The elder McKinlays came to Chicago in 1884 and settled on the south side. Mr. McKinlay was a carpenter and became president of the Carpenter's District council in Chicago. Each of the sons went to south side schools, and worked their way up from humble beginnings. John started work for Marshall Field's at the age of 14 for $2.25 a week and Donald, after being admitted to the bar, became a law clerk.

Sons Win Prominence.

John McKinlay was promoted to the vice presidency and finally to the presidency of the Field company. Donald McKinlay was elected alderman from the 19th ward and later a Municipal court judge. Robert W. McKinlay was a member of the legislature in 1907 and 1908 and county commissioner from 1918 to 1922.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. McKinlay celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a family dinner at the Union League club in 1923. Prior to that time there had been no deaths in the family. Miss Jean McKinlay, a third daughter, for twenty-five years a teacher in the public schools, died in 1924.

Mrs. McKinlay for years was an active worker in the Presbyterian church. She also was interested in the Englewood Scottish society and other church and charitable organizations.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the First Presbyterian church, 64th street and Kimbark avenue. Burial will be in Mt. Greenwood cemetery.

Most important of the measures enacted, according to a statement by the Illinois board of public welfare commissioners, was the one distributing the million dollar annual state mothers' aid fund to counties on the basis of their needs. The concentration of jurisdiction over juvenile offenders in the Juvenile court was accomplished by three other bills while the fifth made it possible to commit children with mental disorders to the state colony for epileptics.

POLITICS PLAYS LEADING ROLE IN WHEAT TRADE

Russia Dominant in Foreign Field.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Politics are playing a more important part in the wheat market than in any previous time. Between the political leaders in the southwest, who are trying to help the farmers get more money for their wheat, which they are selling in larger volume than in any other year, and the farm board, the wheat market is in a chaotic condition.

Politicians and the farmers want the farm board to decide definitely its plan of disposal of the 200,000,000 bu of old wheat which they have on hand. The farm board defined its position early in the week by saying that they would sell 5,000,000 bu a month on a cumulative scale to the domestic trade, and at the same time sell all that foreigners want to buy. Various rumors about foreign countries taking a large part of the farm board's holdings at a low price on a moratorium basis were not given credence by trade leaders.

It is the opinion of the wheat trade that so long as the farm board continues to dominate the wheat market, having over 200,000,000 bu cash wheat which represents the country's commercial supply, bearish conditions will dominate.

No Big Bulges Expected.

Fair sized bulges due to pit conditions are to be expected, but they are not to last long, as hedging sales against purchases of cash wheat in the southwest are estimated to last for a considerable period, and it really surprises the trade at the way prices hold up with the steadily increasing marketing movement.

Receipts at all important markets last week were 17,920 cars, several of the southwestern railroads reporting record loadings.

The foreign situation is regarded as dominated largely by Russia, which made good sales of wheat to the United Kingdom last week at a price equal to that of July in Chicago, the wheat said to be of high grade.

With no export business, millers absorbing the cash wheat, and with prospects of greatly increased stocks, trade leaders incline to the belief that it makes no difference what the farm board does in regard to disposal of its holding, there is enough wheat to go around and leave a large exportable surplus, and until there is an outlet for it speculative buying is not expected to increase materially.

Private crop reports issued on Thursday suggested a winter wheat crop of 489,000,000 bu, and the government report due on Wednesday is estimated to be closer to the private estimates than last month. Spring wheat estimates have been cut down to around 175,000,000 to 200,000,000 bu, against 247,000,000 bu last year, and Canadian estimates are about the same to possibly a little better than the United States, most expectations being for 200,000,000 bu, compared with 374,000,000 bu harvested last year.

Wheat prices in Chicago and in Liverpool are around the lowest of the season. There was good buying of wheat futures in Winnipeg against sales at Chicago. Closing trades were 2@2¾c for the week after a range of 4@5c. July closed 55⅝@55⅝c, September 57¼@57¼c, and December 61⅛@61⅝c. Prices for the week follow:

Three Billion Corn Crop.

Private estimates suggest a corn crop of around 3,000,000,000 bu. There have only been about five years when a crop of more than that size has been raised. Hot weather has forced the crop along unusually fast and at the same time absorbed the surplus moisture, so that good rains are necessary to keep the plant growing in excellent condition.

Holders of July corn took the deliveries at the opening of the month, and there were around 1,000,000 bu sold during the week to go to store for delivery on July contracts. Part of the corn delivered, it is understood, is being moved out to eastern markets. A number of the largest

Up and Downs Marks Week's Bond Trading

New York, July 5.—(AP)—The bond market performed a series of backward and forward movements last week which resulted in few appreciable changes until the fifth and final session on Friday.

Reports of virtual settlement of the intergovernmental debts question served then to turn the price trend upward. The average closing price for thirty representative bonds consisting of ten issues each of rails, public utilities and industrials on Thursday was 95.4, which was precisely the same figure as for the preceding Saturday. The closing average on Friday was 96.

The impressive thing about the advance on Friday was its unmistakable reality. All groups participated in the upswing and many individual gains were substantial. Trading also showed a sharp increase.

Unusual Conditions.

Aside from the advance on Friday the financial community has been aware for some time that unusual conditions existed in the bond market. Difference in the yield between high grade and second grade bonds normally is about ½ of 1 per cent. Wider differences have appeared in times of stress such as the present, when the average yield of high grade issues is about 4¼ per cent, compared with 6 per cent for the less desirable bonds. Parsly Brothers & Co. have prepared a compilation and graphic chart on this aspect of the situation. The Friday advance was not sufficient, of course, to change this relationship materially. The fundamental reason for the discrepancy is that in times of uncertainty, capital is more inclined to flow into safe investments than into those of speculative standing.

Huge Gold Stock.

Whether the advance on Friday was the beginning of a broad upward movement is a question the answer to which many people would like to know and which the future alone can tell. However, one influence which is worth considering is the easy money policy of the federal reserve system. The low rates of rediscount and low buying rates for commercial bills are now reinforced by the purchase of government bonds, the holdings of which have shown increases in two successive weekly statements. This is another method of making money easy by releasing large supplies into the open market. Easy money is recognized generally as a favorable factor for the bond market.

Because of the huge excess stocks of monetary gold and the restricted volume of business there seems little likelihood that the federal reserve will alter its policy.

REPORT STEEL MERGER PLAN IS TO BE REVIVED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 5.—Merger negotiations between the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company and Bethlehem Steel will be resumed in the fall, according to reports in steel circles here. Approval of the new Bethlehem bonus plan by all stockholders last week has removed the last barrier to consummation of the deal, it is said, and a new offer will be made by Bethlehem within a few months.

Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland capitalist who blocked the merger by his injunction suit last year, based his fight partly on the Bethlehem bonus system, because of the large sums paid to Eugene G. Grace, president, and other executives of Bethlehem. Mr. Eaton, though still a director of Sheet and Tube, is believed to be out of the picture, so far as a further fight against the merger is concerned.

It is generally believed that any new offer Bethlehem may make will not be as attractive as the original change of stock on the basis of one and one-third shares of Bethlehem for one share of Youngstown. At the close Friday Youngstown was quoted at 53¾ and Bethlehem at 53⅜.

J. G. Brill Co. Gets Order for Thirty Electric Cars

An order for 30 electric street railway cars by the Compania Chilena De Electricidad of Santiago, Chile, has been received by the J. G. Brill Co. The order follows the delivery of 40 of the same cars to the Chilean street car company last year. The modern electric cars to be delivered now will be 40 feet in length, with four motors, and a capacity of 40 passengers.

FINANCIAL NOTES

J. E. Fullam has arrived in Chicago to assume his new duties as vice president in charge of the western division of the Postal Telegraph-Cable company. Mr. Fullam will work in coöperation with S. H. Mudge, general manager of the western division, for the development and expansion of Postal Telegraph facilities in the eighteen states comprising the western division.

Consolidation of the country's railroads into a limited number of strong systems will prove of greater lasting benefit than the proposed freight rate increase, according to Walter E. Lagerquist, vice president of the Brookmire Economic Service, Inc.

Unification of the carriers has been subjected to so much delay and discussion that many investors have lost sight of the important advantages to the railroads that will result when the task is completed, he believes.

June Corporate Financing Smallest Since February

Corporate stock and bond financing in June was substantially smaller than in any previous month of 1931, except February, according to the Standard Statistics. Total for the month is reported as $291,400,000 in comparison with $456,100,000 in May, 1931, and $768,600,000 in June, 1930. Bonds to the amount of $260,900,000 made up 88 per cent of the month's total.

SLACK BUYING MUST GIVE WAY TO REACTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 5.—The sudden diversion of financial interest to the German crisis and the inter-governmental debt negotiations, during the past three weeks, has somewhat obscured other aspects of the economic depression. Still, the question remained what position would be left, assuming wholly satisfactory adjustment of the debt problem. The course of last month's markets, commercial as well as financial, suggested at least an important change for the better in the psychology of the situation, if the international debt remission were to be effected. But even so, other underlying influences would remain to be considered.

Probably the fall in staple prices and the railway earnings situation would be assigned as the paramount outstanding problems. The shrinkage of railway earnings is itself, however, the reflection of another highly perplexing movement; the extremely heavy decrease in the movement of goods from producer to consumer. That decrease has been so great that in some recent weeks the car loadings of freight for transportation in this country have fallen to the smallest total reached in any corresponding period since the war.

Calls for Explanation.

A phenomenon so remarkable—two years ago, so entirely unbelievable—calls for some definite explanation, all the more particularly since the comparison is not based on shrinkage from years of inflated activity among consumers, such as 1929 and 1928.

This reduction of purchases by middlemen and consumers is in part correctly ascribed, not so much to overproduction of goods at the climax of the "boom years," as to excessive buying in that period, followed by heavy losses by consumers, both in capital and income. But the unusual scope of the decrease in buying orders has led to another entirely plausible explanation. It is based on the sup-

Price Average of Utilities Is Up Slightly

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 4.—Public utility stocks ended the first half of 1931 at an average price slightly above the prices for the close of 1930, according to an analysis of twenty-five leading common stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange, compiled by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The average price for the twenty-five shares was 66.06 on June 30, comparing with 65.39 on Dec. 31, 1930, an increase of .77, or 1.3 per cent.

For the same period the twenty-five principal railroad stocks used in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE averages declined from 30.23, on Dec. 31, 1930, to 70.41, on June 30, 1931, a decline of 9.82 points, or 14.1 per cent. The yearly range of twenty-five leading railroad stocks on the New York Stock exchange was 94.93 high, 55.33 low, a range of 39.60 points in trading during the first half of 1931.

Spread of 42.30 Points.

Using the average of the high and low points of the twenty-five railroad stocks, which did not occur on the same dates, the more extreme range of 96.77 high and 54.47 low appears, a total spread of 42.30 points. Computing the range of twenty-five utility stocks on the same basis, a range of 83.16 high, 54.87 low, is shown, a spread of 28.29 points.

This indicates that the fluctuations in railroad stocks has been practically 50 per cent greater than that of the utility stocks so far this year. This is taken as showing that utility stock values have been more stable than the prices of railroad shares for the period, an inference confirmed by the small change in average price of the utilities between Dec. 31, 1930, and June 30.

Larger Capitalization.

The wider range of railroad stocks is attributed to the greater changes in earning power resulting from the depression, contrasted with the ... lings of the public utilities. The ... however, have a substantial ... capitalization, the twenty-five ... used in the compilation having a ... capitalization of 137,350,000 ... while the twenty-five railroads ... an aggregate capitalization of ... 900,000 shares, less than one-fifth ... the utilities.

The aggregate gain of the ... five utility stocks from Dec. 31 to ... 30 was about $468,300,000, which ... aggregate decline of the ... railroads was $548,400,000, taking ... account the total number of ... the companies listed on the ... Stock exchange at the end of the ... year

BUSINESS PAPER EDITORS EXPECT AN UPTURN SOON

New York, July 5.—(AP)—One hundred and fifty-five business paper editors today announced their belief that "business in the United States has rid itself of all overhead burdens accumulated during the prosperity period," and, "thoroughly liquidated, it is now extremely sensitive to all influences and ready to respond to the slightest stimulus."

The editors, members of the National Conference of Business Paper Editors and the Associated Business Papers, recite this belief in their eighth semi-annual survey of the business outlook, just released by Stanley A. Dennis, president of the conference.

While the editors do not find that the upturn of business has been reached generally, they do, in certain fields, report that signs of improvement already have been observed.

The industries in which the gains have been noted include the automotive equipment and parts section of the automobile industry, chemicals, machine tools, electric power production, textiles, commercial bakeries, furniture manufacturing, construction, meat packing, shoe retailing, and radio broadcasting.

The editors report that aggressive merchandising in which manufacturers and retailers coöperate to develop goods that will sell under present-day conditions has characterized business for the six months just closed.

They believe also that, in the main, inventories of raw materials and finished products are now so depleted that replacement buying cannot be postponed much longer.

The editors criticized the trend of the last few months toward price cutting. Even where dollar volume has in some cases been kept up, profits have been almost negligible because of diminishing profit margins. Several industries, the editors said, have taken steps to remedy this situation.

Residential building seems likely to lead the way in the construction industry, with emphasis on the need of better and cheaper housing for the masses.

The textile industry, notably strong in the cotton side, has shown remarkable progress in the development of promotional selling, finding new uses for goods and otherwise bringing up to date an industry that has heretofore emphasized the production rather than the selling end of its business.

HEAT WAVE AIDS SEASONAL TRADE IN MANY LINES

The record breaking hot weather of last week had its own peculiar effect on various business activities in Chicago, with seasonal lines profiting immensely, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Manufacturers of ice cream, soft drinks and various other hot weather specialties worked overtime. The demand for melons and fresh vegetables was extremely heavy. Lemons, oranges and other citrus fruits used in preparing cool drinks were sold in large quantities, with the price advancing as the demand increased.

In the retail merchandise field low priced house frocks and aprons met the housewives' desire for cheap, cool lounging apparel. That the same situation existed throughout the country was indicated by the many rush orders for house dresses received by local wholesale firms. Retail and wholesale business on the whole, showed a firm tone during the week.

Oats Damaged by Heat.

Highest temperatures for a longer period in many years damaged oats over a large area, but the belief is that there will be plenty for all requirements. Damaging reports, however, brought in more buying from speculators and prices advanced around 5c from the recent low point, with a good reaction, the close being about the bottom, with net losses of 1¼@1⅝c compared with a week ago. Lard Prices Decline.

Lard prices moved within a fair range, with a fair volume of business, and closed at the low point, with net losses of 20@27½c for the week. Bellies at the same time were offered more freely by packing interests, who were hedging, and closed 52½@55c lower than a week ago.

Lard stocks have increased 12,927,000 lbs at western packing points, but are 5,000,000 lbs less than last year. Total supplies of meats of 302,602,000 lbs, compared with 339,559,000 lbs last year.

Texas Gulf Sulphur.

Please give me information on Texas Gulf Sulphur company. Thank you.—R. B.

Texas Gulf Sulphur company is one of two companies which control about three-fourths of the world's supply of sulphur. It produces more than 1,000,000 tons annually.

Net income showed an uninterrupted upward trend from 1921 through 1929. Due to decreased industrial activity and reduced sales of fertilizers net income since 1929 has fallen off.

For 1930 net, before depletion, was $13,972,035, or $5.50 per share, against net, before depletion, of $16,247,478, or $6.40 per share for 1929. Per share earnings for 1928 were $5.72 and for 1927 $4.76.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $19,447,549, and current liabilities were $1,214,198. Working capital was $18,233,351, against $16,320,606 the year before and $14,326,284 on Dec. 31, 1928.

The company does not deduct depletion from net income nor does it make a separate item of it in its balance sheet. Reserve for depletion and surplus are included in one account.

For the first quarter of 1931 net income was $2,443,198, or 96 cents per share, against $3,803,701, or $1.50 per share for the corresponding 1930 quarter.

The company has no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 2,540,000 shares. With the dividend paid June 15, 1931, the stock was placed on an annual $3 basis. It had been on an annual $4 basis since Dec. 15, 1928.

In May, 1931, the Texas sulphur production tax was increased from 55 cents to 75 cents a ton. Tax payments in the first quarter of 1931 on a basis of 55 cents a ton totaled $222,026.

The capital stock deserves a fairly good rating.

There is always a possibility that new competing sources of supply may affect future profits.

Iowa Gas and Electric.

Will you kindly advise me as to the soundness of Iowa Gas and Electric company 6s due 1934?—J. P.

The properties of Iowa Gas and Electric company were acquired by Iowa Southern Utilities company in June, 1925. The first mortgage 6s due July 1, 1934, are secured by a first lien on the entire property formerly owned by Iowa Gas and Electric. In 1930 fixed charges of Iowa Southern Utilities company before depreciation were earned 2.20 times. In 1929 fixed charges after all deductions were covered 2.43 times. The first 6s, due in 1934, are reasonably sound.

Revive Talk of Sinclair, Prairie Oil Consolidation

Reports of an early merger between the Prairie Oil and Gas company and the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation have been revived. Officials of the latter company declined to comment. At the annual meeting of the Sinclair company in May, Harry F. Sinclair, its chairman, told the stockholders that negotiations had been held for a merger of the two companies and the Prairie Pipe Line company and the Tidewater Associated Oil. At that time W. S. Fitzpatrick, chairman of Prairie Oil and Gas, said that persons interested in the stocks of both that company and Sinclair favored a merger.
